

PRINCE ANDREW OF GREECE TO BE COURT-MARTIALED AT ATHENS

Britain Severed Diplomatic Relations With Greece as a Protest Against the Execution of Ministers Whose Policy in Anatolian War Proved a Failure.

A despatch from Athens says:—Inquiry into the responsibility for the Anatolian disaster continues, and the arrest of General Papoulas and other officials was due to new evidence said to have been found.

The Commission of Inquiry has forwarded the report of its investigations into the actions of Prince Andrew during the campaign to the Revolutionary Committee, which, in conjunction with the Greek Government, will make arrangements for his trial.

The following official statement has been issued:

"General Dousmanis, former Chief of the General Staff, and General Vrettos, former Chief of Staff in Asia Minor, have been arrested, and a warrant has been issued for the arrest of General Papoulas, former Commander-in-Chief of the army in Asia Minor.

"The trial of Prince Andrew (brother of former King Constantine), who commanded an army corps at the time of the Sakaria operations, begins next week."

A despatch from London says:—The British are much disturbed over the further Greek arrests, indicating that the Greeks are still unrepentant for their barbarous executions recently of former Ministers, and the British are particularly worried by news that Prince Andrew is to be tried in a few days.

Answering Mr. Hardie, a Labor man, in the House of Commons on Thursday, Prime Minister Bonar Law said the British Government had urged the Greek Government not to permit the executions, and warned that if this step was taken, Great Britain would withdraw its representative. In view of this action the British Government was satisfied by the general consideration that it was contrary to the practice of civilized nations to put to death Ministers who had fallen on account of the failure of their policy.

Extension Course in Export Trade.

A unique extension course, the first of its kind in Canada, has been arranged by the University of Toronto and McGill University. This is a course in the principles and practice of export trade and, though designed primarily for export managers, is open to all whose education or experience led them to take advantage of it.

Beginning on January 15th, 1923, the course will continue for two weeks at the University of Toronto and will then be repeated, during the next fortnight, at McGill University. Principles of International Trade, Economic Geography, Transportation, Trade Cycles and Currents will be the chief subjects upon which lectures will be given. The Commercial Intelligence Service of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, and the Canadian Manufacturers' Association are co-operating for these courses.

The Orator's Warning.

An orator one day ending a passionate warning with a warning. He could have closed his warning in the old proverb about locking the stable door after the horse was stolen, but that was too commonplace. He thought up something better. Then he shouted: "Don't let your fellow countrymen, I beg you, don't wait till the horse takes fire before you summon the firemen!"

GERMANY AND RUSSIA ARRANGE SECRET MILITARY CONTRACT

A despatch from London says:—The Daily Mail, which for a long time has been claiming that Germany is arming for a war of revenge against France, has just published a sensational memorandum sent by a person in close touch with the best informed circles in Berlin, declaring that a secret military agreement exists between Russia and Germany.

The central idea of this agreement, says the Mail, is that Great Britain, the United States and Italy will hold aloof from the war, leaving Germany and Russia free to attack each other. Under this alleged bargain, that while Germany is following the letter of the Versailles treaty regarding the number of officers and men allowed in her standing army, she is sending her best officers into Russia to help reorganize the Russian army. When this is accomplished, says the memorandum, the Russian army will constitute a skeleton to which, at a given signal, immense numbers of German units can be added instantly. German armament firms are being transferred to Russia, it is said, where they are putting out munitions intended ultimately for German use. Russian submarines and mine layers are being planned under German direction, it declared.

A third factor, says the Mail, is the plan of Russia to feed herself and Germany during this proposed war, thereby escaping the effects of a naval blockade. Under this alleged bargain, Poland, which lies between Germany and Russia, must be overrun and crushed so as to enable the two countries to co-operate along a common frontier. This war, the Mail's correspondent adds, is only ten years

IRISH REBELS FACE FIRING SQUAD AT PORTOBELLO BARRACKS

A despatch from Dublin says:—Three young men faced firing squads on Thursday. So far, eight prisoners have been executed at the order of the military court.

There was a dramatic scene in Parliament on Thursday night over the death of the youths, who were Joseph Spooner, Patrick Farrelly and John Murphy. First, Labor and Independent deputies rose and criticized the secrecy of the military courts. They demanded publicity for the trials.

Defence Minister Mulcahy, in answer, recited the circumstances of the arrests. The workers' district in the city. They were arrested a month ago after an alleged attempt to destroy Oriel House. Spooner, it was alleged, had a revolver; Farrelly, a cady explained, had miscarried because six of the men in the plot disobeyed orders.

Mulcahy quoted from a document, which, he said, was found on the men. The documents revealed complete plans for the blowing up of the building and its occupants. The plans, Mulcahy said, were drawn up on Thursday were shot at Portobello Barracks. Many other prisoners are under trial in the military courts and there may be more executions. Absolute quietness prevails in Dublin these nights, but nevertheless there is uneasiness among the people, because of the fear of an attempt at a grand coup. The Government offices and the Ministers and Members of Parliament are under protection of a guard.

Comet Discovered by S. American Astronomer

A despatch from Cambridge, Mass., says:—The Harvard Observatory has received word by cable of the discovery of a comet, by Skjellerup, the South American astronomer, at Cape Town, on November 26. The comet is described as faint. The position given was in the constellation of Crater.

Telescopic photographs taken at Harvard after the receipt of the cablegram show the comet to be brighter than Baade's comet, which was recently discovered, and to be moving more rapidly. It is going south-east at a rate of between three and four diameters of the moon a day.

To-Morrow.

Whatever yesterday was, we have to-morrow. It is worse than useless to brood over the past; to spend our time in mental back-tracking, examining the way by which we came, unless we mean to make that review of our personal history count for a better performance in the time to come. Mistakes are instructive; but he who spends his energy bewailing them destroys his usefulness.

It will not do to live in the past; nor does it serve the purpose for which we were put on earth to live in a rosy dream of the future, without going to work to bring that dream true.

"Some day when I have time," you will hear a man say, and that period of elegant and abundant leisure he imagines seems never to arrive. The disposition to postpone burdens him as day is added to day, and the end of his life comes suddenly and finds him still clutching at the vain shadow of the man he might have been, the things he might have done.

To-morrow quickly becomes to-day, and we must be ready for it. College students are preparing for their developing habits of indolence and tastes of luxury do not think of the life after college as imminent. It seems a long way off. They are inclined to believe that by some automatic process they will be fit for life when life is ready to shock of an awakening when the stern facts confront those who must accept life on its terms, not on their own.

The counsel that we should take no "thought" for the morrow employs "thought" in an ancient sense, which implies an intense anxiety. It means we must not sap our strength by the consuming faculty of worry. If we are to let a dead past bury its dead, even so we are not to borrow trouble against the coming days. We are not ruled out from a careful, rational preparation. We are not advised against a readiness, in mind and soul and body, for whatever the days may bring.

We cannot prophesy what will happen to us; but we can discipline the character so that no misfortune can blight and wreck us. Half the battle is always to grapple courageously with the foe. Many of the victories of the football season have been won on the morale of teams that refused to be afraid of their conceded superiority. They did not get this inspiration to victory by contemplating with grief and dismay their previous failures.

Nor does any of us, in the game of life, derive a conquering spirit in bewailing his lost chances, his flagrant errors of the days that are behind him. He takes hold, with his might, of each hour as it comes, and does his best in it. The past has no power on the future of the man who will not let it down him or becloud to-morrow.

A Mile With Me.
O who will walk a mile with me

Who dares to laugh out loud and free,
And let his frolic fancy play,

Association With Music.
Music is mental only when it is associated with noble elevating ideals, words or actions. Then its importance in the human drama is plain to see. But music by itself is like fire, water or electricity, means are valuable when properly used, but are equally destructive when not properly used. Music may be used to degrade, as it is used in questionable places all over the world. But when music is associated with men and women and children under conditions enabling them to absorb the beauties of the art without any degrading tendencies, its value is infinite.

The mind saturated with the best of music has very little cerebral space for unworthy, degrading thoughts. Naturally it turns towards higher things, and that is perhaps the great human advantage of the best music, whether it comes to you via a great symphony concert, the phonograph, the voice of some famous singer, or by means of the radio.

Algona Trapper Takes Giant Timber Wolves

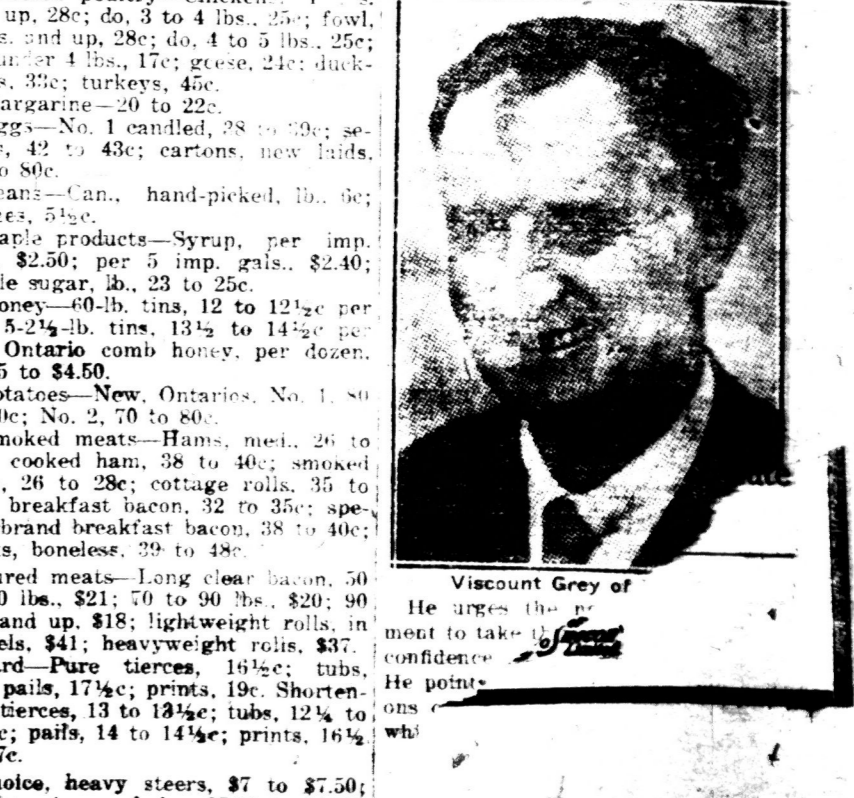

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says:—Walter Grunlund, a trapper at Mile 154, on the Algona Central Railway, brought to the Sault the hides of two of the largest wolves ever trapped in the North country, for which he will receive the Government bounty. Both were grey timber wolves, and one measured over six feet, while the other was five feet eight inches. The wolves were caught in traps. Grunlund was one of the men who discovered the two dead Finlanders at the side of the lake at Regent last August.

The Bells of Valencia.
The cathedral bells of Valencia regulate agriculture to a very strong extent. The bells of the Valencia cathedral tower give life to the ploughman. Their hoarse peals tell the time when each tiller of the soil may open the gates of irrigation channels to release the waters for his parched land. The rigid observance of all the regulations concerning the use of the water supply is guarded by the oldest court in Spain, the "tribunal de las aguas," which is made up entirely of peasants who adjust their own differences in regard to the use of the waters.
