THE GROPING CHINESE

To occidentals the most puzzling, as it is also the most important, question in China is the true nature of the nationalist movement.

But are these the facts in the case? The answer seems to be, as the answer always is with China, both yes and no.

How and when the vague principles of the movement can be translated into a practical program of governmental reform is beyond prediction.

So also will the Chinese learn as the years pass that there can be no great improvement in the economic, political and social condition of their people until there is universal education and less class slavery.

THE URGE TO BE DUPED

Within the last few weeks how many pulses have throbbed at the miracles of science, and how many have responded to the dazzling succession of vast fortunes that have been, or almost been, inherited by Belgian peasant girls, German servant maids and penniless Americans?

The old romance of Dame Fortune is still more interesting and soul-stirring than the new romance of science. Along with the dream legacies in the news appear authentic tales of wealth found and inherited.

From page space in the newspapers always will be at the command of tales about Weepah gold nuggets, fortune-winning lottery tickets, of clerks who break the bank at Monte Carlo, fortunes inherited by poor relatives and faithful servants, and discoveries of buried treasure. It seems to require less high-pressure salesmanship to talk people into investing their savings in "Spanish prisoner" and "heart of Manhattan" claims than in the most promising business enterprises.

ANCESTRY

A gem from the pen of Sir Thomas Overbury proclaims that "the man who has not anything to boast of but illustrious ancestors is like a potato - the only good belonging to him is underground."

Sir Thomas wrote for the English and undoubtedly highly insulted some of them. Old countries usually over-estimate the value of a long line of distinguished ancestry.

Benvenuto Cellini, in all his pride of ancestry and self, began his immortal autobiography with these lines: "I take much pride in having been born humble and having laid some honorable foundation for my family than if I had been born of great lineage and had tainted or overclouded that by my base qualities."

The majority of the people in the States can trace their ancestry back no farther than three or four generations. Ancestry doesn't interest them, apparently. The American would rather put all his efforts into self improvement than into searching for ancestors in whom he might or might not be proud.

The Melting Pot

A wise married man never chews tobacco or dynamite.

About 100 years ago today all of us were posterity.

The hand that wields the lipstick seldom wields the broomstick.

The reason so many don't get ahead of the game is they don't play.

In spite of the way some look, no auto is more than 25 years old.

Twenty years ago today those who criticize our young people now were being criticized.

A new device changes people's noses. Sticking them where they don't belong does the same.

"You may eat chicken with your fingers," says etiquette hints. You may, but you may need a haunch.

It is unwise to search for a tire pump in a village after midnight, especially when it has a vigilance committee at its beck and call.

A PACK OF CARDS

A private soldier was taken before the magistrate for playing cards during service.

"Well, soldier, what have you to say?"

"I have been six weeks on the march; I have neither Bible nor prayer book, and I hope to satisfy Your Worship of the purity of my intentions."

Spreading the cards before the magistrate he began with the ace.

"When I see the ace it reminds me that there is but one God.

"The deuce reminds me of Father and Son.

"The trey reminds me of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost.

"The four reminds me of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

"The five reminds me of the five wise virgins.

"The six reminds me that in six days the Lord made the heaven and earth.

"The seven reminds me that on the seventh day God rested from the great work and hallowed it.

"The eight reminds me of the eight righteous persons saved when God destroyed the world - Noah and his wife, his three sons and their wives.

"The ten reminds me of the Ten Commandments.

"The king reminds me of the great King of Heaven, who is God.

"The queen reminds me of the Queen of Sheba

"Well, said the magistrate, "you have given a description of all the cards except one, the knave."

"I will give Your Honor a description of that, too, if you will not be angry."

"I will not," said His Honor, "if you do not call me the knave."

"Well, the greatest knave I know of is the constable who brought me here."

"I do not know," said the magistrate, "if he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count the spots in a pack of cards I find 365, as many as there are days in a year.

"When I count the number of cards I find there are 52, the number of weeks in a year, and I find four suits, the number of weeks in a month.

"I find there are 12 picture cards in a pack, representing the number of months in the year.

On counting the tricks, I find 13, the number of weeks in a quarter.

"So you see, Your Honor, a pack of cards serve for a Bible, almanac and common prayer book."

VARENCY W. I.

The July meeting of the Varenay W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Marr on Thursday, July 14th, with 22 ladies present.

The last paragraph of the report caps the climax, viz.: "Both Jarvis and Walpole voted non-concurrence and later Jarvis decided of itself to remain independent."

The secret was a united front. The Hamilton Presbytery also possessed the secret. With cold blooded precision they proceeded to split the congregation of Knox church.

The whole-hearted work of years has been thrown into the discard. They have acquired a parcel of property by the usual methods of banditry.

Note - The prize winning essay will appear in next week's issue of The Record.

Wild Animals Friendly on Banff-Windermere Highway

BOZZO BEAR TRAFFIC COP

"The Friendly Road," by David Grayson, which is well-known to many lovers of nature, depicts incidents and friendliness of people along country roads and in the rural districts.

There is, however, a road in the Canadian Rockies the friendliness of which is not due to mortals as in Grayson's book, but to the friendliness of animals. Animals termed wild, but in this instance a word that cannot be applied to those on the Banff-Windermere Highway.

There is possibly no more beautiful road than this which runs from Banff to Lake Windermere, in the Columbia River Valley. The distance of 104 miles is spectacular and the scenes are constantly changing.

pine meadows, rivers crossed and recrossed, and glimpses of cascades tumbling down slopes from dizzy heights are intriguing and beautiful.

To this natural beauty is added that of seeing the animals in their natural haunts. Rocky Mountain sheep are seen on the road along Vermilion Lakes not far from Banff. They are so tame that often motorists have to slow down as they will persist, almost to the point of danger, in standing in the middle of the highway.

Bozzo, a black bear, is a friend to many motorists on the Banff-Windermere road. He comes out on the highway as if he had sole right to it. He does not resent those invaders in the least and really wishes to show his friendliness. Sometimes he has lunches handed to him and the remarks of "nice old chap, fine old fellow," please him tremendously, and he will try to come even nearer.

Deer are seen, also, on this famous highway, though not as often as other animals. They are regular visitors to Banff, and are frequently seen on the streets of the village.

PLAIN STATEMENT

In covering the connection of a lifetime which we have labored during the past two years to preserve intact, we have but one regret, that we did not take the congregation more fully into our confidence regarding the underground methods being employed both to oust the Rev. W. T. Brown and undermine the unity of the congregation.

We kept our own counsel in the interests of peace hoping the campaign would be ineffective. In conclusion we would refer particularly to a few slanderously false items in the report quoted above, which is its entirety is a mass of misrepresentations.

Regarding the engagement of Mr. Deeth, it was not done by any party or clique, but by officials of the church regularly elected and one in an effort to promote the best interests of the church many of them have served so long and faithfully.

The last paragraph of the report caps the climax, viz.: "Both Jarvis and Walpole voted non-concurrence and later Jarvis decided of itself to remain independent."

The secret was a united front. The Hamilton Presbytery also possessed the secret. With cold blooded precision they proceeded to split the congregation of Knox church.

Signed by Session.
