HARVEST HOME SERVICES HELD

Large Crowds Attend Special Event in Knox Church on Sunday

The annual Harvest Home services were held in Knox church on Sunday last, morning and evening.

The church was attractively decorated for the occasion; round the pulpit were grouped several sheaves of wheat, oats and barley, while the pulpit platform and communion table had a large display of fruit and vegetables.

Every window in the church had its quota of pumpkins and apples showing up against a background of autumn leaves.

Appropriate festival hymns were used at both services and the choir sang special anthems both morning and evening.

At the evening service Bert Falls sang a solo.

Speaking in the morning from Psalm 65, verse 11: "Thou crownest the year with Thy goodness," the pastor pointed out that this psalm was one of the great festival psalms, connected closely with the festival of the Ingathering.

"The writer of the psalm gives a wonderful picture of God's working in creation," he said. "He shows us the Divine method of co-operation with man, man has to labor but God co-operates with him. He sends the rain and the sunshine.

"The harvest crown comes as the reward of human labor; it is God's gift to man, and is one of the means by which man is linked to God. Behind everything connected with the harvest we are called upon to see God.

"There is another lesson to be learned from the harvest and it is this. It is in the workshop of winter that the crown of the harvest is fashioned. Without winter there would be no spring, without spring summer could not come, and failing summer there could be no harvest. And so it is with life, there can be no crown unless somewhere there is a cross. The crown will not come to us here on earth, but it will come when the great day of Harvest Home arrives, and we reap the reward of our labors."

The subject for the evening address was "The Lesson of the Harvest."

"Nature teaches us in the natural world that it is inevitable that there should be a harvest of some sort or other and realizing that fact we make allowance for it," the pastor said, "but oft times we totally ignore it in the spiritual world. We never stop to think that some day there will be a harvest."

"Again, the harvest is inexorable in its results; there is nothing surer than this fact, that whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. More than that, we always reap more than we sow. We sow the wind and we reap the whirlwind. Not only do we reap, but others also reap the fruits of our sowing. Others suffer for our misdeeds; the sins of the fathers are, in a very real sense visited upon the children. The last lesson of the harvest is this, that the quantity and quality of the seed sown. Sow sparingly and you reap sparingly, sow bountifully and you reap bountifully.

"Men and women then, who realize the fact that the harvest is inevitable, and also inexorable in its judgements, should give themselves to those works that will fit them to bear the best kind of grain, so that when this transitory life is ended and when judgement is passed upon it we may receive from the Lord of the Harvest, the words of commendation that He gives to all who have sown the seeds of righteousness and truth."

Large congregations attended both services.

LARGE BARN IS RAZED BY FIRE

Direction of the Wind Saves Other Buildings; Chickens Are Burned

The barn of Joseph Owen, on the south side of the village, was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday night.

The cause is undetermined. The loss is estimated at about $2,500. A large quantity of hay and straw was burned with the building, as well as 14 chickens, a large number of imported English and Belgium homer pigeons, a buggy, cart, cream separator, spraying machine, power clipping machine, 60 feet of hay fork track, hay fork, car, 160 feet of rope, pulleys, three sets of single harness, one set of double harness and several blankets, as well as many other articles that were kept in the barn.

The fire started shortly before 11 o'clock. It was discovered by John Kindree, but not before the building was in flames. The high wind fanned the blaze so that almost as soon as it started it enveloped the building. The direction of the wind was the only thing that saved Mr. Owen's house and perhaps several other buildings. The garage, only a few feet east of the barn was not damaged. It is of metal construction.

Mr. Owen was away from home from 7 o'clock until a few minutes before 11 o'clock. When he returned home the building was in flames. A few minutes later the fire had advanced to such an extent that the roof fell in and it was not long before the whole building was a smoldering heap of coals on the ground.

The loss was partly covered by insurance.

YOUTHS TO PAY VICTIM'S WIDOW

Given Freedom on Suspended Sentence After Removing Signal Lights

The five Hagersville youths who were found guilty at the fall assizes at Cayuga about three weeks ago of criminal negligence in connection with the death on the morning of October 29, 1922, of Dr. John Jaques, V.S., of Fisherville, were given their freedom Saturday morning on suspended sentence and bound over in the sum of $1,000 each to keep the peace for three years. In addition they each agreed to pay the widow of the accident victim $500, which amount was acceptable to the widow, Justice Lennox was informed.

The five young men, Graham Forsyth, Merrill J. Evans, Henry Webb, Chester Davidson and Arthur F. Smelser, were originally charged with manslaughter, but this charge was reduced to one of criminal negligence. They were held responsible for the death of Dr. Jaques who in the darkness in the early hours of the morning went through a bridge, which was under repair and from which the five youths had removed red lanterns.

When the lads were before the assize court sentence was deferred by Justice Lennox for three weeks and the young men were given to understand that the arrangements made in the meantime to recompense to some extent the loss of Dr. Jaques would have a bearing on the sentence.

In suspending sentence his lordship gave the young men a serious talking to and advised them that the $500 each which they were to pay Mrs. Jaques, he expected them to earn themselves and to pay her at the rate of $5 a week. The peace bonds are in sums of $500, one by each of the boys and one by each of the parents of the five.

On going down a hill guarded on both sides by fences, they turned out to pass a horse and buggy with no lights that appeared before them suddenly, the car skidded in loose gravel and crashed through the fence. A broken scantling went through the curtains of the car and struck Mr. Kelly in the chest crushing his chest badly. He was so badly injured that he died within an hour. The buggy was driven by Allan Graves.

The auto went into the ditch but did not turn over. It was badly damaged.
