

SETTLERS IN VIRGIN COUNTRY OBLIGED TO START PIONEERING AGAIN

One Hundred and Fifty Families in Chicoutimi Parish to be Dispossessed When Big Storage Dam is Completed at Kenogami.

A despatch from Quebec says:—One hundred and fifty settler families in the parish of St. Cyrille have been notified that this is the last summer they will be able to farm the acres which they have wrested with devoted labor from the bush. Two years ago this municipality was organized by the Quebec Running Streams Commission to provide for the flooding that the dam will cause in the townships of Kenogami, Jonquiere, L'Assommoir, La Barre, Mesy and Plessy.

A survey board of three officials is now engaged in estimating the values of the buildings and farms to be sacrificed and arranging for the amount of compensation to be paid to the dispossessed settlers.

Then the little village they had built at St. Cyrille, the fields they had won from the bush acre by acre, will be covered many feet deep by the water of the great new storage basin which will come into existence when the huge dam at Kenogami is completed. Four hundred and fifty settler families will be expropriated by the Quebec Running Streams Commission to provide for the flooding that the dam will cause in the townships of Kenogami, Jonquiere, L'Assommoir, La Barre, Mesy and Plessy.

"KLONDYKE" BOYLE HAD BUSY CAREER

ADVENTUROUS CANADIAN PASSED AWAY IN LONDON.

International Figure of Repute in Europe Held Many Important Commissions.

A cable was received on April 14 at Woodstock, Ont., announcing the sudden death in London, England, of Col. Joe Boyle, known the world over as Klondyke pioneer and adventurer of great resource and courage.

The late Colonel Boyle was born in Toronto on November 8, 1867, and went with his parents to Woodstock when a young lad. His father, the late Charles Boyle, was known as the dean of thoroughbred horse racing in Canada, and for years conducted a large racing stable. When the horses were sent to the United States racing tracks, young Joe was sent along as a manager, but he did not stick long to the racing game, for when he was but eighteen years of age he slipped away on a merchant vessel from New York for a cruise around the world. Two years or so later he turned up again in Woodstock, and was found around his father's race stable.

Col. Joe Boyle.

A romantic figure passes from Canadian life in the person of "Klondyke" Boyle, who numbered among his adventures the making of peace terms between Russia and Roumania. He was greatly loved by the Royal family of Roumania for his services to them and was killed by the Queen herself after entering a stroke, which followed a strenuous trip through the war zones from Russia.

His Trail for Klondyke.

It was in 1898, in the early days of the gold rush to the Klondyke, that Joe Boyle fell in with Frank Slavin (a boxer of some repute in those days), and together they made their way to Dawson City. Things broke badly for the pair in the North country, and the Colonel was in dire straits. Boyle came out to seek the supplies for the starving miners, but while organizing a relief expedition times brightened, and the Woodstock man went to Ottawa and secured large land concessions, and went back once more to try his luck.

He worked hard until he made sure he had struck something good, and then in order to avoid his claims being made known as the Canadian Klondyke Mining Co. With increased financial assistance good progress was being made, when the war broke out and halted development.

Provided Machine Gun Battery.

Col. Boyle equipped and sent over seas a machine gun battery composed of fifty picked men, and this did splendid service at the front. In 1916 he went over to London on business, and while there was commissioned by the War Office to go to Russia to reorganize the transportation system of that country. He was there during the revolution, and for about a year nothing was heard of him. He next turned up in Roumania, where he became prominent by his work in destroying the rich oil wells in the face of the advancing Austrian army, so that they would not fall into enemy hands. He had many wonderful experiences there. He on one occasion saved sixty Roumanian deputies from death at the hands of the Bolsheviks at the risk of his own life.

It was he who at great risk carried the peace terms between Roumania and the Bolsheviks from Jassy to Odessa by aeroplane, and in doing so he suffered a stroke. He was nursed back to health by the Queen of Roumania, who sent a letter of grateful appreciation to his father, the late Charles Boyle, expressing her thanks for the services of his son.

Adventured in Search of Oil.

Following the armistice Colonel Boyle was appointed as extraordinary commissioner for Roumania, and organized a relief campaign for the people of that country. During the past year or two he had been connected with the Royal Dutch and Shell Transport Co. in seeking oil concessions and developing oil wells in Mosul, Caucasus and other parts of the Near East. Last summer he had another exciting experience with the Bolsheviks, when he secured the release from a dungeon in Tiflis of a member of his staff and his wife. He returned to England last fall in poor health, and had been under the care of doctors and nurses since then.

CROP PROSPECTS GOOD IN RUSSIA

Increased Area of Winter Grain Fields—Plentiful Supply of Farm Labor.

A despatch from Moscow says:—Agricultural authorities in Russia concur in the opinion that the present winter has been favorable to good winter crops. It is estimated that winter grain fields this year, in comparison with last year, have increased their areas on an average of 18 per cent; in female districts, 42 per cent; semi-starved districts, 20 per cent; and in the rest from 3 to 4 per cent. It is hoped the favorable conditions now prevailing may increase the area during the coming spring sowing time by 20 per cent, as compared with last year.

The problem of farm labor is not worrying Russia; there are more hands than the country can absorb at present. The Government has advanced to the agricultural population about 20,000,000 puds of seeds, and to cover the lack of working cattle the Government has taken measures to obtain it from Mongolia and Kirghis steppes.

Earth to Moon by Airplane in Eighty Days

A despatch from Paris says:—The moon is 74 miles nearer the earth than astronomers thought. This discovery has been made by Abbe Moreaux, of the Bourges Observatory, as a result of special studies during the last month.

In announcing his discovery, he illustrates the distance from earth to moon—thirty times this planet's diameter—but points out that at the speed of modern airplanes it could be covered in eighty days, just the time it took Jules Verne's hero to get around the world.

10,000,000 Fish Eggs Dumped Into Lake Erie

A despatch from Kingsville, Ont., says:—Ten million eggs of whitefish and herring, the largest hatch ever made here, will be carried out by the government tugs two miles into Lake Erie and turned loose. The moving out of the ice recently decided the hatchery officials to make the "dump" without further loss of time.

Clear as Mud.

"Did he tell you the way?"

"No, he only gave me directions."

THE BRIDEGROOM AND HIS BRIDE

One of the latest pictures to reach Canada of Prince Albert, the King's second son, and his bride, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, whose marriage took place on April 26. Prince Albert is shortly to be made a Governor-General of one of the Dominions representing the King, his father.

CANADIAN CONSUMER PAYS HIGH PRICE FOR UNITED STATES GOODS

A despatch from Ottawa says:—How $100 worth of goods imported from the United States by a Canadian wholesaler, under a duty of 35 per cent, because of pyramiding of profits on the cost of the goods, on profits and taxes paid, cost the consumer in Canada $247.20 by the time the goods had passed through various hands was shown to the special Agricultural Committee of the House, on Thursday by Isaac E. Pedlow, retail merchant, of Renfrew, Ont., and a former member of the Commons.

In the case of goods imported by a wholesaler and then, in manifold form, passing in turn through A Chapter's End?

Are the sands of Irish rebellion at last running out? Charles Burgess, Erskine Childers and Rory O'Connor are dead. When Childers, the real brains of the rebellion, was executed Lilliam Lynch took his place.

And now Lynch has been shot to death in a running battle. Eamon de Valera is fleeing to some new hiding place and the women supporters of his rebellion and his few faithful lieutenants have been scattered.

Ten thousand "irregulars" are in Irish jails. Sixty-seven of their leaders have been executed. Lynch, the last first-class fighting man in the rebel ranks, is gone.

De Valera no longer counts. The rebellion he has fostered seems to be burning itself out where it is not being smothered by the Free State. The archives of the Republican Government are in the pockets of De Valera; his headquarters wherever he hangs up his hat. If he ever had any authority over his semi-bandit leaders and his wild guerrilla men, it has gone.

The Free State army has been strengthened and taught discipline. Dublin is quiet. Irish railways again are maintaining their schedules.

Halifax and Prince Rupert Linked by Radio

A despatch from Prince Rupert, B. C., says:—Radio communication tests between Prince Rupert and Halifax, N.S., have proved successful. The tests were carried out by Jack Barnaley, of this city, communication being established in a few hours.

Happy Once More

To the thousands of Canadians who love the outdoors and especially the sport of fishing spring spells freedom to seek and prepare their food in the open for precious week-ends. The three fishermen in the picture are about to enjoy the success of their day's fishing in salmon cooked over a camp fire. Roughing it for a night or two is the nearest many modern men can get to an expression of their pioneering instincts.

Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa says:—

In order to secure the continuance of the forests of Ontario, provincial and other nurseries are making preparations to produce up to twenty million seedlings per year. There are large areas in the province which are suitable only to the production of timber, and it is a portion of the program of the Ontario Forest Branch to replant these areas.

This, however, is but one means of continuing the forest production. The more important and at the same time the most productive method is to protect the forests already existing and encourage natural reproduction. To do this it is essential that care be exercised and forest fires prevented. The Forest Branch is doing good work but needs the help of all interested in the province's welfare.

SIEGE OF IRISH CAVE HAS DRAMATIC END

Three Republicans Drowned While Endeavoring to Escape and Four Captured.

A despatch from London says:—The spectacular siege of the little band of Irish Republicans, which had been holding out against the Free State forces in a cave 100 feet from the top of the Clashmeeloon Cliff, on the wild shore of the Shannon, in County Kerry, has come to a sensational ending.

Two of the men who had been fighting under a machine gun since Monday night, fell from the cliff into the Shannon while trying to escape in the darkness of Wednesday night, and were drowned; Commander Lyons of the hillside fortress, dropped 100 feet to the beach while being hauled up the cliff, but rose and was shot and killed while trying to escape, and the four others of the little party, including Walter Stevens, of London, were captured, according to a despatch to the Central News from Tralee.

The men in the cave, evidently believing their position insecure, were endeavoring to rally forth and reach the protection of an adjoining cave when the casualties occurred. The body of Commander Lyons was washed out to sea by the rising tide.

The Sultan Hits Back.

The exiled Mohammed VI, who escaped from Turkey upon a British warship, has made an appeal to 300,000,000 Moslems to sustain him in his rank of Sultan and Caliph in spite of the decision of the Kemalists whom he describes as "men of mixed ancestry, of no religion and no patriotism."

An Efficient Librarian.

A school teacher in a western town, wishing to learn more about the stories of Edgar Allan Poe, inquired at the delivery desk of the local library for the Gold Bug and added: "I can't seem to find it in the catalogue, but I am sure you have it. A friend of mine had it out last week."

The librarian, who was new and very young, glanced at the drawer of the card catalogue over which the teacher had been pouring and then smiled.

"No wonder, Miss Smith," she explained with patient gentleness. "You were looking under 'fiction.' I think that if you turn to 'entomology' you won't have any trouble."

Fitted for the Scaffold.

A dinner was given to celebrate the completion of a new church. When the health of the builder was proposed, he rose to his feet, coughed, and said: "Gentlemen, I am more fitted for the scaffold than for public speaking."

Incomplete Return.

"What did you get for Christmas, Bobbie?"

"I got a lot of stuff, but pa ain't through playin' with it."
