

BRITISH SUBMARINE M-1 LOST WITH ALL HANDS IN ENGLISH CHANNEL

Sixty-Eight Officers and Men Perish During Exercises Off Start Point—Day-long Search Proves Unsuccessful.

A despatch from Davenport, Eng., says:—Sixty-eight lives, officers and men, have been lost by the disaster to the submarine M-1, which dived in the waters of the English Channel off Start Point early Thursday morning, and has not been seen since. A day-long search proved unsuccessful, and on Thursday night Admiral Sir Henry Francis Oliver, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, signalled the following message:

"The commander-in-chief very much regrets to inform the Atlantic fleet that it is feared the submarine M-1 has been lost with all hands during exercises in the Channel."

The large flotilla, provided with the necessary apparatus, failed to locate the exact spot where the vessel is lying. But it is in deep water, where divers' operations are impracticable.

When the submarine flotilla left Plymouth for the Channel, a strong wind and boisterous seas prevailed, but there was nothing to suggest an element of risk in carrying out tactical exercises.

Known as a submarine monitor because it was the first undersea craft to carry a big gun, the M type submarine gathered fame toward the end of the war, but the M-1 did not participate in the sea operations of that period, and three ships of this type have been in reserve since August.

ITALY ACCEPTS U.S. OFFER ON WAR DEBT

$5,000,000 a Year for Five Years—62 Years to Pay $2,042,000,000.

A despatch from Washington says:—Italy has accepted the United States proposal for the settlement of her war debt to the United States. The formal signatures will be appended on Saturday.

In brief, Italy is to pay $5,000,000 a year for five years, with an increase every five years thereafter until in the sixty-second year she will clean up the total with a payment of $80,000,000.

The principal is to be taken as $2,042,000,000. That is, the original amount of the debt, $1,648,000,000 is to be increased by interest at 4 1/2 per cent. up to December, 1922, the date of the British settlement that forms the basis of this agreement. On this principal of $2,042,000,000 the payments are calculated on the same basis as with the British.

The concession to Italy's capacity to pay comes in the interest during fifty-seven years, which has been cut to a nominal figure: one-eighth of 1 per cent. for ten years; one-half per cent. for the next ten; three-quarters per cent. for the third decade; 1 per cent. for the fourth period, and 2 per cent. for the last seven years, which gives a general average of about 9.10 of 1 per cent.

The total of interest and principal which is to be wiped out in sixty-two years, is $2,407,000,000. If Italy had been held to the British terms with interest at 3 per cent. and 3 1/2 per cent., she would have paid something like $5,500,000,000 in the sixty-two years.

German Bees Go on Strike in French Quarters

A despatch from Paris says:—France has been stung by insisting that bees be delivered her as part of her reparations. The German bees were working hard and living contented lives on the Lauenburger heath. The climate was right and the flowers delicious in this North German garden. But France insisted that 30,000 colonies be transported to France in lieu of those destroyed by the German armies. Though the protest of being transplanted caused loud buzzings, the transfer was made. At first inspection of their new homes the workers struck, and then declared a hunger strike. The queens refused to lay the required eggs, and now France has only 30,000 empty hives and Germany a receipt for this portion of her reparations bill.

MASSIVE GOLD COFFIN ADORNED WITH JEWELS IN KING TUT'S TOMB

A despatch from Luxor says:—Precincts of the tomb of Tutankhamen again presented an animated appearance reminiscent of the time when its first wonderful revelation thrilled the world. Egyptian officials arrived here from Cairo in order to witness the process of X-raying Pharaoh's mummy, but as yet it has not been found possible to do this, owing to the fact that the linen wrappings are so closely adhering that considerable difficulty has been found removing them without damage. It is hoped, however, to obtain photographs in a few days.

Meantime Burton of the Metropolitan Museum, New York, is busily engaged in photographing the coffin and the wonderful objects found enclosed therewith. This coffin was finally extracted from the nest of shrines enclosing it a fortnight ago and removed to the tomb of Seti I, which is now used as a workshop. It was opened by Howard Carter in the presence of Government officials and disclosed a marvelous collection of precious stones and jewels.

The coffin itself is one of the most remarkable finds in the annals of archaeology, for it is of solid gold structure, probably the most massive relic of ancient civilization of that metal unearthed. This alone affords an indication of the astonishing wealth of Egypt in that epoch, for the wealth of the pharaohs was not in the marble and alabaster as burial receptacles.

The coffin also is a wonderful work of art. It is covered with intricate inscriptions and figures of divinities, embossed and engraved, demonstrating the highest artistic skill in design and execution. The coffin, with the royal mummy, must have been the centre of a magnificent ceremonial, conceivable only in the wildest flights of imagination.

Not a single papyrus was discovered with the mummy. This is remarkable, having regard to the fact that, according to ancient Egyptian beliefs, the deceased required the assistance of an elaborate ritual, including charms and words, to enable him to traverse the underworld teeming with awful perils, in order to reach the realm of eternal light and bliss, where Amen Ra, the sun god, reigned in his glory.

It has not been found feasible yet to remove the mummy from the coffin, owing to the fact that they are sticking together through the presence of a glutinous substance, composed of gums and spices, which became mixed with libations of wine poured over them during the funeral rites. Surrounding the mummy was an amazing collection of hundreds of beautiful objects of personal adornment, which evidently formed part of the royal regalia, as well as articles of toilet, but their precise nature is a closely guarded secret. One object, however, is stated to be a beautiful ebony statuette representing an effigy of the king. All are of exquisite workmanship, encrusted with precious stones and enamel.

1925 WHEAT CROP IS THE SECOND LARGEST

Canada's Yield Will Exceed Estimates by 27,000,000 Bushels.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—The total yield of wheat in Canada is now provisionally estimated, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 422,327,000 bushels. This total yield is 30,508,000 bushels more than the preliminary estimate of 391,819,000 bushels published on September 10.

Of this excess difference, 27,306,000 bushels is for the single Province of Saskatchewan, where threshing results have exceeded expectations. The total yield of wheat now estimated is the second largest on record for Canada, the previous highest total having been 474,199,000 bushels in 1923. Other high records were 399,786,400 bushels in 1922; 300,858,100 bushels in 1921, and 393,542,600 bushels in 1915.

The average yields per acre for the whole of Canada in 1925, with last year's final averages in brackets, work out as follows: Fall wheat 28.9 (28.8); spring wheat 18.9 (11.3); all wheat 19.2 (11.9); oats 35.6 (28); barley 27.8 (26.1); fall rye 17 (16); spring rye 16.6 (11.8); all rye 16.9 (15.4); peas 17.8 (18); beans 17.3 (16.6); buckwheat 22.6 (25.8); mixed grains 32.9 (37.7); flaxseed 8.3 (7.6); corn for husking 33.8 (40.7).

The estimated total yield of 521,

922,000 bushels for oats, has only twice been repeated, viz., in 1923, 563,997,500 bushels and in 1920, 530,709,700 bushels. The yield of barley, viz., 113,118,000 bushels, constitutes a record, and compares with 89,807,600 bushels the previous record of 1924.

Nanette and Rintintin Protect Paris Automobiles

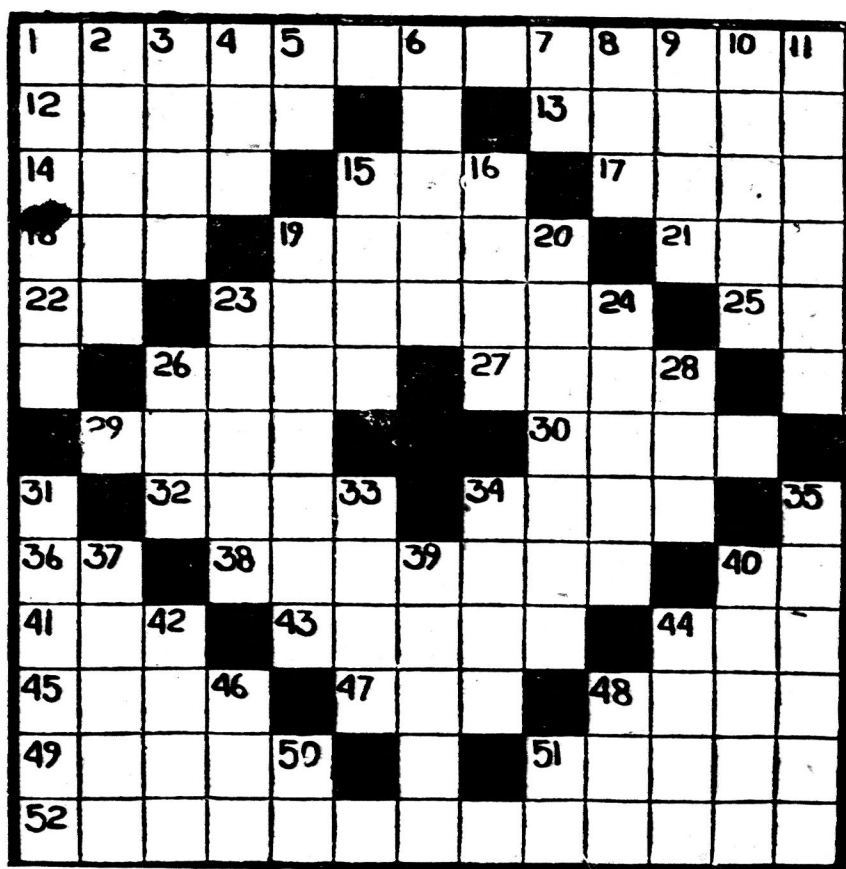

A despatch from Paris says:—During the air raid epoch "Nanette and Rintintin" were infallible mascots against shell and bomb, and few Parisians were without these twin doll deities, made of colored wool.

The man who originated the idea made a million francs or so by it. Now he has revived it to preserve automobilists fortunate enough to own sedans from skids and bumped fenders. The automotive mascot is suspended in the rear windows for all to see.

Mother Goes to Her Death Trying to Save Child

A despatch from Edmonton says:—Answering the call of her 5-year-old son, Donald, who had fallen in, Mrs. Darrell Shaver hurried out over the thin ice of Pyramid Lake, near Jasper, and went to her death with the boy, early Thanksgiving afternoon, according to details just received here.

NO PROSPECT OF STRIKE SETTLEMENT

Coal Operators and Miners' Leaders Show No Disposition to Change Opinions.

A despatch from Harrisburg, Pa., says:—Anthracite operators and miners have dug in for an all-winter strike, with nothing in sight to indicate how or where a settlement can be made.

This is the impression left with Governor Pinchot on Thursday after Major William W. Inglis, spokesman for the Anthracite Operators' Association informed him that the position of the operators is unchanged and that they will agree to no settlement that will increase the cost of fuel to the consumer and which does not provide for continuous operation of the mines during wage negotiations.

Coming on top of the declaration by John L. Lewis to the Governor that the miners will fight until the operators agree to abandon their position of no wage increases and continuous operation, Major Inglis' statement left the situation exactly where it was in August, with no encouragement to the Governor to present the five per cent. increase wage offer persons close to him say he is inclined to favor as a compromise.

Winnipeg Street Dedicated in Honor of Three V.C.'s

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—Brave deeds and brave men were honored here in the dedication of "Valor Road," formerly called "Pine Street," on which three heroes, two of whom gave their lives for their country, and all of whom gained the highest military award—the Victoria Cross—lived before the war. The men honored were: Sergt.-Major Frederick W. Hall, Captain Robert Shandland and Sergt. Leo Clarke. Clarke and Hall were killed in action.

On Armistice Day, while hundreds of citizens stood in reverent silence, Sir James Aikins, Lieut.-Governor of Manitoba, unveiled a tablet commemorating the brave deeds and renamed the street "Valor Road."

WINNIPEG MAN CHOSE "UNKNOWN SOLDIER"

Captain J. J. Walsh Tells of the Manner in Which Unidentified Body Was Selected.

A despatch from Winnipeg says:—Five years ago there was laid in Westminster Abbey, London, in the presence of a vast multitude, the body of the empire's "Unknown Soldier."

It is now disclosed that the responsible task of locating the body was entrusted to a Winnipeg officer. He is Captain J. J. Walsh, of the Connaught Rifles, formerly on the staff of the Imperial War Graves Commission.

It is a closely guarded secret who conceived the idea of burying an "Unknown Soldier" in Westminster Abbey, but the order is known to have come from an officer high on the general staff.

Capt. Walsh's account of the search is related as follows: "After receiving instructions, I took 12 men with me and went to one of the great battlefields of the world, where the bodies of the fallen were able to tell from the color of the soil where bodies might be found. Several were disinterred and came across one that was so badly without identification. These were things on the clothing or anything that all to show whose body it might be."

"All I can say is that it is a private's uniform, but that is not significant, for many officers wore private's uniforms and went into action."

"The body was brought to camp, stripped of its clothing, wrapped in a canvas shroud, placed in a coffin and forwarded to London."

"That is all that can be known of ever will be known."
