SOLVES MYSTERY

For two men who would call each other brave when they knew he was nothing but a knave. The battle's lost: The battle's won. I may be dead, but I'm in the sun. And those two men who killed me Bestowed a blessing they never will see. They have given you a tale of a mighty battle. It's nothing more than infant's prattle. Each has called the other a hero. Would they had fought in the days of Nero. They could have known the pigmies they were; They would have known how an eagle can tear; They would have known their puny change; Before the victors they'd have to dance. The battle is over, I have no regrets. To die in battle was my best bet, But their death by man-made chloroform Was not the one to which I was born: To battle man with nature's gear Is something an eagle will never fear.

SON OF LOCAL MAH IS LAUDED IN WEST

Herbert J. Rodgers referred to in the following article from the Massey-Harris News is the son of Andrew Rodgers, of Jarvis. "Mr. Herb J. Rodgers is one of the oldest general agents connected with the Yorkton branch, in fact he was transferred from the Saskatoon branch to the Yorkton branch in 1912 when the Yorkton branch was opened. As far back as 1902, Herb Rodgers was connected with the company at the local agency at Moosomin, and in 1905 he gained some experience as a collector out of the Regina branch. At a later date he linked up once more with the Saskatoon branch and then with the Yorkton branch. He did very good work on the C. N. R. line and on the north-east section of the province before being transferred to his present block with headquarters at Wynyard. He is one of the best known men in that section of the province and has a fine bunch of agents who are doing all they can to bring his block well up amongst the leaders of the West. Herb has every confidence that practically every one of his agents will reach the objective of a 50 per cent increase in business this year, and is looking forward to a real good collection season in the fall of 1923. Those who have known him and worked with him for so many years extend their best wishes and expect to see him go over the top on sales for the present season.

STRIKE NEARS CRISIS

Dynamite and Violence Are Feared at Sydney.

SYDNEY, N.S., July 16.—There was no change in the strike situation in the Cape Breton area over the week-end, but there is apparently an increasing tension and an expectation that the week may be a critical time. The British Empire Steel Corporation miners in Cape Breton are standing fast, and a delegation speaking for them is now in Springhill endeavoring to induce the men there to change last week's decision to continue at work.

In Sydney the Steel Workers' Union, which decided on Friday to continue the strike, held a crowded mass meeting Sunday, at which speakers who talked of victory and denounced the Governments and the corporation were cheered to the echo. No disorders occurred during the week-end beyond the looting of a provision store at Dominion No. 1, but in police circles it is stated that threats to blow up property with powder or dynamite from No. 2 colliery have been reported, as well as plans to attack power houses in various parts of the colliery field. Another report is of threats to tear up the rails of the Sydney & Louisburg Railway to prevent the further movement of coal from No. 2 bank into Sydney. As a result of these reports increased vigilance is being shown by the Provincial Police and the military, and new plans are being made to meet any situation that may develop.

An effort to bring out the round-house men of the Sydney & Louisburg Railway and the freight handlers with them is being made by the miners, but with what prospects of success is uncertain. The miners' chiefs are now in communication with A. R. Mosher, head of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, with a view to ascertaining the attitude of that organization, with which the freight handlers are connected, and in an endeavor to obtain the union support. Appeals for support are also being sent to many other unions. From the miners' local at Timmins, Ont., a promise of $500 has been received.

FRENCH GROW DEFIANT

Premier Poincare Will Not Listen to British Offer.

He Has Made Speech Attacking Idea of International Commission, Which Is Keystone of British Scheme, and Also Remains Firm on Ruhr Occupations—Italy and Belgium May Join Great Britain.

LONDON, July 16.—Premier Poincare's speech at Senlis Sunday, makes impossible in advance any French acceptance of the note to Germany which British statesmen are now drafting.

M. Poincare attacks the idea of an international commission, which is the keystone of the British scheme. He also remains firm regarding the Ruhr occupation, which Premier Baldwin seeks to end by a general agreement under which Germany cease passive resistance, on condition the French evacuate after a certain settlement is concluded.

The political effect here of M. Poincare's stand will probably be to strengthen the Baldwin-Curzon wing of the Cabinet against the die-hards. There are no new developments in the "diehard revolt." Many think it has fizzled out already. J. L. Garvin, editor of the Observer, belittles talk of a split, but adds: "It is a rather notorious possibility that a press campaign may be started, it will be very directly met and will fail." This refers to a possible onslaught of Lord Rothermere's press and the Morning Post.

According to a story now going the diplomatic rounds, a famous Englishwoman, with an equally famous sharpshooter of tongue, told French Ambassador De Saint-Aulaire, at a reception, that France must be losing in the Ruhr.

"Pour quoi, madame?" asked the Ambassador.

"Because," was the reply, "Italy, who always changes to the winning side, has left you and come to us."

More important in the report that Foreign Minister Benes, of Czechoslovakia, who has been intermediary between London and Paris, has told Mr. Baldwin he believes Franco-British agreement is impossible as the two countries are too far apart to find a common ground.

The Daily Herald, organ of Labor, will print an editorial saying M. Poincare's speech means understanding with France is hopeless. The article says: "Italy is with us. If we wipe out the debt she owes us, we will keep debt from Belgium also, we shall detach the Belgians from a venture they never much liked, and of which they now acknowledge the failure."

"Having forgiven Italy and Belgium their debt to us, we should press the French for payment of the enormous sum they owe us. At the same time we should urge the United States to join an international conference to decide how much Germany can pay and how it should be paid. And we should formally abandon our claim to any share of that payment, which actually we abandoned long ago."

"Thus we should prove we are ready to give up something if our doing so will benefit the world. We should further agree to submit all our mandates to a League of Nations that includes Germany and Belgium. There would be hope of improvement following our gesture of sincerity and sacrifice. Only by these qualities can the world be saved from fresh disasters."

HAD SKULL FRACTURED.

Strange Accident Caused by Exploding Automobile Tire.

INGERSOLL, Ont., July 16.—Struck in the forehead by a piece of metal, when an automobile tire exploded at Thamesford Saturday, Joseph Peters, of Toronto, had his skull fractured. Immediately after the accident the injured man was rushed to Alexandra Hospital here and operated upon to relieve pressure on the brain. While it was learned that Peters was conscious, his condition is regarded as extremely grave. With his youngest son, 11 years old, Peters was motoring to London. When he was approaching Thamesford he had a blowout and stopped to have the tire repaired at a garage in the village. Soon after the tire had been inflated, Peters stooped to pick it up. It exploded as he reached for it and he received a terrible blow in the forehead by a fragment of the valve stem, a strip of the skull between two and three inches in length being crushed.

Tide Cut Off Retreat.

QUEBEC, July 16.—A double drowning occurred Sunday afternoon at Ste. Petronille, Island of Orleans, in which the victims were Mrs. A. Beland, of St. Adolphe de Duboulay, Wolfe County, near Sherbrooke, and Frank Agnona of this city. The accident occurred while the two victims in company with Mr. and Mrs. John Degan, and their sons were bathing in the St. Lawrence river. The tide was low when the party started to bathe and they had to go out far to reach the water. While they were bathing the tide started to rise and when they tried to regain the shore they got into deeper water and being unable to swim were drowned before aid could reach them.

Ruling After Fifty Years.

PARIS, July 16.—After considering the question for fifty-one years, the French courts have finally ruled that wife-beating is not legalized in France.

A domestic quarrel in May, 1872, resulted in a beating for a Parisian woman who immediately lodged a complaint with the authorities at Chambery. If the husband who did the beating were now alive he might in principle face a jail term. Both litigants are dead, however, but the Supreme Court of France ground out the decision just the same.
