CAYUGA BLOCK SWEEP BY FIRE

Fire on Sunday morning swept the McLeish building, a brick block on the corner of Talbot and Cayuga streets, Cayuga, occupied by Edward Birdsall, general merchant; E. B. Davis, hardware; John McLeish, barber shop and dwelling. The loss, although insurance was carried by all the sufferers, will be heavy. The Birdsall store and stock was badly damaged, while the contents of the second floor are a total loss. The Davis hardware stock suffered heavily from smoke and water.

The fire was discovered in the second story of the Birdsall store and had burned through to the rear of the barber shop and dwelling.

Hagersville and Caledonia fire departments were called and responded promptly. Four lines of hose were laid from the Grand River and in an hour the fire was under control. One of the Caledonia firemen received a bad gash on the arm from falling glass.

DEAR CUSTOMERS

At this season of the year, Milady's hair begins to show the ravages of too strong sun and too frequent immersion in the lake.

For, dry, lifeless, falling hair we have, ourselves, perfected a formula which will restore its gloss and positively promote a more luxuriant growth.

It is dainty, greaseless, and gives a delightful, tingling sensation to the scalp.

We would like you to give it a trial.

Yours truly,

Boyce's Drug Store
Jarvis

FIRST PRIZE ESSAY

Given by Kathleen Miller at Varsity Women's Institute

Canada has just celebrated its sixtieth anniversary, which is comparatively young when you think of other nations, who have forgotten when they were born.

On Dominion Day, nineteen twenty-seven, no doubt, everyone thought about first, the 60 years that has brought us to our place among the great nations of the world; second, the future, our splendid future, which they tell us is all before us; third, the Great Day, July the first, 1867, upon which the great Dominion of Canada was born.

We have reason to be proud of the splendid pioneers who strove so hard to make Canada what she is. The people endured untold hardships when the West was the home of the Indian and the buffalo, but out of this rough material has been carved Canada of today. It was from these people that the Fathers of Confederation arose, men to whom much credit is due, for they laid the foundation of our Confederation.

Though union had shown itself in various ways among the more common people, it needed those great men we commonly call Fathers of Confederation, George Brown, Alexander Galt, Sir John A. Macdonald, Thomas D'Arcy Magee, Sir Leonard Tilley, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir George Cartier, and others, less well known, for uniting legislation.

They, however, were not the originators of the scheme; it was talked about as far back as 1777, but it seemed difficult to arouse interest. It was not until 1864 that any real move was made toward Confederation. By that time the Colonies had grown not only in population but in commerce also. New discoveries had made known the Great West, whose one scarce need to mention was the wheat production.

Confederation was brought about at last in 1867, but was not yet achieved. We honor the men who were instrumental in bringing it about, but their work was not done with the passing of this legislation, far from done even at the end of their lives, and, no doubt, we too shall pass and find it unfulfilled.

Confederation has had, in spite of natural drawbacks, very rapid growth. Today Halifax in the extreme East and Vancouver on the Pacific are nearer than were Toronto and Montreal at the time of Confederation. East, West, and Centre, we read the same news, listen to the same music and speeches over the radio and have much the same educational system all over the Dominion.

What we have gained has come with hard work, such as our pioneers and forefathers knew and what we shall gain will also come with hard work. We must keep in Canada, our best brains, most intelligent boys and girls. The future of Canada lies in our hands. Our Country looks to us; we can make it what we will, and if she does not advance as she should we will be to blame. Where could opportunity for advancement be greater? The reply comes from her glorious hills, vales and plains, the yellow fields of grain and her numerous mines where rich minerals lie stored. Right here lies the opportunity and those who are too blind to see it, and too deaf to hear are flocking across the border where it is an opportunity calls with a louder and more insistent voice. Population brings wealth, and if Canada is depopulated as rapidly in the coming years as she has been in the past, how can she ever have prosperity?

There is only a small portion of our country that does not produce something worth while. Beginning at the East, the fisheries of the Maritime Provinces contribute largely to the markets of the world, while the orchards of Nova Scotia produce excellent apples. Ontario's gold, silver, and nickel mines are famous the world over and the timber from her forests supply to a large extent the United States, and I mentioned before the wheat production of the Prairie Provinces.

Canadian scenery cannot be excelled. Even in Ontario, our own province, there are many picturesque places that are rapidly attaining a world-wide reputation and we hope there isn't one ignorant of the wonderful scenery in the Western provinces, the Rock Mountains, Lake Louise, or any of the large National parks deserve especial mention. They are chiefly the work of nature, but we, as Canadians must help to keep them attractive.

Let us strive to keep Canada top place among the nations of the world, so that the future generation may be proud of our accomplishments the same as we worship our forefathers who strove so hard to make a land in which we may live.
