THE MIND THAT RULES

From a Western newspaper comes the story of a youth whose tendency to sleep late of a morning cost him his job. The man in question, a Swede, was working for a farmer, who demanded punctuality above everything else.

The farmer told him that he must be at work every morning at four o'clock sharp. The "hand" failed to get up in time, and the farmer threatened to discharge him. Then the "hand" bought an alarm clock, and for some time everything went along smoothly. But one morning he got to the field fifteen minutes late. The farmer immediately discharged him, in spite of his protestations that his alarm clock was to blame.

Sadly returning to his room, the discharged employee determined to find out the cause of his downfall. He took the alarm clock to pieces and found a dead cockroach among the works.

"Well," he soliloquized, "Ay tank it bane no wonder the clock wouldn't run—the engineer bane daid."

THE DIFFERENCE

A negro met an acquaintance, also a negro, on the street one day and was surprised to see his friend had on a new suit, new hat, new shoes and other evidences of prosperity.

"Hey, boy," he said, "how come you dressed up that way? Is you got a job?"

"Ise got something better than a job," he replied. "Ise got a profession."

"What is it?"

"Ise an orator."

"What's an orator?"

"Don't you know?" replied the resplendent one in surprise. "Well, I'll tell you what an orator is. If you was to walk up to an ordinary nigger and ask him how much was two and two, he'd say 'four,' but if you was to ask one of us orators how much two and two was he'd say, 'When in the course of human events it becomes necessary to take the numeral of de second denomination and add to it the figger two, I says unto you and I says it without fear of successful contradiction, that de result will invai'bly be four. Dat's an orator.'"

WHERE UPOUND LIQUOR GOES

Only a very small portion of the liquor shipped through the Welland Canal this season has been taken off the boats by trucks waiting at strategic points, according to the opinion expressed by officials who have been making inquiries on reports that large quantities of the liquor shipped through the canal were removed before the boats reached Port Colborne.

Officials give the view that the liquor reaches Port Colborne, and from there it is carried into Lake Erie and in the middle of the lake launches take off the cases of liquor and rush them to Buffalo. That is why, officials say, there is hardly a saloon in Buffalo or Niagara Falls, N. Y., where one cannot get Canadian whiskey.

With the New York State officials making no effort to catch liquor offenders, and only the Federal officers to keep watch, it is claimed it is an easy matter to land any quantity of liquor on the American shores.

The liquor going through the Welland Canal is mostly billed for Mexico, but, the officials say, nobody thinks it ever gets there.

TEA AS A STIMULANT

President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard University, now in his 86th year, is quoted as having said that "tea materially facilitates the mental effort of writing and speaking." For that reason he has used tea as a stimulant for more than half a century.

It is interesting as proving that tea is pre-eminently the beverage of the man of letters, enabling him to work without fatigue, to delve somewhat into the dusty times of the past, where it will be found that tea was considered the one best beverage for revivifying the intellectual activities.

Mantagaza, an Italian physiologist of high repute, confirms the claims of President Eliot by placing tea above all other stimulants, classifying it as the "greatest blessing of providence to man." We all know that tea was Johnson's only stimulant. He drank it at all times and under all circumstances, in bed and out of it, with friends and alone, more particularly while compiling his famous dictionary. Boswell, his biographer, drank cup after cup as if it had been the Heliconian Spring. Hazlet, like Johnson, was a prodigious tea drinker, while Bulwer's breakfast was never complete without it, and DeQuincey states that he invariably drank tea from 8 o'clock at night until four in the morning when engaged in his literary labors.

All of which proves, if proofs were necessary, that the moderate use of good tea, properly prepared, is not only a benefit but a blessing to mankind.

TWOULD BE FOOLISH

"Don't you want to buy a bicycle to ride around your farm?" asked the hardware clerk as he wrapped up the nails. "They're cheap now. I can sell you a rst-class one for $35."

"I'd father put $35 in a cow," replied the farmer.

"Bnt think," persisted the clerk, "how foolish you'd look riding around on a cow."

"Oh, I don't know," replied the farmer, stroking his chin, "no more foolish, I guess, than I would milkin' a bicycle."

A lawyer thus illustrates the language of his craft: "If a man were to give another an orange, he would simply say: Have an orange. But when the transaction is intrusted to a lawyer to be put in writing he conveys to you, all and singular, my estate, and interests, right, title, claim and advantages of and in said orange, together with all its rind, juice, pulp and pips, and all rights and advantages therein, with full power to bite, cut, suck and otherwise to eat the same away with or without the rind, skin, juice, pulp and pips, anything hereinbefore or hereinafter or in any other means of whatsoever to the contrary in any other wise notwithstanding."

And then another lawyer comes along and takes it away from you."
