"AWAKE, MY SOUL"

Awake, my soul, and with the sun
 Thy daily stage of duty run;
 Shake off dull sloth, and joyful rise
 To pay the morning sacrifice.

Redeem thy mis-spent moments past,
 And live this day as if thy last;
 Improve thy talent with due care;
 For the great day thyself prepare.

Let all thy converse be sincere,
 Thy conscience as the noon-day clear;
 Think how all-seeing God thy ways
 And all thy secret thoughts surveys.

By influence by the light divine
 Let thine own light to others shine;
 Reflect all heaven's propitious rays
 In ardent love and cheerful praise.

Wake, and lift up thyself, my heart,
 And with the angels bear thy part,
 Who all night long unwearied sing
 High praise to the eternal King.

Among the noble company of hymn-writers there is no more attractive figure than Thomas Ken.

Macaulay described him as a man whose character approached the ideal perfection of Christian virtue as near as the infirmity of human nature would permit. He lived and died when the words of churchmen were reckoned of small account if raised against the will of kings.

When he was Dean of Winchester, and the Merry Monarch held his summer court in that city, the use of the deanery was requested as a residence for the king's favorite. Thomas Ken had the courage to refuse.

Afterwards King Charles declared that he would "go to hear the little man preach," since he dared to tell the king of his faults; and when a bishopric fell vacant, Charles inquired, "Where is the little man who wouldn't give poor Nelly a lodging? We will make him Bishop of Bath."

It was Bishop Ken who wrote the morning hymn—

"Awake, my soul, and with the sun
 Thy daily stage of duty run."
 It was Bishop Ken also who wrote
 "Glory to Thee, my God, this going to the United States, and I agree with him very thoroughly in his contention that the Canadian farmer should be afforded the same protection as his American brother enjoys in his own market. Steps are also necessary to retain our markets, but in this connection what do we find?

As has been stated in the House this year on more than one occasion, the British preference on woollen goods was increased last year with the result that 20 of our woollen mills have been closed down and many others have been compelled to lower their output.

The importation of woollen goods has been doubled, while the total wages of our woollen operators have been cut in half. Many of our workmen have been thrown out of employment. This innovation of the Prime Minister last year characterized as a step in the direction of fulfilling his pre-election pledges. If the interpretation which has been placed upon the speech from the throne that agricultural implements are to be put on the free list is correct, the government proposes to imperil the life of another large industry and endanger the livelihood of another large number of our Canadian workmen. Every time Canadian workmen are thrown out of employment, and every time a Canadian citizen leaves this country to find employment in the United States, we are lessening the consuming power of our own people and diminishing the home market rather than enlarging it.

The constituency which I have the honor to represent lies close to the large and important city of Hamilton. If I am correctly informed it is the third city of industrial importance in the Dominion; two of the largest implement industries in this Dominion are located there, and the placing of agricultural implements on the free list would seriously imperil their existence if it did not close their doors entirely. This would be a serious menace to the business interests of Hamilton and to agriculture in the whole surrounding community. One night,

 For the blessings of the light."
 And in the great open-air service held on the Queen's Jubilee, 1897, in front of St. Paul's cathedral, ten thousand people sang together Bishop Ken's Devotional—

"Praise God, from whom all blessings flow, Praise Him, all creatures here below."

Never before, probably, in the history of the world, were there so many people from all parts of the world—people of all climes and races—singing at one time, and in one place, and with one heart.

Ken did not long hold his bishopric, for he offended both James II. and William III.

He was buried at sunrise in the churchyard of Frome, under the east window of the chancel, and whilst they buried him the people sang his morning hymn—

"Wake, and lift up thyself, my heart,
 And with the angels bear thy part,
 Who all night long unwearied sing
 High praise to the Eternal King."

of the largest creameries in Western Ontario is located in my constituency, 14 miles from that city, and I hope honorable members will pardon me for giving a local touch to what I have to say. A very large percentage of their products is marketed there. Any possible advantage which the farmers of that district might derive from the lowering of the price of agricultural implements—and I would be very much surprised if there would be any such result as that if we had free agricultural implements—I repeat any possible advantage which might be derived would be much more than offset by the interference with their markets which would result.

I must confess that I cannot understand the attitude of the members of the Progressive party in the province of Ontario who sit in this House. Surely they must realize the importance of retaining and enlarging our home markets. I have in my hand a trade return which I received lately, which illustrates fully the value of the home market to our farmers. It is a return which gives the particular commodities of farm origin, the production in Canada of those commodities for the 1922 and also the proportion of that production which was exported. It starts out with wheat. The figures are as follows:

Production in Canada 1922

Wheat	Bus.	399,786,000	53.5
Oats	"	491,239,000	5.9
Barley	"	71,265,000	20.3
Eye	"	32,373,000	31.3
Peas	"	3,429,000	7.7
Beans	"	1,308,000	6.2
Corn	"	13,796,000	0.2
Potatoes	"	92,909,000	3.0
Hay, Clover, Tons	"	14,488,000	0.4
Wool	Lbs.	18,523,000	46.7
Butter	"	252,501,000	5.98
Eggs	"	48,770,000	2.01
Beef	Lbs.	677,317,600	3.75
Pork	"	710,449,872	6.82
Sheep, Mutton	"	96,046,000	2.92

"In many instances the amount of imports of these commodities nearly if not quite equal the exports. Surely, Mr. Speaker, it is very apparent that the home market is the greatest asset which the farmer possesses, and I sincerely hope nothing will be done to curtail it in any way. If we are to have a return of prosperity in this great and growing country we must have stability, and we must have confidence on the part of our people. The two great factors which are needed in this country today are increased population and capital to develop our resources. The stage is all set for a wonderful national development; we have the resources, we have the agricultural area, we have the transportation facilities, and if we adopt a sympathetic and appreciative attitude towards industry, towards labor and towards agriculture; in other words, if we assure to all classes reasonable markets, we cannot help but succeed. For these reasons, I think this amendment, calling, as it does, for measures to retain and to enlarge our home market, is well worthy of the support of every hon. member of this House."
