L. O. F. Service
The members of Jarvis Lodge, No. 192, L. O. F., accompanied by visiting brethren from Cayuga and Hagersville, celebrated the 102nd anniversary of their Order on Sunday last by attending the evening service in the Methodist Church. Although the weather was somewhat inclement, it having threatened rain during the day, a very large following of the Order, over ninety members, were present. The church was filled to overflowing by those anxious to hear the pastor in his last public address to the local Order.

Rev. Bro. E. L. Smith took as his theme the context of the story of the "Good Samaritan," Luke 10—30-35. His discourse was clear, concise, and of such a quality as to deeply impress anew his audience with the value and possibilities of the middle link in the chain of Odd-fellowship, in everyday practice and in results, not only from a personal but also a national and worldwide standpoint. Marked commendation was heard from all sides on his remarks.

The work of the choir and assisting artists is worthy of special mention. The solo by Miss Tilbury and the quartette by members of the Oakville choir were of a very high order and thoroughly appreciated. The cornet solo by Mr. Wm. Anderson was also enjoyed.

Rural Mail Men's Pay Too Low
The men of the rural mail delivery service are making another effort to get their occupation placed on a living basis. They are the most wretchedly paid or underpaid of all the people in the public service of the Dominion. It is scarcely possible for a man who carries the mails for average remuneration on a rural route of average length and average condition of roads to make ends meet. The average length of routes is probably about 20 miles. One horse cannot stand 90 miles a day, winter and summer, year in and year out, on the roads of the kind to be travelled by the average courier. Two horses must be kept. The man and his family must be maintained. It is said that in the last year the total mail men's own fault if they take work from the Government at the rates of pay that will not cover the cost of their service.

But Governments must be humane as well as economical. The families of the men who serve it ought to have a chance to live. It is proposed that the present contract arrangements be abolished, and instead of driving a hard bargain with the men, as inspectors feel bound to do in the interests of economy, there should be a standard basis of pay. The men have decided that $70 per mile is little enough. That would make $1,400 a year for a 20 mile route, which is about twice what is now considered the average pay. We think the Government ought to give the petition of the carriers its sympathetic consideration. These men brave the inclemencies of the weather in mid-winter and carry on every business day no matter though the roads may be impassible for other people. Moreover, they have very important responsibilities. The parcel delivery service adds to their load but, what the Government may not take due account of, the mail order business has developed immensely and greatly increased the burden of the couriers' cares and trusts. Not only does he deliver letters that in many cases contain money, but also he takes from every box whatever letters the owner has to send, many of which letters contain orders for business and enclosures for paying therefor.—Mail and Empire.

China at St. Paul's
On Friday evening next at 9 p.m. there will be a missionary gathering at St. Paul's schoolroom to hear an address on her work in China from Miss McIntosh, one of the missionaries of the Canadian Church. For some time past Miss McIntosh has been in charge of St. Mary's school for girls in Homan, and so has been in close proximity to the famine area. She has a wonderful tale to tell of God's work in that great land, just awakening from the sleep of centuries to adopt western ideas, and manners of life. Miss McIntosh is a gifted speaker and has a number of wonderful Chinese costumes and curios. At the close of the meeting light refreshments will be served by the ladies of the Women's Auxiliary. There will be a silver collection to defray expenses and all friends of foreign missions in Jarvis will be most heartily welcomed. Miss McIntosh is only able to spend some ten days in the diocese of Niagara altogether and our town is to be congratulated in having the privilege of hearing as gifted a speaker.

Provincial Highways
Work on the Provincial highways, which was discontinued throughout Ontario owing to spring conditions, will be largely recommenced after the first of May. Reports from all over the Province indicate that the subsoil is settling and surface conditions are such that construction can be pushed from now on. Meanwhile the department has not been idle. Steel drags have been used over such portions of the Provincial system requiring immediate attention. The plans of the department are to have a steel drag stationed on every five or six miles of gravel or rural road. Under this system the roads should be kept in uniformly good condition.

Mrs. Annie Fallis Dead

From the Fleming (Sask.) Review.
The subject of this obituary, Mrs. Annie Fallis, was born in Walpole township, Haldimand County, Ont., 63 years ago, and passed to her reward on April 19, 1921, a striking coincidence being that the day of her death was the day of her deceased husband's birthday. Alexander Fallis, the husband, predeceased Mrs. Fallis 23 years. Shortly after his death she with her family came west to Fleming, in which town and district she has since resided.
Mrs. Fallis was a veritable Doormat in that her life was marked by "good works and alms deeds which she did," both in Ontario and the west. Many indeed are the families that recall with tenderest memory the loving ministrations of this Mother in Israel, who was always so thoughtful of others and self-sacrificing in service, tho' for years battling against ill health. She was a useful and honored member of the Methodist Church virtually from childhood, and her pastor can testify to the fact that, when health permitted, she was an appreciative attendant at all the services of the church.

The funeral service, which was largely attended, took place at the residence of Elijah Anderson, where her death occurred. Rev. J. I. Thorpe, the pastor, conducted the service and paid tender tribute to the worth of this "elect lady" and devoted mother.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful tokens of love and esteem. Mrs. Fallis leaves to mourn her departure one son, Walter, Cupar, Sask., and two daughters, Mrs. Elijah Anderson and Mrs. Alf. George, both of Manson; also many near relatives. Numerous close friends of the family extend their warm sympathy in this hour of grief and loneliness.

The mortal remains were carefully laid to rest in Manson cemetery awaiting a glorious resurrection. "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."—2 Cor., 5: 1.

Passing of The Pioneers

and often with a sense of personal loss of those who came in the early years to the town, or to some of the townships round about, and contributed through their lives to the making of the town a city, and the townships among the finest in the county or province. Of them, there appears often a brief biographical note, giving little beyond the bare outline of a life bravely and worthily lived. It seems a pity that there should not be made and preserved in every municipality at least a worthy sketch of such lives, in recognition of the contribution they made in their day to the general welfare of the community. Such a record would in the course of time furnish valuable materials for historical sketches. They would be an incentive to the next generation to do as well or better than the previous one. They would develop civic consciousness and civic pride. They would help set a standard that no one would care to fall short of, and many would try to surpass. The rising generation would emulate the virtues and achievements of those who went before and blazed the way, and made it easier for those who came after to go further and do better, even, than they had been able to do.

When one thinks of the handicaps of the earlier days and how bravely and cheerfully they first and even the earlier settlers met their tasks, and how heroically they stayed with it, one feels ashamed to grouch and whine when one has to deny one's self this or that, and even sometimes to be content with a horse when one's father or grandfather was thankful for—sometimes, indeed, proud of—a good yoke of oxen. There were compensations even in the earlier years. There were fewer diversions and distractions. More time was spent socially. Fewer books were read, but they were on the whole more highly prized. Clothing was plainer and coarser, but it wore longer, and one didn't feel quite so embarrassed if he wasn't able to buy a new suit or hat every year. It seems a pity—a shame, that the stories of pioneer life should not be written before all the pioneers have passed, with all the wealth of literary material they have stored in their memories of the past. Local papers, perhaps without exception, would be glad to publish any such sketches, if brief, graphic and artistically true—real pie-pictures of real life.
