SPRAYING

(Experimental Farm's Note.)

If the fruit grower, vegetable grower, or flower grower does not spray nowadays, he is almost certain to have inferior products in his orchard, small fruit plantation and garden. There are so many injurious insects and diseases which affect a large proportion of the plants he grows that if they are uncontrolled there will either be no crop left or else the value of the crop will be very much reduced.

There are few of these insects and diseases which cannot be well controlled there will either be no crop left or else the value of the crop will be very much reduced.

over as possible. Every leaf, flower and bud or young fruit missed means a possible starting point for disease or insect pests. In the case of vegetables promptness in the application of a good spray is just as important as with fruits. One does not need to be convinced of the value of promptness in using poison in controlling the Colorado potato beetle as the results

Cook's Cotton Root Compound

The formulae for the mixtures and solutions recommended should be followed as closely as possible. If a man knows the chemical composition of the material, he uses, and has made a study of spraying, he may alter them slightly to meet certain circumstances, but if he knows little about them he should follow closely the instructions given on the Spray Calendar. He should also, spray as nearly as possible at the time suggested. A delay of a few days may mean practically the loss of the mixture or solution to either the Dominion or Provincial Departments of Agriculture for a Spray Calendar.—W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist.

FARM CONDITIONS

Heavy Rain Delays Seeding, Aids Grains.

The following is a summary of reports made by Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture—

Heavy rain during the week delayed seeding, but greatly helped fall wheat, clovers, and the early sown spring grains. A number of farmers on well situated land did a little seeding, as well as plowing and general cultivation.

The high cost of feeding live stock is affecting breeders. Good milch cows are still highly regarded. The milk flow has largely increased with so many herds freshening.

Hogs are growing strong at from $19 to $20 a cwt. Small pigs are selling at from $10 to $15 a pair, chiefly around $12.

Heavy horses are holding their own. Hay is still dear, quotations ranging from $28 to $35 a ton.

Farm labor cannot nearly meet the demand. Wages have never been so high on the farm, running all the way from $45 to $75 a month, with board, and in some instances the figures have reached $100.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house. You never can tell. Many a live man has been fooled by a dead sure thing.

RABBIT RECIPES

These are the days when one's friends bring or send you the fruit of a day's hunting in the woods. Many a housewife has looked at the gift rabbit as a nuisance because she doesn't know how to cook it. She has tried, possibly and it was so tough that the family refused to try it, and she is afraid to make another attempt. Following are some recipes that game lovers have passed on as tried and true:

A baked rabbit stew is delicious if made after the New England housewife's rule. She cuts her rabbit into pieces and leaves it over night in a pan of cold water. In the morning she dries it well. She cooks a half pound of salt pork cut into small dice, then adds the rabbit and cooks until both are a rich golden brown. In a baking dish she puts first a layer of the rabbit, then a layer of thinly sliced onions. When it is all set, she pours over it a cup of water and a cup of tomatoes. Cook in a slow oven for two or three hours. When done, thicken the gravy with flour and butter. Serve with a big dish of creamy mashed potatoes.

JUGGED RABBIT. We often read of jugged rabbit. It is not hard to make. Joint the rabbit and cover it with cold water, to which a cup of vinegar has been added. Leave it in the water and vinegar for an hour. Into a stone crock slice a large onion. Put the rabbit into it and cover with bacon slices. Add enough water to just cover and season with salt, pepper, paprika and a dash of cayenne. Put the cover on tightly and bake in a slow oven for two hours. Thicken the gravy in the "jug."

POTATO SPIRIT

To Supersede Gasoline in Course of Years.

When the oil wells are exhausted, what will the poor motorist do for fuel to run his car? The question may seem to be much on the line of "what shall we do when the sun has burned itself out?" It is recorded that people have actually gone insane thinking of the eternal darkness in which the world will be plunged when the sun is extinguished. There are no cases on record as yet of motorists going insane over the prospect of losing their gas supply.

Yet the extinction of oil and the by-products thereof is far more likely to happen than the extinction of the sun. The limit to the supply of oil has actually been figured out to

AN ORIENTAL GARDEN.

Persian City of Shiraz Retains Much of Beauty.

In the midst of a broad expanse of barren ground lies the flat-topped Persian city of Shiraz, which was once so wonderful a sight as to cause the visitor to cry, "God is great!" and by the fascination and beauty to make him forget forever his native land.

The Shiraz of the present is still fascinating, though its power over the travellers' memory has waned. The stranger may hurry through the narrow streets lined with square houses, but on the outskirts of the city he must linger and dream awhile in the Persian gardens, celebrated in many songs by the poets of the land.

Shiraz is proudest of being the home of two of Persia's noblest poets, Hafiz and Sadi both of whom were enthusiastic over the charms of their native city. The city has changed greatly since their day, succeeding generations still view it through the rose-and-gold light of poet's fancy and still boast of its wonders.

The citizens of Shiraz honor most the man who can quote most of Hafiz; yet his grave in the garden beyond the city, is neglected and desolate. A high brick wall encloses the garden. Within, the tomb of the poet is marked by a pavilion and a marble slab, on which is carved one of his verses. All about the beloved singer lie his followers and admirers.

A Dyspepsia Cure

their graves lead by stones which peep through rank grass.

The gardens of Shiraz have such names of "Garden of the Envy of Heaven," and "Garden that Displays the World," names which they do not always live up to in appearance, because of their owners' dreamy contentment in letting well enough alone. Yet even the uncared-for gardens are deliberately beautiful. Tiny streams wind through the cypress and elm trees shade them pleasantly. Mosses clamber riotously over old walls and a shabbily ornate summer house peeps from among the trees.

WEEDS OF USE.

According to an expert connected with the Department of Agriculture at Washington, most of the weeds are our best farmers, contrary to the usual belief. They are busy, it appears, working their roots down deep into the soil to bring up unclean elements, at the same time making the soil porous. Most of them have other uses, and it is doubtful if a single plant is in existence that illustrates "the cussedness."

The story of hogweed was a good illustration. It got its bad name when it was supposed to be a weed and nothing more—the veriest plague of the cotton fields. A little while ago this same weed was found to be the best forage and hay plant in the

OF COURSE

The young wife entered the green-grocer's shop with a frown on her pretty face.

"These tomatoes," she said, "are just twice as big as those across the street. Why is that?"

"Ah, m'am," said the shopman politely, "these are hand-picked."

The young lady blushed at her own ignorance.

"Of course," she said, hastily, "I might have known. Give me three pounds, please."
