EDITORIAL

versal brotherhood, is the cause of all individual and social disorders. As mankind lays aside selfishness, conflicts of every kind pass away, the employer and the employee become brothers of the same fraternity; labor unions and capital combinations will co-operate together in the spirit of true brotherhood.

When selfishness passes away, and love, universal love, dominates men's minds, it changes all their conduct, and this in turn changes all their requirements and necessities.

When the nations rise to this unselfish plane they fill their executive and administrative offices with princes of peace—men who serve not their constituents, but rather for the common good; men who serve God. Then men shall know war no more, state limits shall cease to separate, types and shades and complexions of race shall fade into their native nothingness, and all men shall be all brothers and all sons of the All-Loving and All-Embracing Father—God.
