COMMUNICATION.

Nanticoke, April 10, 1922.

To the Editor of "The Record."

Dear Sir—Will you kindly publish the following in your columns:

A second attempt was made to wreck the dam at Nanticoke early on Sunday morning, but it proved to be a failure, owing to the party or parties not having the required knowledge of the explosives used. When Mr. Stone was alive no such dastardly attempts were made, but since his demise they are endeavoring to intimidate Mrs. Stone. An offer was made to the residents living north of the dam, that if they would raise and pay over $100.00, the same would be destroyed and not rebuilt again, but they were either too poor, or for some other reason, this was not done. Now the residents of Nanticoke who stand for law and justice have decided to repair the dam, and will see to it that Mrs. Stone's interests are respected.

Thanking you in anticipation, I remain,

Sincerely yours, A "Record" Subscriber.

County Forests

It is announced that already twelve counties have taken advantage of the Ontario Government's plan for assisting municipal forestry. These counties have acquired blocks of non-agricultural land which, in co-operation with the Provincial Forest Service, will be planted with pine, spruce, and other trees. The blocks of land vary in size from 100 acres up to 1,000 acres. It is expected that several other counties will take up reforestation within the coming year.

The recent ice storm did considerable damage in this part of the county. The shade trees in Jarvis were badly broken up in some cases trees over six inches in diameter were snapped off like matches. Mrs. Jacques, who is not enjoying the best of health had come in for medical treatment, and we are glad to know that she does not feel any ill-effects of the episode.

Shows Wonderful Memory

The following appeared in the Toronto Globe of April 6th. Mrs. Teeter, the subject of the sketch is an aunt of Dr. R. S. Howell of Jarvis:

"One of the oldest readers now living is Mrs. Helen Teeter of Hamilton, who has been a constant reader of the Globe since the first year of its publication, in 1844, 78 years ago.

"Mr. Stanley Mills of Hamilton, who is a son in law of Mrs. Teeter, has the following to say:

"Mrs. Teeter recalls the household thrill of excitement on the arrival of the first publication of The Globe, and among her most pleasant early recollections was the weekly arrival afterward, of the paper."

"After her father's household were through reading it the paper was sent over to the home of her grandfather, Samson Howell, who had emigrated to Canada in 1805 from New Jersey. Samson Howell was born in 1778, and died in 1851. Thus one reader of the early Globe was one who had lived in the time of George Washington."

"Mrs. Teeter is now in her ninety-second year, hale and hearty, and still reads The Globe the first thing each morning. She makes her home with me, her son-in-law. She is not suffering from any of the usual ailments of old age, but has good health, good hearing, good sight and an excellent memory, and attends regularly to her household duties, which consist chiefly in looking after the linen and the mending, which she does most efficiently. She frequently enjoys motor trips to Toronto, Oakville, Beamsville and other places within 25 miles of Hamilton."

"After she was ninety years of age she visited New York City for the first time."

"Her maiden name was Helen Howell. She was born on November 6, 1830, of United Empire Loyalist stock, at the sixteen, on Dundas street in Trafalgar township, Halton county, about twenty miles from what was even then spoken of as "Little York," now Toronto. Mrs. Teeter as a girl of seven remembers distinctly the troublous times of 1837, and can recall vividly the cold, December night, that William Lyon Mackenzie waded through the cold waters of the 16-mile creek, close to her father's home, making his escape toward the frontier hotly pursued by Government soldiers, who were then watching the bridge, over the sixteenth, and with a reward of $1000 for his capture. The neighbors were nearly all in sympathy with Mackenzie, and assisted him in every way they dared."

"Mrs. Teeter enjoys very much the reading of the morning papers, and keeps right in touch with all current events, local, Provincial, National and International."

Beware of Worthless Oil Stock This week the Editor received a letter from an oil promoter of Texas, asking us to advertise oil flotations in "The Record." With Our Churches

Wesley Methodist

Pastor G. Snitherman took both services. In the morning the subject was: "The Saviour and the Maniac" from which the speaker drew many lessons for his hearers to take home and ponder over.

In the evening: "The two prayers" was the theme taken. The prayers of the self contained Pharisee and the plea of the conscious-stricken Publican, were discussed at length. A complete analysis was made of these widely separated prayers and the Saviour in giving this lesson showed that the Publican was the one who received the greater blessing. It is the same to-day and the man or woman who when they go to God in prayer lose all sight and thought of self are the ones whose prayers are invariably answered. Prayer is the keystone of a Christian life and if only people would more fully realize the power of prayer and the results that can be obtained through intercession with Almighty God, it would not be long before the world would be in the throes of a mighty wave of evangelism.

St. Paul's Anglican

The services at St. Paul's were taken by Rev. Arch-Deacon Irvine, of Dundas, and the adherents were treated to two able and helpful discourses. The text of the morning service was the 1st verse of St. Paul's epistle to the Romans where the great evangelist of his day, exhorted his people to give all to the service of Christ. They were not to keep anything back, but were to present themselves as living sacrifices to the cause of Christianity.

The text for the evening was found in the 44th verse of the 19th chapter of the Gospel by St. Luke and the last clause: "The Reverend speaker drew many lessons from his subject and those who were privileged to hear him could not help but be very much benefitted from a spiritual standpoint that we must ever be on the alert for opportunity for service, and when we see that opportunity we must accept it without question. We are required to do God's will and carry out His work in the way he would have us do."

Knox Presbyterian

Both services were taken by Rev. A. W. Hare. In the morning his subject was: "Back to the Old Job." After the death and resurrection of Christ, the disciples found themselves for a time being without a leader and they decided to go back to their old jobs as fishermen. They had toiled all night and caught nothing and were tired and spent. A figure is seen on the sands of the shore and they are told to cast the net on the other side of the ship. Result a net full of fish. When they landed they recognized their Master. He showed them they were wrong in going back and from that time they followed only Jesus and proved to be men of great power in the world. When people get discouraged in the Lord's service they should not falter but press on.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Hare spoke on the life of Oliver Cromwell his favorite text being "I can do all Things Through Christ Who Strengthens me." Cromwell was plowing in the fields, as usual one day, when it was revealed to him that should come out as a leader of the people and force the King and his councilors who were oppressing the people to desist. In the war which followed he lost his son Robert in battle, and still he trusted in God. When one of his trusted officers suffered similarly he commended him to God's hands. In the glory and power which came to him in later life Cromwell never lost his religious fervor.

The Passing of John Deal.

There occurred at his late residence in Walpole Township, on Friday last, April 7th, 1922, the death of the late John Deal, in his 60th year. The deceased was well and favorably known in this district, and his passing was noted with regret by all who knew him. He leaves a widow, two sons and an aged mother to mourn his departure.

The funeral took place on Monday, April 10th, at 1 o'clock. Service was held at the house, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Mercer, of the Cheapside Methodist Church. Interment was made in the Knox Presbyterian Cemetery in Jarvis. The burial service was conducted jointly by Rev. A. W. Hare and Rev. Mr. Mercer.
