The contest of the Adult Bible Class of our S. S. closed with the Reds as winners and the Blues entertained them at Mr. Wm. Hamby's on Friday evening last. An excellent repast was served and a very enjoyable evening was spent. A feature of the program was a song composed by the Blues and sung to the tune of Auld Lang Syne.

We've met this evening to bring our contest to a close. With friends to greet, good things to eat, All in their very best clothes. Don't lose your head because you're Reds.

We would not change with you; Our colour blue means always true And we're sure you were well fed.

There's Mrs. Wride she smiles with pride, and Mrs. Phillips too; While Mr. Priest has his monstache greased, and Mr. Hamby too.

Mr. Veit, isn't he a sight, All filled with salad and cake. Mrs. Hamby there, you better not stare, Or your face will be out of shape. There's Mr. Cook, how queer he looks, And the jolly Paskins pair; While Mr. Jones he picked the bones, And Laura didn't think it fair.

Now Lindsay Irvine isn't here Because he couldn't get through, But there's Frank Smith, he is frozen stiff, Oh dear! what shall we do? They all had a plate, and the minister ate Till he looked like one and a half, And Mrs. Shaw had better beware Or indigestion she'll have.

Mr. Veit is glad she came to night And that she had a bid; Jack Thomson too, is in a great stew And he has gone off and hid. Now if there is one before we're done Whose name we have not mentioned, Just raise your hand be you maid or man, To slight was not our intention.

And now, dear friends, our song it ends We hope you had a good time; May the Reds and the Blues always be true In the days of Auld Lang Syne.

A committee was appointed to reorganize the Literary and to investigate equipment for hot lunch to be installed at S. S. No. 17. A good program was then given, as follows: Mrs. William Doughty, reading, "Mrs. Brown's Change and Rest"; Miss Edna Saunders sang "Let the Rest of the World Go By"; Mrs. Chas.
