ANOTHER CONFERENCE

Miners to Bar Out Any Debate on Figures.

Will Submit Minimum Terms for Settlement to Avoid Strike—
Willing to Permit Maintenance
Men to Work if a Suspension
Occurs—Union Has Plenty of Money.

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 27.—Representatives of the United Mine Workers of America who will leave here today for the conference, requested by Governor Duff, of Pennsylvania, at Harrisburg, Pa., will decline to enter into any extended discussion of the anthracite situation unless it bears directly on their demands which resulted in a deadlock between them and the anthracite operators. It was learned today.

In going to Harrisburg the miners will stand pat on their refusal to arbitrate their eleven demands. They will insist on concessions from the operators if a suspension is to be avoided involving 150,000 men on September 1.

The operators, so far as their latest utterances go, will also remain firm in their refusal to grant an increase in wages, in their desire to have all of the miners' demands go to arbitration.

The miners' delegation will be headed by International Vice-President Phillip Murray, who will direct the conference. They have learned that several states of the United States Coal Commission are to be present, but they feel that the meeting will more likely result in something constructive if the discussion is limited to the miners' demands and the attitude of the operators toward them.

"We will not enter into any extended analysis of the Coal Commission's figures," declared one of the miners. "We will listen to what the Governor has to say, and we will make known to him immediately what we have in mind."

So far as the Coal Commission goes, it has taken the operators' figures and those of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Federal Trade Commission has made them part of its report. If Governor Pinchot relies on these figures he will not get anywhere.

The miners' headquarters here have had no request from the anthracite operators for a conference to discuss the status of the 3,000 maintenance men, who include pump men, firemen, engineers and others. The miners are willing to permit the maintenance men to remain at work if a suspension occurs on September 1, but they say that it is usual for the operators to meet them prior to a suspension and go over the situation with them. The operators hold that maintenance men automatically remain at work in the event of a suspension, and they have made no move so far to request a conference on the subject.

There was some speculation as to the financial condition of the miners' organization and their ability to carry on a strike. Mr. Lewis has not discussed the matter further than to say that the organization has never in a better position than at present to carry on a contest, that it had approximately $3,000,000 cash available, "and practically unlimited credit resources."

A rough calculation made by those who have followed the dispute indicates that the mine workers' organization has approximately $4,915,000 cash available, and can rely on approximately $3,390,000 a month in assessments with which to wage its strike.

The $2,000,000 mentioned by Mr. Lewis is the sum at the immediate disposal of the International Union. Each of the 27 districts and the 5,000 locals has its own treasury, some large and some small. In some cases the local unions own their own buildings and have large treasuries as well as assets that may easily be converted into cash.

"Boys' Oppose Referendum." SASKATOON, Aug. 27.—With demands being made in some quarters for a liquor referendum in Saskatchewan at an early date, the Prohibition Committee of the Social Service Council Saturday issued a manifesto declaring that, as compared to the period when Government liquor stores were operated in this province, general crime had been reduced to approximately one-half, drunkenness to one-fifth and vagrancy to one-ninth.

The committee objects to a referendum at this time, declaring that the present law should be allowed to operate for a minimum period of three months from the date the liquor stores were closed. Re-

SAVING OF SEED IS RECOMMENDED

There is no apparent reason why every person who has a garden should not save the seed of his crop for his planting the following year. The seed is easily harvested, can be safely stored in a dry place, and is usually of better vitality than that bought. If a variety does particularly well it should be retained for the next year. A great saving could be effected also, as a very small area will produce seed that would cost a dollar or two if bought. Further, if seed is saved, more is usually available for planting than would likely be bought, and in this way more of these desirable vegetables will be grown.

When the peas are nicely matured, the vines are pulled without shelling the pods, and piled into small piles to dry. This takes from four days to a week, according to the weather. Should wet weather ensue and the piles become compact, they should be turned over to prevent the seed from remaining damp and spoiling. If a loft is available it is a good plan to take the vines inside and spread them thinly, when they will soon dry out. When the vines are nicely dried out in the field it has been found that to put them into bran bags and hang them up in a loft away from mice until they are threshed is a good plan. After they are threshed they can be placed away from mice and sorted over when time permits. If not for sale no sorting is necessary.

Beans, when nicely matured and after the leaves have been removed by frost, are pulled and allowed to dry for a day or two, when they may be handled in the same way as peas. If bean rust is present it is wise to select pods free from disease before threshing, keeping this seed separate from the rest. Those showing the disease after being threshed should be sorted over carefully and any showing signs of blackened skin should be discarded. This is an indication of the presence of disease, which is carried away in the seed.

It does not require much time to save the seed necessary for a good garden, and those who make a practice of saving their own seed are always pleased they have done so. If it is desired to get into newer and better varieties and only a limited number of the plants are being grown, a year or two of careful saving and selection of rust-free seed of these varieties will build up a satisfactory stock. The harvesting of garden peas and beans is not different from the method of harvesting similar field varieties of these crops.

A wild duck bearing on its leg an aluminum band with the wording "Notify Biological Survey, Washington, D.C.," was bagged by an Ingersoll hunter on Saturday. Soon after the duck was brought down a letter was forwarded to Washington, stating that it had been shot near Ingersoll.

Fire-ranger patrol in the Northern Ontario timber districts will continue this fall until every vestige of fire hazard is passed. There are at present well over a thousand fire-rangers patrolling the Ontario woods—a number considerably in excess of that at work in previous seasons.
