TWO BIG DAYS PLANNED FOR JARVIS FALL FAIR

Baby Show Will Be One of Features of Two Day Event

Preparations for the Jarvis fall fair have been practically completed.

Arrangements have been made through the Walpole Shorthorn Breeders' Association to have Professor Day of the Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, judge the cattle. Professor Day is known as one of the best judges of cattle in the country. The Shorthorn breeders have also added interest in their favorite stock by offering special first, second and third prizes amounting to $20 after it was decided to increase the prizes offered at the fair for that class.

One of the big features of the fair will be a baby show. Dr. I. J. Leatherdale is offering two special prizes for the first and second most perfect babies under 14 months old in Haldimand or Norfolk counties.

The date of the school fair has been changed from September 27 to September 28. Special prizes amounting to $37 are offered for the school parade, open to all schools in Walpole and Jarvis. The children will form up at the school grounds and, accompanied by the Hagersville band, will march to the fair grounds.

The Hagersville band has been engaged to furnish music on the second day. The fair will be closed with a concert in the evening in the Arena. The program will be furnished by the Brunswick Trio, of London, assisted by a soloist and a dancer. The trio is already well known about Jarvis, having been on the program at several garden parties in this vicinity.

CANADIAN CATTLE ARE QUARANTINED

A serious blow was dealt the Canadian export trade in store cattle when a quarantine was declared at British ports on Canadian store cattle, owing to the outbreak of foot and mouth disease among Irish store cattle imported into England. The quarantine has been extended for 21 days. This action is explained by a prominent cattle dealer, of Montreal, who states that under the British regulations the Canadian store cattle have to be discharged at British ports through the same lairages on the wharves as the Irish cattle. Foot and mouth disease, he added, is one of the most virulently infectious and most dangerous scourges known.

Fifty-one students entered the Robinson Business College of Waterford last week, and thirty-one at Brantford—an increase of 40 per cent. over last year's opening. Others will be entering weekly, and the proprietors confidently expect to enroll two hundred students during the school year. Waterford's new College Building is a beautiful new structure, and the students are working in an ideal environment; moreover the Robinson Schools are becoming so well and favorably known that they are drawing from a larger territory every year. ## CULLING FLOCK ADVICE IS GIVEN

By the use of the trapnest the flock may be accurately culled so that only those birds which have given a profitable production need be retained; but for the vast majority of farmers and poultry keepers this method is not practicable in that trapnesting takes more time than they are able to devote to it. Therefore it becomes necessary for those who do not use trapnests to use the less certain, but still more practicable, method of culling by visual evidence.

The heavy-laying hens will be sprightly and active in appearance, will have a clean-cut head, lean face and prominent eyes, a large moist vent and a full abdomen which will be soft and pliable. After she has laid heavily for a time, if she is of the yellow-skinned variety, the color will have faded from her vent, eye-ring, beak and shanks, and her plumage will look the worse for wear, the feathers of the tail in all probability being badly broken from rubbing against the sides of the box.

It is safe to cull all birds that show decidedly weak constitutions; those that show great age; and those that are coarse in the head, thick in the skin and show heavy internal deposits of fat. This last condition is evidenced by a full hard abdomen. Besides these indications there are others—the opposite of which is expected in a good layer—that, taken collectively, are fairly sure.

A dry puckered vent, or a dry shriveled comb, indicate that the hen is not laying at the time; rich yellow legs and beak usually indicate either that the hen has laid very few eggs or that she has taken sufficiently long rest to allow the color time to return; smooth lustrous plumage indicates that there has been no great drain on the system and unbroken plumage indicates that she has probably not spent much time in the nest.

While it takes experience to cull accurately where close culling is desired, the wise poultry keeper will not hesitate to make a start, as the rank wasters may be readily recognized even by the inexperienced. With increased experience close culling may be practiced.

SEVEN WARSHIPS LOST

Pacific Mail Liner Cuba is Also Wrecked.

U. S. Destroyers Five on Rocks of San Miguel — Twenty-three Seamen Drowned—Were Steaming in Fog—All Vessels Were Beached Within Few Minutes of First Crash.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Sept. 10.—Seven United States navy destroyers and the Pacific Mail Liner Cuba were wrecked Saturday morning and Sunday night. The navy vessels crashed on the rocks in a dense fog off Arguilla Light, 75 miles north of Santa Barbara, and the passenger steamer on a reef off the south end of the island, 35 miles off the coast.

Twenty-five enlisted men of the destroyers lost their lives in the naval disaster and all the destroyers were reported as total losses. The Cuba was reported to have sunk during the night, but all passengers and members of her crew either were landed at Los Angeles by the destroyer Reno, or are on their way to San Francisco on board the Standard Oil tanker W. S. Miller, with the exception of Captain C. J. Holland, the purser, steward and eight seamen, who remained on board to guard a shipment of $2,500,000 in silver bullion.

Dense fog was the cause of both disasters.

The destroyers Chauncey, Woodbury, Fuller, Spies, Nicholas, Young and Delphy were all beached within a few minutes of one another, according to naval officers.

The fleet, of which the wrecked craft formed a part, was in command of Captain Edward Watson, commanding officer of the Delphy, and was on a practice cruise. The dead were all trapped in their bunks on the Young when that vessel struck and were drowned when the craft capsized within two minutes after striking.

More than 500 men were rescued from the wrecked destroyers, which are reported to be pounding to pieces on the rocks, all total losses. Of the survivors, fifteen of the seriously injured were brought to the Santa Barbara County Hospital here. One hundred others were cut and bruised in their swim to safety over the jagged rocks. The destroyers are now travelling in formation, at 20 knots an hour, in a heavy sea and dense fog when the leading vessel crashed.

Carried ahead by a strong tide, the others piled on the beach in succession. The boats lay in line along the shore at intervals of 250 feet. Out of them, the Chauncey, was resting high on the rocks.

Only one body had been recovered up till last night when all efforts to obtain the others had been fruitless. The sea was running so high and strong tides. Peterson reached the Chauncey exhausted.

With the line secured between the two ships, all remaining members of the crew made their way ashore, as the Chauncey was beached on the mainland.

A twist of fate that sent the destroyer Reno, tearing southward at 30 knots an hour to the west of the Channel Islands instead of down the Santa Barbara channel, according to her schedule, saved 68 survivors from the wreck of the Pacific mail liner Cuba from almost certain death at sea, according to the Reno's commander, Lieutenant-Commander J. R. Barry. The Reno, after groping her way southward through the fog banks, reached San Pedro harbor Sunday with the passengers and crew of the wrecked Cuba.

Lost in the fog and headed due west for the open sea in the belief that they were bound for the Channel Islands, the two of the Cuba's boats were sighted late Sunday by the Reno as she was speeding through the fog on her annual full power trials. Chance sighting of the lost lifeboat through a rift in the fog was all that saved the Cuba's ill-fated passengers, declared Commander Barry.

Ten Barrels of Ale Inside Coffin.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—A black hearse rolled through West Fourth street yesterday and drew up before the crepeless door of Fred Kern's cafe at No. 230. Two men alighted, looked around and then got busy.

Back in the cafe, behind a window curtain, sat two revenue officers. A light might have been seen in them but the half barrels looked suspicious. The agents already had arrested Kern and Albert Kottell, his bartender. They then arrested the men on the hearse who said they were Robert J. Byrne and Charles N. Schwartz, both of West New York. The barrels, full of alleged ale, were confiscated.

Little Girl Killed.

Mrs. Vic McKenzie, living east of Springvale, lost her barn and contents by fire Tuesday night.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Wesley Methodist church, Wednesday, September 12, when Miss Lillian Henning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henning became the bride of Stanley Doughty, son of William and the late Mrs. Doughty, of Nanticoke. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and ferns. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George Smitherman.

The bride, attired in pearl grey flax crepe with hat to match and wearing a rope of pearls, a gift of the groom, entered the church attended by her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Miss Cora Henning, of Nanticoke. During the singing of the registrar, Miss Myrtle Norrie of Brantford, sang "Because." After the wedding luncheon, which was served at the home of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Doughty left by motor for Hamilton, Toronto and Niagara Falls, the bride travelling in a navy blue tricot suit.

On September 1, the new regulations under the Destructive Insect and Pest Act, issued by the department of agriculture went into effect.

Persons intending to bring in nursery stock from the United States or other countries, are advised to write for information to the Secretary, Destructive Insect and Pest Act Advisory Board, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

COMMUNITY AID MOST URGENT

Communities grow in proportion to the support given them by their residents. You cannot boost your town by trading elsewhere or placing business in other localities that could be placed at home. Folks who try to save pennies oftentimes lose dollars. The home merchant is generally honest and offers honest values for your money. He cannot afford to be otherwise. He depends for his living from the community and must give the community what it wants at a fair price. When you are tempted to trade outside and purchase "just as good merchandise at greatly reduced prices," you should think twice before buying. If you are "stung" by your home merchant he will no doubt be glad to make an adjustment. The out-of-town merchant is not personally interested in you. He is intent on selling you at once and probably does not expect to sell you again. He does not have to take great care in preserving your good will. More than owing it to your community to trade at home, thus keeping your money at home, you should give the home merchant first opportunity to serve you, from a sound economic standpoint.—Winchester Press.
