A PROBLEM SOLVED

Spring house cleaning is at hand. What are you going to do with that odd piece of furniture that won't fit in the new arrangement of things? Are you going to store it away in the attic where its usefulness will end? Why not sell it. Some person can use it and would be glad to get it. A "Want Ad" in The Record will turn an article that is needed no more into ready money. Try it. The cost is small.

NO ACTION YET TO

EXTRADITE PEPALL

Toronto, April 15.—The attorney-general's department has not yet taken steps to commence extradition proceedings against A. H. Pepall, manager of the Long Beach Glass Company, of Los Angeles Calif., for alleged conspiracy with Hon. Peter Smith to defraud the Ontario Government.

According to documents relating to extradition procedure, conspiracy to defraud is not an extraditable offense.

There is one case on record of the United States authorities being successful in securing extradition on an offense listed as "conspiracy to defraud," but the extradition was secured on the theft count rather than on the conspiracy charge.

Favorite Hymns

CHILDREN'S FAMOUS HYMN

The writer of the well-known hymn: "I think when I read that sweet story of old," was recently taken to her rest at a ripe old age, having lived to be over ninety years old. It is more than fifty years since the writer, then Miss Thomson, composed the first verses during a coach ride, when they were jotted down on an envelope. The writer never for a moment dreamt that those lines would be sung all over the Christian world.

Miss Thomson began to teaching the children of Blagdon school to sing the verses to an appropriate tune which she had found. At the close of her long life, what a gratification it must have been to her to know that her hymn had been so useful and helpful to thousands of children.

I think, when I read that sweet story of old, When Jesus was here among men, How He call'd little children, as lambs, to His fold, I should like to have been with them then.

I wish that His hands had been placed on my head, That His arm had been thrown around me, And that I might have seen His kind look when He said, "Let the little ones come unto Me." Yet still to His footstool in prayer I may go, And ask for a share in His love: Ann if I now earnestly seek Him below, I shall see Him and hear Him above. In that beautiful place He has gone to prepare For all who are washed and forgiven, And many dear children are gathering there, "For of such is the kingdom of heaven." But thousands and thousands who wander and fall, Never heard of that heavenly home: I should like them to know that there is room for them all. I come, And that Jesus has bid them to long for the joy of that glorious time, The sweetest, and brightest, and best, When the dear little children of every clime Shall crowd to His arms and be blest.

Resurrection

NEW hope comes with the Spring of the year, for all the world is imbued with the vital magic of life renewed.

THE Story of the Lily symbolizes the Story of the Empty Tomb, for its fragrant beauty emerges from an earthy home. With the darkness that fell when Christ was crucified, there fell a pall of hopelessness for His followers. There was the Messiah, apparently lifeless, as mortal as any of their kindred. What a blankness to confront the newly found faith! Here, surely, was evidence that Christianity had no new thing to offer.

THEN at the Dawn of that first Easter morning, when the Season of Oblivion was past, Christ rose, clothed in the Immortality which he promises to His people.

SINCE the earliest Easter, the festival has gathered about it much that is fanciful and picturesque from the pagan lands through which Christianity has progressed. The very name of Easter is adapted from that of Eostre, an Anglo-Saxon goddess of Spring, and the bunnies and colored eggs that delight the children are also remnants of pagan ceremonies, from which the Christians were weaned. Our custom of decking ourselves in new clothes at Eastertide recalls the festive days in honor of the coming of a kindlier season.

STRIPPED of all its symbolism, the innate beauty of the season is deeply graven on all Christian hearts. It is the chief festival of the Christian church throughout the world. It is the day and season set apart to honor the first Man who conquered Death.

WELCOME, Thou Victor from the strife, Now welcome from the grave! Today we triumph in Thy life Around Thine empty Grave."

NATIVE CANADIANS EXEMPT

Ottawa, April 15.—A question whether the Canadian Government had protested to the United States Government against discrimination in regard to a certain class of Canadian citizens in connection with the American immigration laws was put to the Government this afternoon by J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, C. Winnipeg).

Mr. Woodsworth referred to a report that the quota rule was to apply to British-born citizens of Canada in future, although it did not apply to native-borne Canadians.

Hon. J. A. Robb, minister of immigration, answered that the Government had no information that there was any change in the quota regulations as they affected Canada.

ROBINSON BUSINESS COLLEGE SCORES AGAIN

Norfolk, Haldimand and Bram should feel proud of the continued splendid result: being obtained month after month by the Robinson Business College of Waterford. At the March examinations of the Business Educators' Association of Canada, the following were successful:—

STENOGRAPHIC: Miss Annie Merritt, Waterford (who has already accepted a position with the Mail and Empire Office, Toronto); Miss Armina Hall, Simcoe. (Miss Hall obtained the Commercial B.E.A. Diploma in July last, and now she has added to this achievement, her Stenographic Diploma, and with honors. She is spending extra time in the school in training for a teacher.)

COMMERCIAL: Bruce Hall, Hagersville; Martha M. Gerlie, Hagersville; Floyd Letler, Bloomsburg; Miss Town, Pleasant and Willerson, Jarvis. Six Commercial candidates obtained their diploma above the minimum mark. Certain subjects that are required for several other commercial students will be written. At the end of May, the Senior Commercial class will be writing off the stenographic examination.

Fifty students of the present class are submitting penmanship specimens this week for Spott's Certificates, Awards and Diplomas. Twenty-five have already been recommended for Proficiency Certificates; twenty are trying for Awards (issued for excellence); and five for Diplomas (issued for really superior penmanship). With two expert penmen on the staff the R. B. C. has won an enviable reputation for teaching genuine pen art. This school is in a class by itself in this respect.

All High School graduates and erpublic school teachers, taking the Special Teacher-Training, Commercial or Stenographic Course, are placed free of charge by the Canadian Commercial Teachers' Agency—the only one of its kind in Canada—conducted by the Robinson Business College. Outside teachers all over Canada register with this agency and pay 3% commission. Six calls have very recently come to the Principal, O. E. Robinson, for commercial and shorthand teachers: four from large business colleges; one from a ladies' college; and one from a collegiate institute.

For really superior positions, it will pay advanced students to get their training at a school that can put its students—Commercial and Stenographic—in such large numbers, through the B. E. A. Examinations, as does the R. B. C. Eighty students have enrolled in the Day Class alone, thus far this year, and still others are expected. Students may enter on any school day.
