able, then the milk of goats or cows may be used. If the ewe or mother sheep has been well fed on oats, bran, clover and few roots for at least a month before the birth of the lamb, there is little likelihood of a milk shortage for one lamb. Lambs that have unkind mothers usually need some assistance to obtain nourishment. The mother sheep can be held by hand or tied with a halter while Ismet Pasha would change his mind, days. The transfer of lambs from gime in Turkey and, to some extent, the way depends largely on the sense of smell to identify her offspring. should a ewe have but one lamb, a day old, and it is desired to have her feed a second one, rub the two lambs together until they have the same smell and then test the ewe's ability to identify. If a ewe loses her lamb and it is desired to have her adopt and feed another one, such can be done by removing the skin from the dead lamb and placing such on the back of the lamb that it is desired she should adopt. This must, of course, be done in a comparatively short time; but cutting a slit in each corner of the pelt through which the legs of the living lamb may be passed, it is easy to keep the skin in place for a few days. Twin lambs frequently do not get sufficient milk for best development, and again the strong lamb will get more than its Close attention is necessary to make such adjustment as will insure the lambs getting a fair share.

When lambs are not getting all the milk that they need from their mothers, provision should be made to supplement such by teaching the lambs to drink cows' milk from bottle or by way of placing choice bits of fodder and grain in a small feed trough where they can reach it without being disturbed by the older sheep. Bran, ground oats, cracked corn and oil cake meal are very desirable concentrates for lambs. Fresh water and salt should always be available in the pens, yards or pasture. The amount of grain to feed will depend largely upon the use that it is desired to make of the lambs. Lambs for the 'hot house lamb" trade require liberal grain feeding, while those for breeding, or ordinary markets should limited within the bounds of protable feeding. With lambs for excondary importance, and the grain ceding is more liberal than it is market type. Lambs that are grain He also pointed out it leaves the led from the beginning will reach market weight six or eight weeks earlier than those not receiving grain until the commencement of the fattening period. When grain feeding is too liberal either before or after weaning, the lambs will depend upon the grain feeds, and not eat as much grass or other roughage as is in keeping with profitable feeding. The amount of grain to feed must be determined by the age of the lamb, the purpose for which it is being reared, and the coarse feeds available Grain feeding from the time that the lambs begin to feed is a profitable per day does not reduce the lamb's take up our burden and face our appetite for grass and other coarse feeds. Only a Youth, but Never Knew a Boyhood

George Adams is a very weak boy—he's so weak he can't even turn the pages of a book without feeling pain. He has a good many brother and sisters and his parents are very poor. So when George put on long trousers—he was just 12 at the time—he became a man and toek upon himself the task of earning money for the family.

He went to learn a trade in an iron foundry, where fumes and hard work undermined a weak system and sowed future trouble. Now and then one other working member of the family would cease earning through siekness or loss of job, and George would have to keep his nose to the grindstone a few more hours each day to make up for it. His life was just work, work, work, until one day he dropped on the floor. The company shysician, who examined him, prescribed a year or two at the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. He can't understand why he never had a boyhood and none of the good things of life, but he's fairly happy—he knows separation from his family safeguards them. He's content, and he still has hope.

There are many just such deserving cases in need of treatment at the Muskoka Hospital. Will you lend a

"Don't Worry About Me" Tom's Assuring Message

On a little farm away up north Tom lived with his parents and one brother. His father, well up in years, found himself unable to centinue the hard work of farming, so Tom took up the burden. The income was not large, and the lad signed up with a lumber gang working nearby—aswing legs, stripping bark and driving the teams. Altogether these two jobs, farmer and lumberman, kept his day so well filled that he had time for little more than sleep. Neture rebelling at this heavy burden—consumption claimed another vietim.

After trying various ways to overcome his physical weakness, he went to the Muskoka Hospital. His parents are anxious about him, they send the other son to see him often, for they are old and feeble and journeying is a hazardous undertaking to them. Tom's own troubles are never so real to him that he forgets others. He nake for those about him, lives for little bits of news about his home, and never fails to send this message back, "Don't worry about me. The people here sure do treat you the National Sanitarium white."

A wonderful work is being done by the National Sanitarium Association. The death rate from tuberculesis in Ontarto has been reduced by more than one-half during the last twenty years. It needs your help to make its efforts still more effective.

A Deserved Diploma--Certificate of Health

Miss M—— lived in the Ottawa Valley, not far from the capital, with her mother and young sister. Work seemed the natural thing when she left school, and, accordingly, she started out to get what she could for her services. Progress was not fast, but at least she did not stand still, and her earnings were always increasing.

With such prospects it seemed that her little sister could get the chance that she had been denied—a University education. The baby of the family went to Queen's, and this year, her alma mater gives her the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Naxt year she's going to do better Master of Arts. But here's where the sadness cames in. The elder sister, broken in health by overwork, is no longer able to assist. She is a patient at the Muskoka Hospital for Consumettes, but it is hoped that she toe will sherily graduate—with "A Certificate of Good Health." Seventeen thousand patients have been cared for by the National Sanitarium Association in its hemitals in Muskoka and at Westen. East of them have been restored to health and happy homes. You can share in this great work if you will.
