

DISPUTE BETWEEN GREECE AND TURKEY IMPERILS LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

Allies Worried Over Failure of M. Venizelos and Ismet Pasha to Reach an Agreement on the Question of Reparations.

A despatch from Lausanne says:—The great Mohammedan festival of Bairam, when the followers of Mohammed relax and rejoice after their thirty days of fasting, brought no peace or gaiety to Ismet Pasha on Thursday, nor luck to the Near East conference.

The situation between Turkey and Greece over the problem of reparations is grave, and the conference presumably is imperilled because all direct efforts by Ismet Pasha and Eliphtheros Venizelos to settle this dangerous "out of court" failed. The Angora and Athens leaders after a fruitless session, agreed to disagree and submit the issue to the conference in an attempt to find a solution. On the respect for the Turks' religion, the allies proposed that no formal session of the conference be held Thursday, but the Greco-Turkish reparations dispute is so serious that both Venizelos and Ismet felt justified in utilizing the festival by striving to reach an accord. M. Venizelos took the initiative, suggesting a meeting with the noted Turkish general, probably with the idea that the Bairam festival would exercise a softening influence on the controversy.

Both the Greek leader and Ismet succeeded in piercing the other's armor of resistance. Ismet insisted that Turkey could pay no reparations whatever to Greece, but expected to receive an equitable sum for damages caused by the Greek armies in Asia Minor, when he asserted, they burned towns and villages during their retreat and laid waste the whole countryside.

Turkey, he declared, could not abandon the principle of Grecian reparations, but in a spirit of conciliation, stood ready to leave fixation of the actual amount to arbitrators.

M. Venizelos pleaded Greece's cause with fine eloquence; he painted a picture of Greece struggling to succor over a million refugees who had been driven out of Turkey during the terrible war and attempted to show with figures that the Hellenic nation was in such a serious financial condition that all payment of reparations was out of the question. On the contrary, he contended, Greece should receive reparation from Turkey because of the economic disaster caused to the Greeks when they fled from the Turks, abandoned homes and fortunes.

If Turkey is justified in asking damages, Greece was equally justified and perhaps the two accounts could be balanced. What Venizelos wanted was a clean slate on the reparation account, both Turkey and Greece calling it square.

Ismet Pasha could not see this and the conference adjourned.

The allies are greatly worried over the developments, as they had hoped their good offices would lead the way to a direct settlement between Greece and Turkey. They will continue their mediation efforts, but everybody on Thursday night conceded that there was danger of Greece breaking away from the conference and resorting to arms unless some satisfactory compromise is reached.

Turkey wants 4,500,000,000 gold francs reparations and Greece says she wants 5,000,000,000 gold francs from Turkey.

THE SPORT OF A PAST ERA IN THE DRAMA OF CANADIAN CIVILIZATION

When in 1919 the city of Calgary held a monster Stampede or Frontier Day celebration to celebrate in a manner appropriate to the locality the return of Western men from the war, drawing together in the City of the Foothills the continent's best riders and ropers, its most daring performers at the old sports of the range, old timers shook their heads sadly and said there would never be another. With the disappearance of the range and its romantic pursuits it was becoming increasingly difficult to gather together in one spot the superb horsemen and women yet clinging to a past era, to collect a sufficient number of really bad horses to thrill a continental gathering, or find the old type of wild range cattle to test the mettle of the people of the range.

Yet Calgary, one of the last localities to cling to the fringe of a past era, is confident of staging an equally thrilling and entertaining event this summer, and the little city still claims wide attention as one of the very few remaining places on the continent still able to stage such a mammoth and stirring drama. It will be a last effort to arrest the progress of time, when for one week the cloak which civilization and modern development have thrown over the country will be removed and the city again dwell in the era which gave it birth and prestige.

Fifty thousand dollars in prizes has been calculated to attract to the Alberta city such as the doughty riders of the range as have not been absorbed by gentler callings. It will be regarded as perhaps the last grand reunion of the great ranch brotherhood. Riders from both sides of the border will compete against each other, and the first of their calling from every section of the country take part in their dangers and thrills, will comprise the daily program for one week.

The Stampede presents an unique opportunity to the traveller in Canada this summer to witness what is probably the passing of the old Canadian ways to the Western part of the American continent, and the area of such a diversion became narrowed down to Calgary remained perhaps the last stronghold of the ranching industry. Its day is practically gone there too, and one last attempt is being made to give residents of the continent a picture of what in a few years' time will be regarded as history.

One Million U.S. Born Live in Canada

It is estimated that there are approximately one million people in Canada who were born in the United States, or about twelve per cent. of the Dominion population. Most of these are to be found on farms in the Western Provinces. Nearly one hundred million acres of Western Canadian land has been settled by homesteading, and citizens of the United States have accounted for thirty per cent. of such settlement, against twenty per cent. on the part of British. In addition, United States citizens are each year the heaviest purchasers of privately held and improved lands and farms.

TO SELL BRITAIN'S DEBT FUNDING BONDS

A despatch from Washington says:—Final details concerning the United States debt funding bonds for special arrangements which will make it possible to sell the bonds furnished by Great Britain on the open market if so desired, it was explained at the Treasury Department on Thursday.

Details in this arrangement have been submitted to the British Government at London and the final views of the United States debt funding commission were explained by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's office to Ambassador Sir Auckland Geddes.

Government officials reiterated that there is nothing in the delay which suggests any desire on the part of the British Government to avoid the commitments made in the original settlement. The plan of making it possible to sell the British bonds to the public, was explained, was included in the original settlement, the only changes required being certain variations in the contract which will make it more flexible in this respect.

First Belgian War Victim to be Honored

Brussels, May 12.—The name of Antoine Fonck will live in Belgian history. A monument to be erected in his memory at the Croix du Polinard, a crossing near Thimister, will inform future generations that at that spot was killed the first Belgian soldier in the World War—the first of 45,000.

Fonck was a private in the Second Lancers. On August 4, in the fatal day of 1914, his squadron was reconnoitering at Battice, in the province of Liege. Word came that German cavalry had been sighted near the village of Thimister and Fonck was sent to verify the report. Coming suddenly upon the enemy scouts, Fonck fired his horse was soon shot beneath him. Using the animal's body as a barricade the soldier continued to fire until he died.

That was at 10 o'clock in the morning. Some hours later some German soldiers passed by with Belgian civilian prisoners. One of the Germans seeing the body of the soldier, stuck his bayonet in it, saying, "There is a dirty Belgian." The next day the body was buried in the cemetery of the little village, where his grave has always been tended reverently by the inhabitants.
