"Consumption is No Respector of Persons"

In one of the glistering, beautiful rooms of the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, Harry Williams occupied a bed right next to Jim Thomas. Jim was attending Arts in the Toronto University, while Jim was a laborer in another city. (Of course, that was before both knew that they were victims of consumption.) Harry is a handsome young man, only about 22, and is particularly well versed in English literature. His home is in Western Ontario. Harry's brother is consumptive, too, and it was Jim who insisted that when Harry went back to school last fall, that he be thoroughly examined. The examination revealed consumption, so Harry withdrew from his classes, packed up a few belongings and journeyed to Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. "You know," says Harry, "consumption is no respecter of persons. Here I am, just as sick as my roommate. He was a laborer and I was a student. He worked hard for years while I never labored in my life. He had no good home surroundings, while I have been cared for since birth. I can't understand it, can you? And with that Harry smiles a little and settles down to let science and nature fight the silent struggle for his health. Harry and Jim are but two of the many who are at present entirely dependent on the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives. The Hospital itself relies on the generosity of its many friends. Contributions may be sent to Hon. W. A. Charlton, President, 223 College Street, Toronto, Ontario.

ELECTRIC LIGHT SPEEDS UP GRASS GROWTH ON COURSE

To perfect the turf on the green in one fourth of the usual time, electric lights were used to grow grass at the new million dollar Bradley Beach Golf Club, Bradey Beach, N. J. Twenty-four reflectors, each containing a one thousand watt lamp, were installed over the practice green by the Westinghouse Lamp Company. The green was seeded by Peter Hendricks & Company with "creeping bent," the best but most difficult golf grass to grow in the United States because of its slow growth and the comparatively short growing season. Two months after the seed was planted, the green was ready for use, thus saving six or seven months of the ordinary growing time required, and securing a more perfect turf than could otherwise be obtained. The reflectors on the golf green were suspended from poles at a height of about four feet from the ground, and about seven feet apart, furnishing an even light over the whole area so that the grass would grow evenly. The grass seed under the lights came up in five days, while on the rest of the course it took two days longer. At the end of six weeks the grass under the lights had reached a growth of four inches, while that outside the lights was only one inch high. It was also found that the grass under the lights was much thicker, and there were not nearly so many weeds on the green, probably because the grass was sturdier and heavier. In forcing the growth of the grass by artificial light, the illumination was kept on for five hours every night allowing the rest of the night for rest, as plants must rest just as human beings do. All plants, including grass, assimilate and digest "food" from the air and earth only under the stimulation of light, so that by giving them several hours more "daylight," they are enabled to obtain more nourishment and therefore grow much faster. These facts were proved conclusively in a recent series of experiments by the Westinghouse Lamp Company in which it was found that by the use of artificial light, greenhouse growers can bring their holiday flowers to bloom the very day on which they want them for market. By depending on nature alone, growers have in many cases lost their entire earnings because of a few cloudy days resulted in blossoms after and not before the holiday. The same system was applied to the golf grass at the Bradley Beach Golf Club. As every golfer knows, the turf on putting greens represents a large investment in seed, time and labor. The best grasses are hard to grow and a period of one year is generally required before a newly established green is ready for play. Meanwhile, the green produces no playing revenues and requires a great deal of care in order to produce a satisfactory turf. It is estimated that about four hundred new golf clubs open yearly in the United States, and the saving that can be made by applying this use of electric light is tremendous. FOR SALE—Apples: Spies, Baldwins, Greenings, etc., 50c per bushel on tree. John Thompson, Rockford. Phone 13-23 Waterford.
