EDITORIAL

Consistency.

Since the present editor has been in charge of the Jarvis "Record" he has endeavored to present to the readers of the editorial columns, as well as in other departments, some thoughts that would be helpful and beneficial to all, and which would be the means of helping the general public to have a better understanding and knowledge of matters that are somewhat outside local spheres of interest. Matters in fact, that have a true national bearing, and which all our people should understand better than many of them do at present.

In presenting these various subjects before "Record" readers I have at all times carefully refrained from saying anything that would put me in the light of having a political or party axe to grind. In my endeavor in this line I believe that I have been fairly successful, judging by the many kind things I have been told. But, of course, it is impossible for even an editor to please every one of his readers, and I hope that if I should inadvertently step on somebody's pet corn, that they will overlook it and not manifest any spirit of revenge or retaliation against me on that account. The editor of the "Record" has positively no political or party affiliations, and is here for the purpose of serving the people of Jarvis, irrespective of party or creed, to the very best of his ability.

Last week I had as my leading editorial an article on "Reciprocity" which was written from the viewpoint of a true Canadian and loyal British subject. On Saturday morning last a subscriber called me up on the phone and requested the discontinuation of his paper. When questioned why he was pursuing this course, he said it was on account of the "Reciprocity" article, and that he would not read such "trash." Of course, he was within his rights in ceasing to be a subscriber and his name was removed from the list. Next week this friend with a groch will likely run over to his nearest neighbor and borrow a copy of the "Record," in order that he may not miss reading any of the editorial "trash," as he calls it. I do not believe that there was a word written in the article under consideration that a true and loyal citizen of Canada could take offence at, and it is not my intention to make any apologies for what I gave the readers along this line. Anything that may appear in the editorial columns from week to week are written from the viewpoint of one who believes firmly in "Canada for Canadians."

But incidents like the above only cause a ripple on the surface and I fully believe that my readers do appreciate the effort being made to give them a better, brighter and more up-to-date local paper than they ever received in the past. In the future, as during the past month, I shall continue to "hew to the line and let the chips fall where they may."

The Hydro-Electric Assault.

The continued assaults on the Hydro-Electric undertakings, which have been for a number of years under the able and safe guidance of Sir Adam Beck, are to be greatly regretted. The people generally of Ontario, possessing as they do knowledge of the great practical success of Ontario's Hydro-Electric enterprises, must not under estimate the attacks that are now being made on this great public undertaking. These attacks, made frequently before for the sole purpose of discrediting Hydro-Electric enterprises, should be met with a strenuous and intelligent opposition.

In 1908 the Government authorized the appointment of a commission to investigate and report upon the proposal that Niagara power be supplied for municipal and industrial purposes throughout Ontario. In its very infancy this movement met with a strong and deeply entrenched opposition. These active obstructionists were busy night and day in circulating the report that there was no market for the proposed power and electrical energy, and agents of the private corporations, whose monopoly was threatened got busy and signed contracts with the users of "white coal" for periods of time extending over five years at rates much lower than they had been charging for the same service. But in spite of these obstructionists the movement was continued. About the time that the municipalities were ready to begin the transmission and distribution of light and power, a special and insidious propaganda was conducted through the leading financial papers of the world, claiming that the Ontario municipal power undertaking would unfavorably affect the credit of not only this province, but the whole of the Dominion of Canada. The Federal Authorities were appealed to in an attempt to have the Hydro-Electric legislation vetoed.

Engineers of standing and experience were engaged by the vested interests to try and make out a case against the provincially-owned Hydro-Electric System. In 1913, Mr. R. P. Bolton, a New York engineer, issued his tirade against the Hydro-Electric Commission. It consisted of a book entitled "An Expensive Experiment," containing nearly 300 pages, and copies were widely circulated throughout Ontario and Canada, including members of both Houses of Parliament. The writer's excuse for this piece of interference was that "he desired to inform the taxpayers of the State of New York of the facts relating to the attempts to fasten upon our state a speculative experiment such as that in Ontario."

A little later on the Hydro-Electric Commission was treated to an adverse report by an American clique headed by Senator Ferris and some of Albany colleagues.

During the past year the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has had numerous general charges made against it—such charges, for example as that its officers refused to give information; that incorrect information has been given official sanction, that the cost of the Chippawa power development is unwarranted; that the Chippawa Power Canal cannot carry the quantity of water for which it has been designed; that the Nipigon power plant is economically unsound, and that it, too, has cost in excess of what it should, and that there will probably not be a market for the Nipigon power, and so on.

In 1921 the Hydro-Radial projects of certain municipalities, working through their Hydro-Electric Power Commission was attacked. The matter was referred to a tribunal known as the "Sutherland Commission." This Commission reported and definitely published its findings. Here the Hydro-Electric Power Commission had before it, not general, but specific statements with which it could definitely deal. The Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, Sir Adam Beck, recently published a "statement" in reply to the Sutherland Commission—a copy, we understand will be found in the libraries of Ontario—in which the findings of the Commission are specially dealt with. In this statement by Sir Adam it is conclusively shown that the majority report of the Sutherland Commission, to use Sir Adam's words, is "permeated by misunderstanding or by the misinterpretation of evidence, and by the omission of essential data to an extent which nullifies its usefulness as a judicial document and as a criterion by which either to approve or condemn the Hydro-Radial project under consideration." Since the issuance of this statement by Sir Adam Beck, those who previously had been so fond of using the Sutherland Commission Report as justification for their adverse and superficial criticism appear to have entirely dropped this document.

The municipalities of our province must not be stampeded by the charges made against the Hydro-Electric Commission. Only a couple of weeks ago Mr. W. S. Murray, another of those American engineers, came out with an adverse report on the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission. The question is who are the people who are paying these foreign experts for their work in criticizing Canadian projects. What would be thought if Canadian financiers and engineers were to go unsolicited to the U. S. to warn the people of that country that their State-owned enterprises were unsound. We believe that they would soon be officially kicked back across the boundary line and advised to look after our own affairs.

We need the continued development of Hydro-Electric projects and Radial Railway lines. Here in Jarvis the extension of these would bring a boom to our people and we trust that the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario may continue its undertakings until there will not be a place in Ontario that will not have been blessed with the results of its enterprising spirit.

At the hearing of a deputation from the Dominion Alliance given by Premier Drury and Attorney-General Raney recently, the Premier thus expressed himself:—"I give you my word that this government will not introduce any amendments to loosen the Ontario Temperance Act; but let us entrench ourselves before we go further."

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

A bill has been introduced in the Provincial Legislature giving the township councils power to expropriate gravel pits. This would result in better roads on the side lines.

Municipal nominations and elections are held during the Christmas-New Year's Season, and there are many objections to this time of the year being taken up in this manner. Those in favor of a change cannot agree on what time of the year would be the most convenient to hold municipal elections. Some would hold them in October, while others favor February. We believe that if the last Monday in November were made Nomination Day, and Election Day the first Monday in December, it would meet with the approval of the majority of the electorate. The old Councils would hold office to the end of the year and there would be four weeks between time of election and the taking of office.

In referring to the new Minister of Labor in the King Cabinet at Ottawa, "Toronto Saturday Night" had the following comment:—"Those who looked with some degree of misgiving on the choice of Mr. Murdock by the Prime Minister have been agreeably surprised so far. The Minister of Labor has been doing much and saying 'little.' He has taken hold like an old hand, and has learned the lesson quite early in his ministerial career that the politician who keeps his mouth shut and his ears open, not only gets there, but stays there." We have personally met Hon. "Jim" Murdock, and we believe that he will be true to the traditions of unionism, and we know that organized labor will be given a square deal every time by the Dominion Minister of Labor in the King Administration.

Recently when addressing the Toronto Board of Trade, Hon. Sir Clifford Sifton, during the course of an address, made use of the following in referring to the immigration needs of Canada:—"We must get rid of the idea that by showing people into Canada we shall secure prosperity. It is quality, not quantity that will build up this country." Mechanics, artisans and shopkeepers are not needed under any conditions, and it would be a mistake if they are encouraged to come to Canada at present. The slogan now should be "Farmers Wanted." What Canada needs and must have are settlers who have been reared on the land, who know what farming means, and are used to hard work. Settlers who are willing to go on the land and are willing to adopt themselves to new conditions will be welcomed. The adoption of a policy of careful selection at this period in our country's history is imperative. Indeed, a policy of most rigid restriction must be enforced if our country's deepest and best interests are to be properly guarded and wisely advanced by the Immigration Department of the Dominion. In the past too much attention was given to quantity and not enough to quality. The errors of the past must not be repeated.
