CORNER STONE LAID AT CAYUGA

The Stone has Written on It, "Built 1923, Haldimand, 1923."

The Corner Stone of the new Court House at Cayuga was laid in the presence of a large number of people on Friday afternoon, July 13th, 1923.

His Honor Harry Cosshutt, the Lieutenant Governor of Ontario.

The Lieutenant Governor arrived at Cayuga about 1.30 and he along with the speakers, County Councillors and press representatives had luncheon at the Mansions House.

The next part of the proceedings was carried out at the Court House. The Lieutenant Governor was presented with a silver trowel, and after the stone was lowered, he declared it well and truly laid. The crowd then adjourned to the south of the building in the shade of the trees where a platform had been erected for the speakers and a number of seats provided.

The bands from Caledonia, Cayuga, Dunnville and Hagersville were in attendance, and rendered excellent music.

Dr. R. N. Berry, M.P.P., the Warden of the County acted as chairman in a very capable manner, and introduced the speakers.

The Lieutenant Governor is a most democratic man although the representative of the King. In his introductory remarks he said that he felt quite at home at the spot where he was speaking as his home had been on the banks of the Grand River in the neighboring County and also because his grandfather had lived and carried on business in the Village of Cayuga, and he had often heard his father speak of Cayuga in his young days. He spoke of the fertile lands of this County, which were so richly watered.

He said that the laying of the Corner Stone of the Court House brought to his mind the British Laws which were respected and admired by the people of all countries and that these laws were based on the word of God. In his address he did not forget to refer to the ladies and of the important position which they occupy in life; neither did he forget to speak to the boys and girls who were present, and advise them to fit their square life and to do what was right. Those present were very much pleased with the Lieutenant Governor's eloquent address and also with his very pleasing personality.

Judge Hopkins, the next speaker, dwelt particularly on the idea of British Justice and said that the peace of all the world were continually talking of British Justice and that he hoped as the country got older that the people would be asked not only for British Justice but that justice would be so administered in Canada that in the years to come people would be asking for Canadian Justice.

Judge Colter, the next speaker, referred to the fact that he had just returned to the County of Haldimand, fifty-three years ago, and at that time there were only three brick residences in Cayuga. He referred to the officials who were in office at that time and said that they were all well educated, dignified men who set a high example to their successors in office. He said that the late Steveson, the first Judge of Haldimand, was a most conscientious man, and that he was continually worried whether a judgment which he had given might have done an injustice to some person, and this perhaps impaired his usefulness. He went on to refer to the pioneer days and the difference in the mode of living at the present time.

Mark C. Senn, M.P. was the next speaker and he dwelt on some of the same thoughts which had been referred to by the previous speakers. He said that he was sure those present would all wish that the flag which would always fly over the building being erected, would be the British flag.

Harrison Arrell, K.C., was the last speaker and he referred to the fact that much of the work now done by the County Councils was, previous to the County Council Act, done by the Justices of the Peace, at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace. He referred to the fact, that previous to Haldimand being set apart as a County that Rainham and Walpole belonged to the Talbot District, whose headquarters were at Vittoria and afterwards moved to Simcoe. He stated that the rest of the County sent their representatives to the old town of Niagara. He dwelt on the high class of men who had served the County as officials and as County Councillors in the years gone by. Speaking of the future he mentioned the fact that the stately building being erected on the picturesque spot on which it was built would be there long after the youngest present would have reached life's journey's end; that county councils of generations yet unborn would come up to this building to transact the County's business; that it still be administered impartially in the future as in the past, and that the same tragedies in connection with criminal trials would be enacted in the new building; and suitors would still come up to have their differences settled. He also referred to the fact that the Tories and the U.F.O.'s would meet at their conventions in the new building to argue that their respective parties were giving the best and most economical government.

The chairman referred to the fact that the lands on which the proceedings were taking place formerly belonged to the Indians and had been granted to them by the British Government on account of their loyalty to the British Empire.

Solves Mystery of Eagle Hunt

(By Wireless)

EDITOR'S NOTE—After much expense and many difficulties, The Record has obtained from its special correspondent in the Eagle Happy Hunting Grounds, an interview with the famous big bird hunter Dr. Leatherdale and Richard Nelles. The correspondent explains that the eagles of the hereafter speak only in poetry but the last of them to enter there naturally is yet a novice in poetical expression and his meter is somewhat mixed. The Record does not assume the responsibility for any of the views expressed by the eagle.

Eagle Heaven, July 19.—In response to your request an interview has been obtained from the eagle so much discussed on your earth just now and we hope your thousands of readers will appreciate the great difficulty at which it has been procured.

The eagle says:
Tell me not of the fear of battle,
Tis naught but a bunch of prattle;
Tell me naught of the fear of death,
For our great Eagle God hath saith,
"Humans deal you a kindly blow
When they sent you here from a down below."

You want to know of those gunners—
Without weapons they'd be runners—
Of their big guns, I had no fear,
Had I reached them, 't would have been a pier.

They rested on when friends so dear
Paid their respects to their remains,
For they'd forgotten earthly pains,
For I was an eagle with no fear,
For sound of danger I had no ear;

Swung of wing, of head, a talons too,
Their many courage I knew they'd rue;
Their man-made plumage, I'd rend and tear
Even till I reached their underwear.
I did not meet them face to face,
'T was their guns that beat me in the face.

A rifle spit, then a shot gun spoke,
And I was a cripple for my wing was broke.
Still I felt I was more than a match
For any little human I could catch,
For that pair of shivering creatures
With their handsome, chalk-like features,
Their man-made plumage, I'd rend and tear
Even till I reached their underwear.

I did not meet them face to face,
'T was their guns that beat me in the face.
A rifle spit, then a shot gun spoke,
And I was a cripple for my wing was broke.

Still I felt I was more than a match
For any little human I could catch,
For that pair of shivering creatures
With their handsome, chalk-like features,
Their man-made plumage, I'd rend and tear
Even till I reached their underwear.

I did not meet them face to face,
'T was their guns that beat me in the face.
A rifle spit, then a shot gun spoke,

INSPECTOR REFUSES TO TASTE LIQUOR

License Inspector Edmonds "thought" the contents of a bottle found in Arthur Belbeck's garage on June 19 was "drinkable liquor" but he emphatically refused to taste it at the trial here Tuesday before Magistrate Massey.

The appearance of the stuff, a dark brown, almost black fluid caused considerable doubt regarding its fitness to drink and even the crown attorney, Harrison Arrell K.C., seemed unwilling to ask for a conviction and suggested executive clemency if a conviction was registered. Mr. Belbeck's counsel would not agree even to that and asked for an analysis of the supposed liquor. Mr. Belbeck said it was limited his mother gave him two years ago.

The case was adjourned three weeks.

ENROLL NOW

Although the Robinson Business College of Waterford has been very materially enlarged, the prospects are bright for the largest attendance in the history of the school, beginning Tuesday, Sept. 4. It will be well, therefore, for all young people from Hagersville and vicinity to reserve a seat at the earliest possible date. Just write or telephone the Principal, O. U. Robinson, that you wish him to keep a place for you and then call upon him later to talk over the details of your course. In case you cannot conveniently call at the office advise him to that effect, and he will either call upon you or have his representative do so. The Robinson Business College is an accredited member of the Business Educators' Association of Canada.

Frank Bourne, his wife and two children, motored over from Chicago, spending their two weeks' holidays with his grandfather, C. E. Bourne. They returned to Chicago last Saturday after visiting Hamilton, Grimsby, Niagara Falls, etc.

HOT DOGS ARE POPULAR FARE

H-o-o-t D-o-o-g, G-r-r-r.

The pale stars twinkled through the milky way and looked down on a peaceful scene at Hickory beach last Friday night.

The hum—and it seemed in that environment a sort of friendly hum—of an occasional mosquito kept time to the lazy wash of the waves of Eric on the shore. A cricket chirped and a frog was heard in the distance. Once in a while a bass broke water and added a discordant note.

All else was still. But how soon the scene was changed. A shout in the distance, the blare of an auto horn, the rattle of tin, the soft laughter of girls and the deeper rumble of the laughter of men intermingled with the usual chatter of the small boy.

Soon the hazy darkies were split by a bon fire and then another sprang up and through the talking and laughing came the higher note of sizzling hot dogs. For the Young People's Guild of Knox Presbyterian church was holding a weiner roast. About 65 of them were there. Andy Miller was master of the hounds and he kept them stirred and spitting grease until all had eaten sufficient—some times more. Reg. Leatherdale was looking after the rolls, while Rev. W. T. Brown, Dr. Leatherdale and all the others who were husky enough wielded the axe or hunted-drift wood to keep the fires going.

When every one had eaten, and eaten well, a chorus or two of well known songs, a story or two by Rev. W. T. Brown, refusals to contribute to the program by some of the others composed the program and then "Auld Lang Syne" was sung.

But the night was not yet over. Some kindly soul remembered Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilson had just returned from their honeymoon and a charvari was proposed and it took no coaxing to induce the crowd to stop at the Wilson home in a body. The discordant music of tin pails and pans mingled with the shouts of the serenaders and the shrill notes of auto horns. Then the Wilsons passed chocolates and cigars, the crowd sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," gave a cheer for the bride and groom and went home.
