CATERING TO COMPANY.

A housewife was once asked how she managed to do so much entertaining without apparent effort. "I give company whatever I have," she replied, "with lots of hospitality."

The country housewife who understands the use of what she has is most likely to make visiting enjoyable for herself as well as for her guests. No woman who has not lived in the city is likely to realize what a treat fresh country fare may be.

The most successful breakfast that I ever served consisted of fruit, buttermilk pancakes, maple syrup, home-made sausage and coffee. That wouldn't be a meal for everybody, but I knew our guest's appetite for pancakes.

You're not likely to serve chicken too often. Broilers and fried chicken are quickly prepared and sure to be appreciated. A delicious chicken pie can be served on an hour's notice if you boil and bone your fowl the day before.

When the supply of asparagus is limited serve it in cream soup or on toast, where a few stalks go a long way. If there aren't enough peas to go round alone, stir them into the mashed potato.

Canned strawberries make an appetizing shortcake when fresh berries are not in season, especially if served with whipped cream. If the supply of any kind of fruit for a shortcake is limited, use jelly for the filling and put the fruit on top.

Ice cream and sherbets are easily prepared. For an ice cream foundation use one and a quarter cups of sugar and a junket tablet for every quart of milk.

Have you seen those quaint crocheted shoe pockets, reminiscent of great-grandmother's day, in which party slippers hide away when not in use?

Learn the luxury of doing good. Goldsmith.

CHAPTER X.

When her sweetheart had gone, Alice asked: "Mumsey, have you ever heard of Uncle John?"

A HOME MADE CEDAR CHEST.

If you have an old chest made of any wood that is not extremely hard, paint the inside well with cedar oil.

A CURE FOR LUMPING.

"Oh, dear," sighed the young housekeeper, "this chocolate pudding is lumpy! Seems as if I never thickened anything with flour or cornstarch that I do not have to put it through a sieve before I can serve it."

4620. This is a good model for twill, serge, corduroy, velveteen and for all wash materials.

USE THE NUTCRACKER.

The other day I found it impossible to get the cap off the top of the catch-up bottle, and I tried using a nutcracker.

CREAMED PEANUT BUTTER.

Many of us do not use peanut butter as often as we would like, because it sticks to the roof of the mouth.

Mutton and Macaroni.

When the cold mutton has lasted so long that the housewife dreads putting it again before her family, let her try it under this guise.

An Exquisite Reason.

Mr. Boggs, the butcher, was a jovial soul. As he was cutting up an order of lamb chops for a lady customer the lady asked curiously: "Mr. Boggs, what led you to choose your present occupation?"
