After the Sunday School session on Sunday morning last a pleasing event and yet mingled with a tinge of sadness, took place. The school felt that they could not let Mr. and Mrs. Cook and Morris leave us for their new home in Waterford without showing some appreciation at least of the faithful services rendered in our school. Mrs. Cook has been teacher of the Primary class for the last twenty-five years, very seldom missing a single Sabbath from being in her place, and much credit is due her for the spirit of our school at the present time.

Although we will miss them very much from their places in the Sabbath School and church we hope and trust that what will be our loss will be Waterford's gain, in that they will find a field for service in the Master's Kingdom.

The following address was read by Miss Ruth Hamby, will speak for itself. The presentation was made by Dalton Somers and Bird Priest, Little Hazel Write and Mary Angus presenting their teacher with bouquets. Mrs. Cook, although taken completely by surprise, made a suitable reply.

Mrs. Geo. Cook:

"Dear Friend,—We, the members of the Rockford Sunday School, deeply regret that in severing your connection with us we will miss you a very much. You have always taken a great interest in the work of the church and school, and have been a faithful and efficient teacher. In the twenty-five years that you have been teacher of the Primary class you have won the hearts of the children, who have grown up and are now sending their children to be taught by you. We know you have helped them and taught them the truths of the Bible. You have always been a true friend in sickness and have sympathized with us in our sorrows, always ready to lend a helping hand.

As a token of our appreciation we ask you to accept this Library table from the school and these flowers from your class members for their value, but as a kindly remembrance of the many friends you are leaving. You will always find a welcome in our church and in our homes. Our prayers and good wishes go with you and Mr. Cook and Morris to your new home. We hope you will live a long, happy and useful life in the service of the Master.

Signed on behalf of the School:—
James A. Priest, Supt.
Wilbert E. Howard, Sec'y.
Mrs. W. E. Hamby
W. J. Howard.

Honey!

Some time ago, during a friendly discussion, the question was asked—What is honey? This may seem at first thought rather a simple thing to ask, and yet—What is honey?

The dictionary yields the information that "Honey is a vegetable product with saccharine properties collected by bees from flowers and deposited in the cells of their combs."

Now this a sufficiently true definition, but if we are looking for something really good to spread on hot-buttered toast, or biscuit, is it not delightful to know that honey is nature's perfect food—the essence of perfume secreted in the innumerable sweet-scented blossoms of the clover fields and gathered by the most intelligent creatures of insect life.

And when the wind is blowing and the snow blowing over these same fields, once noisy with the happy hum of busy bees, will it not be gratifying to have a goodly supply of this delicious and wholesome food ready for daily use?

It is now too late in the season to fill your containers, but we can supply 5 lb. pails at 90c each.

Don't let all the good things go to the city. Get your share.

ARTHUR HGDGSON.
