WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1920 Newspaper Suspensions (Reprinted from the Financial Post, July 17th.)

The reduction in the number of daily newspapers by suspensions, absorptions and amalgamations, is not alone due to higher paper and other costs, but to changing conditions in the newspaper business, and is likely to continue for we are entering upon most critical times for them.

Rural weeklies, national weeklies and periodicals are in a different class. Their contents are original. That is, they do not appear in any other publication. They are becoming increasingly more expensive to produce.

The Free Press, Forest, refers to the increased costs within the last few years, of eight of the fifteen newspapers published in Lambton County. This will be regretted by those who know country life in Canada. A rural weekly and small city daily is more of a public institution than a money-making enterprise.

There are few editors of rural and smaller daily papers who are not underpaid, self-sacrificing public servants. They give more to their communities, and when they are leaders, as so many are, commanding respect and confidence, their papers are a great power. The Financial Post is in cordial sympathy with the action of Parliament in continuing to support rural weeklies free of charge in their local districts.

Another phase of good work these local papers do is to keep those who go out into the world, to the big centres and foreign parts, in touch with their old homes. For that reason we would also favor carrying copies of rural papers going to these subscribers free of postage.

This is really a great national service, a good investment for the country. There are few men or women who do not hope to go back to and do something for the old town. If the world treats them well they want to share the good things with the schools, churches and institutions in their old homes. Many of them do. These generous thoughts can be best retained by keeping them constantly in touch with the doings at home. There is only one way—the local newspaper.

No matter how busy we are we make time to read that, if it comes to us. At one time these papers were carried free to any subscriber in Canada or in the United States, but Dr. Coulter dropped this very soon after his advent to the Deputy Postmaster-Generalship. It was a very serious mistake. Thousands of Canadians were cut off who have never since regained touch.

We submit these facts to Parliament with the suggestion that they, the M.P.'s, seriously consider whether—as a good business proposition—we should not permit these rural weekly and smaller dailies an unlimited free postal area. The investment will be trifling and the return to the nation very profitable.

The Ree Cars

Hamilton Spectator:—One of the features of the new 'Light Six' speed wagon on the tour of Ontario with the Michigan Pike Association, who were in the city on Friday, was the ability of the drivers to get eighteen miles to the American gallon.

There is one 'New Light Six' with the tourists and two of the latest models of the 'Ree' speed wagon. All the cars are fully equipped with the latest equipment and pneumatic tires.

The outstanding feature of the Michigan Pike's tour, according to E. Le Roy Pelletier, jr., associated with his father in the handling of the advertising of the Ree Motor Car Co., who was in town Friday with the tourists, is the tremendous interest being manifested by the farmers of Ontario in the tour.

This interest has been demonstrated by the great turnout of farmers in the various towns through which the tourists have passed, the farmers seeming to have made a gala day of it and come to town to witness the passing of the fleet of trucks and automobiles and to hear the addresses made by prominent speakers, all upon the topic of good roads.

The present attitude of the farmers is made the more gratifying when one contrasts it with that displayed towards former tours of the same nature. Indifference, if not indeed a spirit of resentment, seemed to be the rule in former times.

The farmers seemed to regard such tours as simply offering to a bunch of city fellows an opportunity for one grand joy ride and an occasion for the other fellow to intrude into affairs which they regarded as their own private business.

Varency W. I.

The Varency W. I. met at the home of Mrs. A. A. Mulkins on July 8th. Attendance 22 and eight visitors. Meeting opened by singing opening ode and repeating the Lord's Prayer.

It was decided upon for every member to keep all paper, rags and rubber for shipment. The institute would be pleased to accept above mentioned from any one wishing to donate same.

Mr. Doc Parkinson gave a report of convention held at Cayuga. Mrs. F. Saunders led in discussion on canning and drying. Mrs. Chas. Columbus read a poem entitled "Old Sweet-heart of Mine."

Mrs. R. A. Miller gave a lengthy talk on Authors of Canada. Next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. R. A. Miller on Aug. 12th. Nanticoke W. I. will be our guest and will furnish program. V. W. I. will furnish lunch. Invitation extended to all old members to attend this meeting. Membership solicited.

Only the Author.

Concerning the rehearsal of her first play, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," the Baroness Orcey, who has just celebrated her silver wedding, tells this amusing story:

A new call-boy was engaged at the theatre. Going up to the baroness one day, he said: "Excuse me, miss, but are you one of the company?" "No," she replied, with a smile, "not exactly; in fact, I am only the authoress."

EVIDENCE

Of Success of Hacking's Heart and Nerve Remedy and Hacking's Kidney and Liver Pills

Wm. Fullarton, R. R. 1, Listowel: "I doctored for eight years for Stomach Trouble and Pains all through my body. got no relief until I used Hacking's Heart and Nerve Remedy which fixed me up all right. I used Hacking's Kidney and Liver Pills along with the Remedy."

Mrs. H. Minchcliffe, Wingham: "I was on the point of a complete Nervous Breakdown, could not sleep or plan my household duties, suffered with my Heart and my Nerves and doctors could do little for me. After taking the first box of Hacking's Heart and Nerve Remedy I improved so much in health that I continued with a 6 box treatment and am able to return to my work with renewed vigor."

Mr. Richard Jones, Orono, Ont.: "I have had Pains under my Heart for some time and tried all sorts of remedies and have been to four different doctors and could get no relief. I took one box of Hacking's Heart and Nerve Remedy and felt very much better. I took another box and have been able to work again. Before I took your remedy, I could not work for weeks at a time, the pain was so great."

WHEN RELIEF CAME.

Belgian Lady Writes About Last Days of War.

A stirring and a touching story of the feelings of Brussels under the German occupation and in the weeks of victory is told by M.M. Gille, Ooms, and Delandshere in Cinquante Mois d'Occupation Allemande, which incidentally contains a good deal of information as to the efficiency and humor of the British propaganda methods.

Printed matter rains from heaven upon our streets, containing photographic reproductions of caricatures and maps of the front, accompanied by German letter-press. This is part of a propaganda which the Allies have recently employed. It is extremely amusing for us and undoubtedly most efficacious; so much so that Hindenburg has been compelled to issue an agonized proclamation to the German army and public not to allow themselves to be poisoned by enemy publications.

Leaflets rained with photographs showing American soldiers disembarking in France in thousands and humorous extracts from statements by German Ministers that "the Americans will never be able to reach Europe." The came, carried by little balloons which dropped everywhere, and they were eagerly read by the German troops. One day a little balloon would fall in the semblance of a French soldier, with on its chest this inscription: "Now I am alone, but in two months there will be 200,000 of us."

A few days later a similar effigy of a Belgian soldier would drop, with the message: "Today I am by myself; others are coming after me." All Brussels palpitated with joy. The exaltation approached delirium as the sound of the guns came nearer and nearer behind the effigies.

Stirring demonstrations took place. Twenty Canadian prisoners were marched through Brussels, guarded by four Germans. An immense crowd gathered round them, cheering them to the echo. "They marched with imperturbable calm through all the uproar. They had not enough arms to hold all the presents which were thrust upon them—packets of cigarettes, food, glasses of beer. Women wept because they could not get near them and hand them gifts. What hours those were, and how we shall always remember them!"

As the thunder of the artillery constantly approached the Germans changed their tactics and allowed Brussels to do pretty much what it pleased. On November 17, when the deliverance, it came for the final great bell of St. Gudule boomed its greeting through the air, the whole city turned out to welcome the coming of the allied troops—the return of freedom.

"Those were in very truth great hours, and it is well to be reminded of them."

Kipling on Canadians.

Rudyard Kipling, in his latest book, "Letters of Travel," says Canadians greet visiting Englishmen with "a new contempt." "One understands," he says, "and accepts the bitter scorn of the Dutch and the hopeless anger of one's own race in South Africa is also part of the burden, but the Canadians' profanity—sometimes humorous, always polite—contains of England of today cuts a little."

He holds that Canadians resented the gift of freedom to South Africa, where so many Canadians died for no conceivable advantage. Kipling speaks of Canadians who seriously speculate whether England will ultimately succumb from the British Empire to have expense, possibly by politically sending her children one by one to the nearest power which threatened her comfort. If England deserted her Canada might just pull through as a nation if England did not help others to hammer her. That is what some Canadians think, according to Kipling. He says of them, "The duty of developing their country is always present, but when it comes to taking better thought for their defence they find refuge behind loose words and childish anticipations of miracles quite in the best Imperial manner. By reason of their closeness to the United States," he says in another passage, "they have caught the contagion of foul-mouthedness and accusations of bribery, corruption and evil-living are many."

Is this the reason? When Kipling was last in Canada the accommodation at a certain hotel where he put up did not suit the poet, and he severely berated the landlord. When he received his bill on leaving he found an item which read: "To impudence, $2."

Woman Journalist Coming.

The only lady representative to attend the Imperial Press Conference in Canada, will be Miss Mary Frances Billington, of the London Telegraph, who officially represents the Society of Women Journalists, of which Viscountess Northcliffe is now president. Miss Billington was herself president of the society from 1913 to 1919, and did valuable work in helping to obtain permission for a few women writers to visit munition factories where women were employed; and later to visit the base and lines of communication in France in connection with the work of women. Miss Billington has been twice to India, but this will be her first visit to Canada.

Our Indemnity.

Canada's indemnity demand amounts to about $1,850,000,000. As the British Empire is to get 25 per cent. of the German indemnity, and the amount is not to exceed $13,500,000,000 altogether, there will be about $4,600,000,000 for the Empire, on this basis, Canada's share of expenses may be one-twentieth of the total, or about $200,000,000. We need not fancy ourselves rich out of what Germany took from us.

Live Stock Chat.

Calves of all kinds require plenty of shade. The horses at hard work will appreciate the run of a paddock where they will be able to pick a bit of grass. A rest of a few weeks for the brood mare after foaling will benefit both mare and colt. The bull will give better service if allowed some exercise in a paddock every day.

ABOUT SICK POULTRY

A Study of Bacterial Diseases of Chickens.

Diagnosing Tuberculosis, Cholera, Typhoid and White Diarrhoeas of Fowl—How to Keep These Troubles From Spreading—Radical Treatment Suggested.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

TUBERCULOSIS—Judging by the number of tubercular birds sent to us for examination from different places we conclude that tuberculosis of domestic poultry is widely spread in Ontario.

In live fowl it is difficult to detect the disease in its early stages. As the disease advances, however, the following symptoms are liable to develop.

1. Emaciation.—Notwithstanding the fact that the affected bird's appetite keeps good, the bird will frequently get thin until eventually it becomes little more than skin and bone. This symptom, however, does not always occur; some birds will remain fat even in the advanced stages of the disease, but such birds will be very moopy and inactive.

2. Paleness.—The unfeathered parts of the head, around eyes and mouth, the comb and wattle, become pale and dull, and though the eyes usually remain bright and clear, they lack life and fire and are often closed. The feathers become dry and lack the lustre of health.

3. Listlessness.—Affected birds gradually lose their vigor and become listless and inactive, being inclined to mope around and lie down when not feeding.

4. Lameness.—When the disease attacks the bones and joints lameness occurs.

5. Egg laying is frequently reduced to a minimum.

After death if the bird is opened up tubercles will be found which appear as white or cream colored spots or lumps on liver, spleen, testes, or may also occur in lungs, bones and other tissues. These tubercles are masses of dead tissue which have been produced by the action of the poison given off by the tubercle bacillus wherever a tubercle develops.

The droppings from affected birds have large numbers of these tubercle bacteria in them so that healthy birds scratching and feeding with tubercular birds soon contract the disease from these contaminated droppings.

When once the disease gets established in a flock it is difficult to eradicate except by the most drastic measures. The quickest and most effective method is to kill off all diseased birds and those that have associated with them and then thoroughly clean up and disinfect the premises and start again with new healthy stock.

Fowl Cholera.—Generally the first symptoms of this disease is diarrhoea in which the droppings will be thin and bright yellow mixed with bright green. The feathers get roughened or stand on end, the wings drooped, the head is drawn down towards the body. The bird rapidly becomes weak and drowsy. The crop is usually distended with food and apparently paralyzed. The bird becomes very thirsty. In acute cases of the disease the bird dies in from one to two days; in other cases death does not occur for a week or so.

Examination of the dead bird shows inflammation of the digestive organs, kidneys and mesenteries. Hemorrhages are found in the heart; blood vessels of the liver are congested. The ureters appear yellow from the yellow-colored urates which they contain.

The disease is mostly spread by importation of affected birds, birds returning from poultry shows, etc. Occasionally a spontaneous outbreak will occur where no new fowls are introduced to a flock. In such cases it is considered that the causal organism was present in the intestines of an apparently healthy bird that was resistant to the disease but that other birds in the flock not being resistant picked up the germs from the droppings of the affected bird and thus contracted the disease.

Every bird showing marked symptoms of the disease should be killed at once and burned, care being taken that none of the blood gets scattered around as the bacteria that cause the disease will be numerous in the blood.

Fowl Typhoid.—This disease is often confused with fowl cholera which it somewhat resembles. Diarrhoea, however, in this disease is very rare. The head of the bird becomes pale, there is a rise in temperature of about three degrees, the bird becomes drowsy and weak and usually dies in from two to ten days. Occasionally a recovery is made. Post mortem examination shows liver enlarged and congested and sprinkled with small gray spots; intestines pale, contents normal in consistency; heart pale with red spots; lungs normal; blood pale. This disease is considered to be a fifth disease. Prevention is the only known treatment. The maintenance of good sanitary conditions is the best preventive.—D. H. Jones, O. A. College, Guelph.
