REMINISCENCES

er, B.C. I have no doubt he is thinking of us today, and he would have been heartily welcomed if he could have been with us for this occasion.

Mr. Henry Coldham owned Lot No. 6. He married and lived there a few years, when his wife died, and he returned to England. On this lot, near the side-road, there lived a very interesting old man, who went by the name of "White Peter," who had been kidnapped by the Indians when a boy, and spent most of his life with them and preserved their habits after his escape. He delighted in recounting the many interesting events of his Indian life, and it is claimed that he was one of the characters from which Longfellow's celebrated poem, "Hiawatha" is taken. He also told us of his witnessing the scalping of his father and others of his family when he was captured, and many other vivid stories of incidents in his life with the Indians.

The next residence was that of Mr. Field, who was a Justice of the Peace, and a prominent farmer. Next came Col. G. B. Hall, who lived on No. 19, and who also owned many other lands, as well as the saw-mill on the 2nd Concession. He also was a Justice of the Peace, and was Colonel of the 37th Haldimand Militia. In 1837 he laid out part of the Village of Nanticoke in village lots, and started other enterprises, afterwards moving to Guelph.

Mr. Samuel Gamble also built a nice residence on Lot 12, now owned by Mr. Hedges. He afterwards carried on an extensive lumber business at the upper saw-mill. He later moved to Port Dover, where he died. Mr. David Wood also had a saw-mill on Lot No. 6 in the 3rd Concession, where he carried on an extensive lumber trade, besides being a prominent farmer, and was at one time a member of the Walpole council. His family is well represented here today, by his son, Rev. Hiel Wood.

As the lands for a few miles from the Lake were rather level and not easily drained, at that time, most of the clearings were along the First and Second Concessions, or near the Nanticoke Creek, where the clearings were assuming a fairly good size when I arrived at Nanticoke, and many of the descendants of those who were then occupants of these farms are with us today, as well as many of the descendants of those who have removed to other parts and have returned for this interesting and happy meeting.

The name, "Nanticoke," was that of a tribe of Indians, who seemed to have made this district the headquarters of their hunting operations. I think they were a branch of the Iroquois, but I am not quite certain on this point. Numerous arrow heads and tomahawk heads, as well as many specimens of Indian pottery, have been unearthed about here by plows, which would confirm the above.

The first church building at Nanticoke was finished in 1848, but, as there were no resident ministers for some years after, the services were taken, either by occasional visits from some travelling missionary, or by a layman in the Church of England. The first religious service, of which I can find any mention, held in the Township, was a christening, held in 1837 in the house of Steele Montgomery, by the Rev. Dr. Evans, rector of St. John's, south of Simcoe. This being the first religious service, the settlers turned out in large numbers to witness the ceremony, and the scene was grotesque. Rough speakers, with their rifles, and their powder horns slung about their necks, and their dogs at their heels (in those days no one ever thought of walking a mile or so through the woods without these companions), came for miles to witness the first baptism on the Stage Road. Between the screaming of the children, the barking of the dogs, and the clang of rifles and fowling pieces, the service was conducted by the worthy clergyman under trying circumstances.

For several years the services were taken by William Wood, who was appointed as lay-reader by the Bishop, and was afterwards ordained, and stationed at Port Rowan. The first resident minister appointed to this church was in 1856, in the person of the Rev. Thomas Campbell, at about which time we had our first Confirmation service, by Bishop Strachan, then Bishop of all of Canada.

The Methodist church was built here soon after this, and was ministered to in much the same way. Mr. Whitmot was the first resident minister.

The first general store and Post Office was kept by Mr. Samuel Haskett, who had a fairly good business for a number of years; he sold out to Mr. McLeod, and moved to Montreal. Soon after this Mr. N. B. Schofield of Port Dover opened a branch store here, but after a year or so sold out this end of it to Mr. Turner. Mr. Turner was succeeded, by Mr. J. W. Husband, who had formerly been a school teacher.

Mr. Husband's predecessor as teacher was Mr. Hooper, who was the first school teacher at Nanticoke.

Mr. Joseph Lavigne at that time carried on an extensive business in square and round timber, which was taken to the old roll-way on the bank of the Nanticoke Creek, and floated out to schooners which came in as close as possible to load. This timber was mostly taken to the Old Country for ship building, etc.

Mr. A. G. Cummer, who owned a tract of well timbered lands on the Third Concession, built a saw-mill at the mouth of the Nanticoke Creek, where he also built a temporary wharf, to which the schooners could come in for loading. At that time there was a large export trade from here in lumber, cord-wood, etc., and there was an arrangement made with the Customs Department, under Mr. Barrett, agent at Port Dover, whereby vessels could report, and be granted clearance when loaded, and I was appointed as such agent. As all the carrying business of the country was at that time done by water (the railway not yet being in operation), a person standing on the shore might at almost any time in those days see from fifty to a hundred boats—very different from today, when practically all the transportation is done by rail or by motor truck.

I am proud to be able to say that Nanticoke and the Township of Walpole have produced many very prominent and useful men for our country. Mr. John Kent, who is now one of the managers of the Toronto Exhibition, was born in Selkirk. Mr. John Pugsley, one of the principals of the celebrated Dingman's Soap, at one time kept store in Cheapside. Sir Thomas White, late federal Minister of Finance, at one time taught school in Walpole, and his wife was born near Nanticoke. Dr. William Jaques and Mr. J. W. Holmes, both former members of the Provincial Legislature, are Walpole boys. And now we can boast of turning out a very clever and most promising member of our Provincial Cabinet in the person of the Hon. John S. Martin, whom we hoped to have had with us today.

The young people of Nanticoke have for many years been noted for their energy and success in carrying out any public entertainment which they undertook, and the way they have undertaken and carried through this Reunion does them great credit.
