"Let us hope and pray that the good shepherd of the department will receive our requests more favorably this year and better results will follow." He referred to the statement made by Mr. Rapsey that the department desired to co-operate with the fishermen and he felt would grant 90 to 95 per cent of the application's requests if they were reasonable.

In speaking of the ups and downs of the fishing industry, Capt. Robinson described it as a "complete system of ifs." If the fishermen got the fish, if the fish was not too high, if the royalties were not too excessive, and if the price of fish was right, they might make some money.

Mr. Hart, in his talk on co-operative marketing, referred to the wonderful success that the California fruit growers had had in the co-operating distribution of their products. They had worked it down to a science, keeping closely in touch with the government meteorological reports and shipping carloads of fruit to distributing centres ahead of warm periods. The billboard advertising of the raisin growers with that well-known catch phrase, "Have you had your iron today?" was another evidence of the effectiveness of co-operative marketing. The association of raisins with iron, an important requirement of the diet, was a clever idea, and he suggested that a similar advertising campaign might be undertaken by a co-operative fisherman's marketing association in associating fish with brain food. To make co-operative marketing a success, however, he warned it was essential that each member take an interest in the promotion of the organization as if it were his own private business and work for the continual improvement of the organization. Without that co-operation the fishermen could not hope to get maximum results.

Conservation, a Vital Question.

Mr. McLeod was frank in his remarks about the conserving of the supply of fish in Lake Erie and stated that he had listened to a good many arguments advanced by members of the association during the past three years, but he had never yet heard a member discuss the vital need of conservation. It was a question of as much if not more importance than that of catching the fish.

"Lake Erie is one of the greatest bodies of water on the North American continent so far as the fishing industry is concerned," stated Mr. Rapsey. "Is not, then, the conserva-

Rodgers, Captain; T. Underhill, 1st Lieutenant; Thos. Caldwell, 2nd Lieutenant; Lewis Miller, 1st Foreman; Chas. Johnston, 2nd Foreman.

On Friday evening of last week a large number of the members and friends of the Methodist church here raided the parsonage, and presented the respected pastor, T. W. Jackson and his wife with a pair of beautiful black fur coats. The coats are of a very superior quality and could not have cost less than 70 or 75 dollars. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson here wish to tender their sincere thanks to all concerned for very noble and generous gift.

Meat Trade Balks at Heavy Weights.

"The day of the heavy weight has passed," says E. F. Ferrin of the animal husbandry divisions of the University of Minnesota in referring to conditions and demands of the meat trade. "Light weights are easily disposed of, while heavy carcasses are hard to move. Overweight lambs have long been heavily penalized in price when sent to market, and the same condition prevails with hogs and cattle. It does not pay any meat producer to market more weight than is necessary in getting his stock in fairly well fattened condition. Only about 15 per cent. of the market demand is for steers weighing more than 1,300 pounds. And to sell well these must be good to choice beefs offered during the holiday season. Yearlings weighing 900 to 1,100 pounds, often termed baby beef, are the desired kind, and more recently 650 to 800 pound weights are in strong demand.

"A three dollar spread between prices for butcher hogs and smooth heavy sows frequently prevailed on the South St. Paul market last summer. No one can escape the verdict that lard is unwanted in these days of common use of vegetable oils and compounds.

"Of course a reasonable degree of finish is necessary to make any carcass of meat tender and juicy. Thin animals, no matter how well bred, make unpalatable tough meat. But it is a mistake to market nowadays an overfat or heavy meat animal, because the consuming public does not want that kind of goods."

An egg is 65.7 per cent. water. You cannot expect your pullets to lay unless they have an unlimited supply of clean, fresh water at all times. Always keep the hoppers full of grit, oyster shells and charcoal.

"Don't Worry About Me" Tom's Assuring Message

On a little farm away up north Tom lived with his parents and one brother. His father, well up in years, found himself unable to continue the hard work of farming, so Tom took up the burden. The income was not large, and the land seemed up with a lumber gang working on sawing logs, stripping bark, etc. Tom, a farmer and lumberman, was so well off that he had a little more than sleep. Nature's rebellion at this heavy burden—consumption claimed another victim. After trying various ways to overcome his physical weakness, he went to the Muskoka Hospital. His parents are anxious about him, they send the other son to see him often, for they are old and feeble and journeying is a hazardous undertaking to them. Tom's own troubles are never so real to him that he forgets others. He asks for those about him, lives for little bits of news about his home, and never fails to send this message back, "Don't worry about me. The people here sure do treat you white."

A wonderful work is being done by the National Sanitarium Association. The death rate from tuberculosis in Ontario has been reduced by more than one-half during the last twenty years. Among them will be those with automobile accidents, and it will probably be found that the railway level crossing is still the most favored location for traffic mishaps of varying degrees of seriousness. This time of the year may also be a favorable one for considering the matter of accidents at railway crossings, especially in this locality. Ottawa has a number of railway crossings, although not more than the average Canadian city. Automobile accidents frequently happen at these crossings, and they are usually caused through negligence on the part of car drivers. An obligation to use reasonable care rests upon all users of the highway, whether they walk, drive a wagon or drive a motor car. Most people do exercise that care, the more cautious ones even being wise enough to stop, look and listen. But there are others who do not. Official records of accidents at the railway crossings in Ottawa prove this beyond doubt. There are actually on record cases where men have driven their cars into trains at a standstill on a crossing.

Here is an illuminating case. On December 18th an engine was going towards Bank street on the railway tracks with four cars and a crew. When approaching Booth street crossing the whistle was sounded and the bell was rung automatically. A motor car, to quote the official report, "coming at about 30 miles an hour attempted to cross in front of the engine. Brakeman Little, who was riding on the front footboard, gave the engineer the signal to stop and he applied the brakes in emergency. The automobile stopped right in the middle of the crossing and the engine came up against it and pushed it a few inches, leaving a small scratch on the car. The driver would not give his name, but drove off, remarking, 'Oh, to hell with it.' That is not all. Automobile accidents have happened on city crossings which are protected by watchmen or in other ways. From November 9 to 27, 1922, on the crossings at Booth (corner Britannia), Queen and Main streets, there were ten instances, four of which were on one way, of local car drivers disregarding stop signals or getting on to the tracks with the gates down. To most persons this sort of recklessness is almost incomprehensible, and seems to warrant the most drastic reprisal measures. A driver who disregards a watchman's signal deserves the strongest condemnation. To prevent accidents, it is essential that motor-drivers should co-operate with the railway officials. The great majority may be depended upon to do this. And the drawing of attention to the foregoing facts may induce the minority to think a little more deeply on the subject.

Blanche Garneau Is Platform.
QUEBEC, Jan. 22.—Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec, who has represented the county of Montmorency in the Legislative Assembly for 23 years, opened his election campaign in his constituency Sunday, when he addressed a meeting of electors at Ste. Anne de Beapre after High Mass.

The Premier said that the Conservatives had saved as their leader, and Blanche Garneau as their program, Aime Dion as mascot, and L'Homme Libre (the new Conservative weekly) as hand towel.

Blanchi's Sentence Reduced.
OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Commutation has been granted in the case of Frank Bianchi, alias Planco, now in jail at Sandwich, Ont., who was to be executed on January 25. A reprieve was granted to Bianchi until February 8. Consideration of his case by the Cabinet Council has resulted in commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

Ants Flee Before Tartaric Barrage.

A small amount of moistened tartaric emetic and powdered sugar in equal parts will drive ants away if placed near their haunts. The mixture should not be thrown out when no longer required, but should be set aside for another emergency. Add a little water and the mixture can be used as before. Care should be taken to keep it out of the reach of little children.

Automobile accidents have happened on city crossings which are protected by watchmen or in other ways. From November 9 to 27, 1922, on the crossings at Booth (corner Britannia), Queen and Main streets, there were ten instances, four of which were on one way, of local car drivers disregarding stop signals or getting on to the tracks with the gates down. To most persons this sort of recklessness is almost incomprehensible, and seems to warrant the most drastic reprisal measures. A driver who disregards a watchman's signal deserves the strongest condemnation. To prevent accidents, it is essential that motor-drivers should co-operate with the railway officials. The great majority may be depended upon to do this. And the drawing of attention to the foregoing facts may induce the minority to think a little more deeply on the subject.

Blanche Garneau Is Platform.
QUEBEC, Jan. 22.—Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec, who has represented the county of Montmorency in the Legislative Assembly for 23 years, opened his election campaign in his constituency Sunday, when he addressed a meeting of electors at Ste. Anne de Beapre after High Mass.

A reprieve was granted to Bianchi until February 8. Consideration of his case by the Cabinet Council has resulted in commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment.

Ants Flee Before Tartaric Barrage.

A small amount of moistened tartaric emetic and powdered sugar in equal parts will drive ants away if placed near their haunts. The mixture should not be thrown out when no longer required, but should be set aside for another emergency. Add a little water and the mixture can be used as before. Care should be taken to keep it out of the reach of little children.

Among them will be those with automobile accidents, and it will probably be found that the railway level crossing is still the most favored location for traffic mishaps of varying degrees of seriousness. This time of the year may also be a favorable one for considering the matter of accidents at railway crossings, especially in this locality. Ottawa has a number of railway crossings, although not more than the average Canadian city. Automobile accidents frequently happen at these crossings, and they are usually caused through negligence on the part of car drivers. An obligation to use reasonable care rests upon all users of the highway, whether they walk, drive a wagon or drive a motor car. Most people do exercise that care, the more cautious ones even being wise enough to stop, look and listen. But there are others who do not. Official records of accidents at the railway crossings in Ottawa prove this beyond doubt. There are actually on record cases where men have driven their cars into trains at a standstill on a crossing.

Here is an illuminating case. On December 18th an engine was going towards Bank street on the railway tracks with four cars and a crew. When approaching Booth street crossing the whistle was sounded and the bell was rung automatically. A motor car, to quote the official report, "coming at about 30 miles an hour attempted to cross in front of the engine. Brakeman Little, who was riding on the front footboard, gave the engineer the signal to stop and he applied the brakes in emergency. The automobile stopped right in the middle of the crossing and the engine came up against it and pushed it a few inches, leaving a small scratch on the car. The driver would not give his name, but drove off, remarking, 'Oh, to hell with it.' That is not all.
