Ballinger of the Pittsburg Post. They left on the S.S. Aranmore for Digby, en route to the Kegemakoogee district where they will hunt hig game. The party are the guests of the C.P.R. The trip was arranged by Joe Pago, baseball writer and sport enthusiast, who is a special representative of the C.P.R. He met the majority of the writers in New York and accompanied them to Mentreal, Que-companied them to Mentreal, Que-bec and as far as this city. The visitors were met at the sta-tion by G. Bruce Burpee, district passenger agent of the C.P.R., and C. B. Allan, secretary of the New Brunswick Tourist and Resources Association, and driven to the Boyal Hotal

Menti al A press dispetch from Calgary crediting to the secretary of the Federated Shop Trades there a statement to the effect that the C.P.R. and certain other railways had be applied to the considering of the considering had knowledge of the conciliation board's award some days before it was filed with the department of labor and in consequence thereof had paid the reduced rates of wages as set by the conciliation beard, prior to the announcement of the award by the department of labor, was brought to the attention of George Hodge, assistant general manager of the C.P.R., Eastern lines, who conducted the ease for the railways before the board of conciliation and investigation.

Mr. Hodge denied most emphatically the correctness of the statement. He said further that as far as the C.P.R. was concerned it had ne knowledge of the report until it was received at the company's effices on September 4, and that inwhich had previously been put into effect as from July 16, were issued under date of September 5, making the reduced rates effective as from Anomat 16

Mosse Jaw—"One hundred per cent more grain has been handled by the Canadian Pacific Railway up to the middle of October this year, than over before for the same perinan ever percer for the same period. That will give you an idea of the way the grain is being taken out of the country," said Mr. Chas. Murphy, general manager of Western Lines of the Canadian Pacific Pathana

He expressed himself very well pleased with the movement of the crop throughout the whole West. When asked as to the possibility of a grain bleckade, Mr. Murphy stated that the Canadian Pacific was acceptant all properties and properties and properties of the control of the c fered. He pointed out that on one day ever four million bushels had been taken out of Fort William and Port Arthur. Mr. Murphy pointed out that there was difficulty in getting bottoms on the lakes to take the grain out, but the elevators were far from being full, and the Canadian Pacific still had the big Trans-dian Pacific still had the big Transcona elevator empty.

Already Mr. Murphy stated there was a large quantity of grain being shipped out from the head of the lakes by the all rail route. He declared that he could see no grain blockade in sight.

Mr. Murphy pointed out that the Canadian Pacific had moved 14,000 cars off the Saskatchewan division cars off the Saskatchewan division of the railway. This was five thousand more cars of Saskatchewan wheat than had been moved in the same period in any year.

He also pointed out that even with the unprecedented grain move-ment the Canadian Pacific was moving from 250 to 275 carloads per day from the Western coal mines.

"There was thirteen thousand tons moved yesterday," he declared. I was here three weeks or a month ago and at that time I stated we were moving 250 to 275 cars of coal a day, and the movement has been kept at that ever since. We realize, he declared, that the wheat can be moved during the cold weather and people can live, but if the cold weather comes and there is no coal there will be great suffering in the esuntry, and possibly worse.

BEDDING FOR STABLES

Straw, Peat Moss, Sawdust and Shavings Considered.

Straw Preferred for Many Reasons -Measuring Hay In the Mow and Lambs—Farm Trespassers Scored.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The materials used for bedding domestic animals are generally straw from the grain fields, peat moss from the swamp, or shavings from the saw or planing mill. Straw is used to a greater extent than any other material, first because of its abundance; secondly because the stable offers a medium for transferring this byproduct of the field to manure, and thereby facilitating its return to the land; thirdly because it is a good absorbent of liquids. Straws from oats, peas, rye, wheat and oats vary in value as a litter or bedding material. The hard rye and wheat straws, while durable to the wear of animals, is not as good an absorbent as the softer oat, barley and pea straws. Wheat straw not being highly valued as a feed finds its greatest use as a stable bedding. The nitrosen, potash and phosphorus contained in a ton of wheat or rye straw has a value at commercial fertilizer prices of $2.25, oat straw $2.60, and barley straw $2.10. Straws have a further value in that the organic matter content is large, and of such nature as to be particularly valuable in soil improvement. Peat moss is valuable as an absorbent of liquids, it is also valuable for its nitrogen content. The manure from stables where peat moss is used as bedding is generally of considerably higher value than the manure from any other source. It has one objection in that it is not as clean as straw. Sawdust and shavings, while serving the purpose as a litter or bedding material, add little value to the manure. Useful as an aid in keeping the animals clean and preventing the loss of the liquid portion of the manure, sawdust or shavings serve a good pur-pose; but it must be remembered that the fertility value of sawdust is low. Those who have straw should use it. Those who have neither straw er peat mess should then use the sawdust or shavings.-L. Stevenson,

The following simple and practical hints regarding the measuring of hay are worth noting and filing:

Tons of Hay In the Mow.

Sec., Dept. of Agriculture, Torento.

To find the number of tons of hay in a mow multiply the length by the breadth and then by depth of hay. This will give the number of cubic feet. Divide by 400, the resulting number will be the answer in tons. Hay varies in density due to the character of the grasses or clover from which it is made, the length of time it has been stored, the size and depth of the maw. Timothy and other grasses pack closer than clovers, shallow mows do not pack to the same density as do the deep mows, so judgment must be used in selecting a factor above or below 400 when estimating. The hay in the bottom of a mow 20 feet deep will be packed into half the space observed in a mow only 10 feet deep. If the mow should be 600, if 20 feet deep 350 will be mearer correct. A fair average for all conditions is 400. Tone of Hay In a Stack.

To find the number of tons of hay in a stack, measure the overthrow distance of the stack and multiply by the length and breadth in feet, then divide by three. The resulting number will give the number of cubic feet. If the hay has been standing two months and the stack not over 12 feet high, divide by 500, the resulting number is the answer in tons. -L. Stevenson.

Hand-feeding Lambs. Lambs that have lost their mothers or have milkless mothers can be sucseasfully reared by using goat or cows' milk in a rubber-nippled nureins bottle. The newly-born lamb requires a small quantity of milk at very frequent intervals. Two or three teaspoonsful every hour for the first day with a gradual increase as the lamb grows older. Many make the mistake of giving a newly-born lamb all the milk it will take at two or three feeds a day. This treatment is very frequently fatal. Keeping the feeding bettle clean and sweet and using the milk from a fresh cow and feeding every hour or two until the lamb is four weeks old will generally give good results. Milk may be continued as a feed as long as the lamb will take it. Should bottle-fed lambs develop scours, this condition can be checked usually by heating the milk to boiling point and then cooling quickly. A teaspoonful of castor oil given with the milk is also an effective remedy.—L. Stevenson.

Farm Trespassors Scored Mrs. Bess Wilson, editor of the Redwood, Minn., Gazette, very properly censures town people who drive through country districts and raid the NOTICE is hereby given in pursuance farmer of his tame and wild fruit and other products. "Everything that grows on a farmer's farm belongs to claims against the estate of the said John Mitchill, deceased, who died on or without his permission to that farmer, farm belongs to that farmer, farm the way the Gazette puts it. "To take even wild fruit without his permission. without his permission is as much a misdemeanor as to take his corn, potatoes or chickens,"

Improving the Sink.

An old wooden sink was made handier by attaching a sine drain board. Three shallow grooves were beaten into the zine, and it was nailed to the wooden frame with a slight incline so the water easily trained back into the sink.

The free use of an effective lice powder is always in order with poul-try. A dustbath is very essential in ridding the fowls of lice. Whitewashing is effective against vermin. Use kerosene on the roosts and in the racks to exterminate mites.
