

There's time in the package

Time to do the many things ordinarily put off on wash-day. For Rinso does not keep you standing over the wash-tub, rubbing until your back aches and your hands are red and sore.

Rinso, an entirely different kind of soap, soaks clothes clean. Rubbing and boiling are unnecessary. The big soapy Rinso buds gently loosen the most ground-in dirt without weakening a single thread.

The Boy Scouts

Concerning School.

When school doors all over Ontario close for the summer vacation in a few weeks time they will close forever for many boys. Lots of boys, because of family circumstances and other reasons, must drop out. Many others, however, will drop out for no other reason than that they have reached the age when the law does not require their further attendance and they have a good chance to get a delivery boys' job at the corner grocery.

If they will, Scoutmasters can do a great deal in the way of encouraging them to remain at school. A little quiet talk with the fellow who wants to drop out may induce him to go back in September for another year, or to finish his High School course, or even to go on for a college course. There are lots of arguments which do not need to be detailed here. But the main one is that Canada needs trained men, and all she can get of them. The training time as compared with the unskilled worker.

In camp, this summer, talk the school question through with your older boys. Have them face the issues involved with full knowledge. And encourage them to decide to be in their places when the school bell rings again at the close of the long vacation.

The Maximum Goal—Via Camping. Scouting would not be Scouting without camping. In fact, camping may be considered the very foundation and backbone of the whole Scouting plan. But one might ask, "How about the Laws and the Principles that the Scouts are supposed to be taught? Ah, there is the point. These are implanted in the heart of the boy and made part of his life not by preaching or teaching theoretically.

The very fundamental principles of citizenship training are the very ones that are at the bottom of successful camping, namely: unselfish service, or in the motto of the Three Musketeers "One for all—all for one."

Then comes the real, deepest, penetrating influence of camp life—the love of nature. It is getting away from modern over-civilization, from material things and routine living in the open, to become acquainted with the real, true, the beautiful, that works its own quiet automatic influence on the life of any responsive human being.

Out among the big things, the heights that gleam afar.

A fellow gets to wondering what means each distant star;

He may not get the answer, but somehow every night,

He feels among the big things that everything's all right.

Pulling Mr. Spider's Leg.

The domestic spider has domestic difficulties. For example, his wife will not always let him eat in peace; she because he has a fly and won't share it! Mr. William M. Savin, writing in Natural History, gives this rather amusing account of Mr. and Mrs. Spider at home:

One summer's day at nightfall I found a male domestic spider on the web of a female and placed a fly close to them. Both rushed for it, but as the male happened to be the nearer he swatched it and proceeded to devour it. The female seemed to be greatly annoyed and pulled at his hind legs for some fifteen minutes while he fought her off as best he could without turning to face her, feasting as he fought. She then became resigned and returned to her former position several inches from him.

When I placed another fly in the web the female promptly ran to it and swatched it, then dragging the fly behind her, but in doing so she took an indirect route and, passing the male, gave his hind legs several additional yanks apparently to apprise him of her good fortune in also securing prey. An act that might be interpreted to be the woman's "last word."

Six Rules for Prevention of Fires.

1. Matches.—Be sure your match is out. Break it in two before you throw it away.
2. Tobacco.—Throw pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stubs in the dust of the road and stamp or pinch out the fire before leaving them. Don't throw them into brush, leaves, or needles.
3. Making Camp.—Build a small camp fire. Build it in the open, not against a tree or log, or near brush. Scrape away the trash from all around it.
4. Leaving Camp.—Never leave a camp fire, even for a short time, without quenching it with water or earth.
5. Bedding.—Never build bunkfires in windy weather or where there is the slightest danger of their escaping from control. Don't make them larger than you need.
6. Fighting Fires.—If you find a fire, try to put it out. If you can't, get word of it to the nearest fire ranger at once. Keep in touch with the rangers.

You'll need a blackboard, a slate or something else upon which you can write with chalk. Make 20 little circles, numbering each as in the illustration.

The problem is to rub out all of the circles in five rubs. That is easy. It becomes a little more difficult when you learn that you must rub out at each rub a group numbered with one that is necessary to rub out an even number of circles each time.

The secret (that usually does not occur to the person to whom you present the problem) is that it can be done by beginning at the bottom. Rub out 20, 19, 18 and 17 at the first rub, 16, 15, 14 and 13 at the second and so on.

(Give this out and paste it, with one of the series, in a scrap-book.)

From an Old House

"He—Yes, after the dentist gave me the anesthetic I knew no more." She—"You knew no less either, surely."

Moving from An Old House.

When it has come and gone—that last Dread Day—

When, after feverish weeks of aching knees And fruitless seeking for a moment's ease, The final fatal van has rolled away; When, in the flower-beds, once trim and gay, Pale scraps of paper flutter aimlessly, And stray, untidy straws lie carelessly Just as they fell from some intrusive stray;

When, in a word, the Great Remove is done, Like mourners round a corpse, we gently speak; Ignore the fact that every floor was weak, And say, The garden had a fine rich loam; And, seeing it stand vacant in the sun, Mourn for the dear House that once was home.

When giving gifts to the young, it is in mind those whom God has blessed with speech. A home blanket or horse food may be a triple gift, blessing the horse, the owner, and the giver.

"At times indigestion, gas bloating and heart palpitation tortured me till I thought it would drive me frantic. My appetite was so poor I scarcely ate enough to keep going, and I grew so weak and worn out I had to let my homework go. My head ached till I thought it would split, I had fearful dizzy spells, and couldn't get a good night's sleep.

"I spent enough money on medicine to buy a home, but nothing helped me until I started on Taniae. I now have a splendid appetite, my digestion is perfect, and I always feel strong and well, for Taniae has built me up to robust health and I will always praise it."
