PLANT MORE TREES

A resident of Ontario may secure any number of trees up to 3,500 free each year for planting, or for filling in the woodlot. Additional quantities may be had at the rate of $4.00 per thousand. A limited quantity of material is on hand each year for wind-break work, 500 trees being the maximum given to one individual.

The Ontario Forestry Branch supplies more than seven million trees a year for reforesting work. Over three thousand residents of Ontario planted trees in 1925.

There are being planted in Ontario at the present time forty-five municipal demonstration forests, four county forests, of one thousand acres each and several large blocks of Crown land.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON WALKS

Some customs and institutions pass away so swiftly and completely that a succeeding generation can scarcely realize to what extent such a custom was once prevalent and how much it meant to the generation that came before.

The boys and girls, men and women who live in our large cities can not appreciate how much the pastime known as the Sunday afternoon walk once meant to people who are now along in years. This diversion is not to be compared to what is now known as "hiking;" the Sunday afternoon walk was not so strenuous and energetic as this, latter-day form of leg-exercise.

The modern hiker expects some tangible returns on his investments. He is out for air and exercise and he purposes to get them. Over hill and dale along the country road he stretches his legs and the more tired he gets the better he likes it. Though he has no particular destination in mind and sets no time limit on his performance, the modern hiker is none the less a very business-like person.

Not so the Sunday afternoon walker of a generation or two ago. His was a leisurely proceeding. He was in search neither of romantic scenery nor of violent exercise. His performance consisted of nothing more strenuous than an amiable rambling thru parts of the city into which he did not venture every day, or perhaps his stroll took him for a short way out into the country.

But it is gone, this custom. One by one condition, changed as mechanical inventions came in to cut us off from this simple pleasure. The bicycle, the automobile, the motion picture show, and the commercialized amusement park—all contributed to supplant the Sunday afternoon walk with something more hurried and feverish than we had ever known before. We have become hot in our pursuit of pleasure and diversion; we must be always going somewhere, and when we get there we must either be entertained or hurry off elsewhere.

BASEBALL

If somebody on a crowded thoroughfare today was to shout "swat a fly" every woman on the street would rush into the nearest department or hardware store for a fly swatter and every man and boy would look around for the nearest newsboy to find out from the sporting page what the baseball season officially opens. It's only a matter of where your mind is and in the month of March the mind of man strays not far from thoughts of baseball.

For weeks now the major league team, have been in their southern training camps preparing for the opening game in April. For the real dyed-in-the-wool fan the season really opens when the clubs go into training and for the youngsters the season opens as soon as the snow melts off the vacant lot. Flies are already being swatted on the sand lot.

Where the inveterate diamond dopsters congregate one unversed in the intricacies of the "great American game" might presume that the world series was an event of tomorrow and that baseball was a perennial instead of a seasonal sport. And, in fact, it is a perennial pastime when there is kept in mind the playing season from April to October, the autumn post-mortems, the winter prognostications and the spring training season.

Who cares if the rest of the world cares not for this American king of sports?

The Melting Pot

An open mind is all right if you know when to close your mouth.

ABOLITION OF WOMEN DECREED BY MOTHERS

Club Debaters So Decide in Spite of Fact She Has Been Salt of Earth Since Time of Lot

The abolition of woman, proposed and upheld in debate at a recent meeting of the Riverview Mothers' Club, London, Ont., was given the decision by the judges, at the close of a brilliantly contested argument.

Mrs. J. Blackall and Mrs. C. E. Walker in masculine dress made the attack, resolving that "Women Should be Abolished." The negative was taken by Mrs. B. F. Keller and Mrs. J. J. Goodman, and excellent and original arguments were advanced by all four contestants, who were in fine debating form. One of the largest audiences in the history of the club filled the school auditorium.

Mrs. C. E. Walker's points, capably supported by Mrs. J. Blackall, noted the neglected husband and the public-spirited woman. "The young of today does not tax the ingenuity of the young man to woo and win her,

The Dominion-wide celebration of Canada's sixtieth year of Confederation which is being planned for July of this year, will be the most remarkable and extensive ever held. The last links of a united Canada were placed in position forty years ago with the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is in furthering the bond between the peoples of the east and the west that this country will be engaged to a large extent during the celebration.

MANY CITIZENS ATTEND FUNERAL OF JAS. D. ROSS

Port Dover Maple Leaf

The numerous expressions of sorrow voiced by all classes on the death of Dr. James D. Ross showed the high regard in which he was held by his fellow citizens. This regard was evoked by the excellence and strength of his character.

His principles he maintained in all the relations of his varied career, and all movements for the betterment and up-lift of the people had his whole-hearted support and assistance. Loyal to any cause to which he attached himself, and forceful in his advocacy, he never failed in kindness of heart and tolerance of spirit.

His character was of that high type which we may well hold up before our young men as worthy emulation.

"The doctor is dead! The doctor—she stages her own petting parties," the speaker concluded. "The mother is to blame for this; she has trifled with her life work and the privileges of living daily with her children, to gain her point of view."

Is Usurper

"Woman is a usurper," declared the debater, "she invades man's domain in office and factory, usurping his earning power. Women are smugglers, in the majority, according to the customs department report; woman is extravagant and wasteful, and an eminent liar, and experts to get away with it; in the use of narcotics, statistics show her to be the leading offender; she is a deplorable slave to fashion, and not only wants the latest, but wants a lot of it; women the gossips and slanders, in a group of women more reputation, are laid on the table for dissection than can be handled at one sitting."

Citing Cleopatra, Catherine of Russia, Mme. La Pompadour, and other notable ladies of history, Mrs. Walker said, "Women should be abolished; men have decided that they can get along a lot better without her."

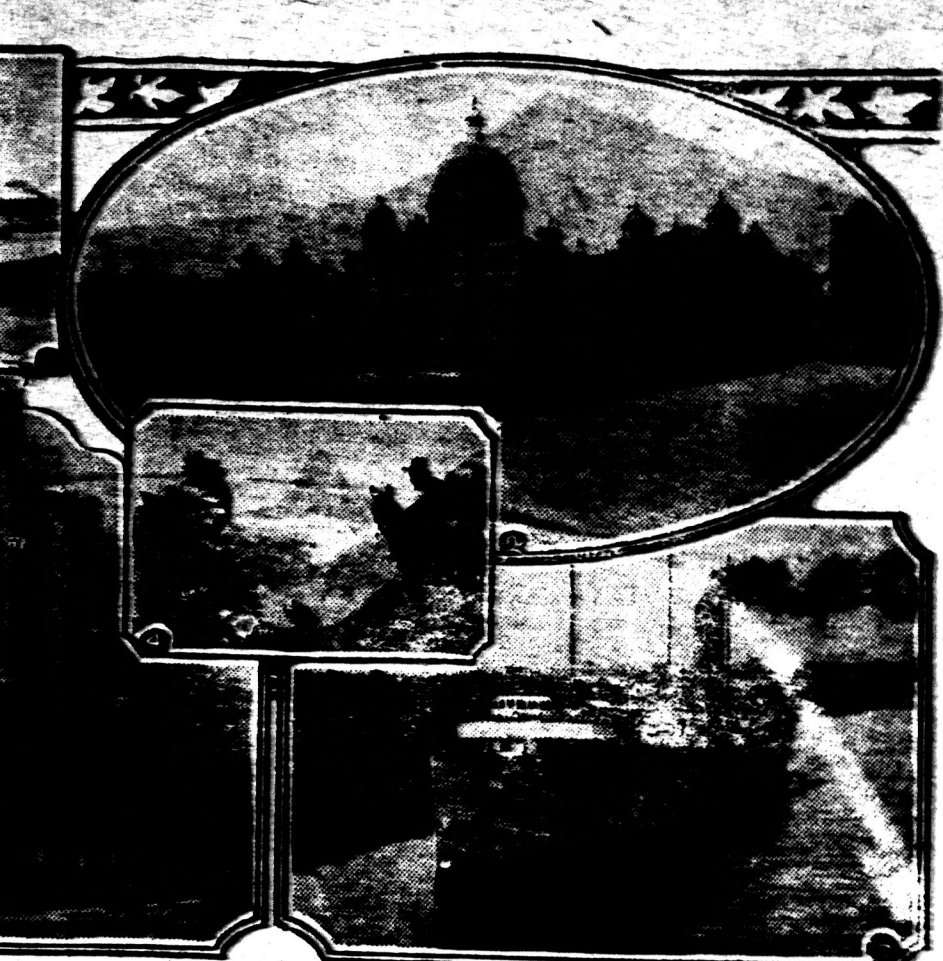

Following up some serious arguments in refutation of these statements, Mrs. J. J. Goodman wittily turned the tables in the support of her sex. "Solomon was the wisest man in the world and he had 700 wives, and a waiting list of 300," she said. "If he lived today when women are really good-looking, he would have had 7,000."

Applause for Adam

"Adam would have abolished Eve, but like the modern man, he wanted his bowl of applesauce, so he kept her," Mrs. Goodman said. "They tried to abolish Lot's wife and women have been the salt of the earth ever since. Look at the axes women have had to grind since Carrie Nation's day."

"A tin can regime would come in with the abolishment of women," the negative debater said. "You can't abolish her until you can perfect a machine that can cook, sew, mend clothes and sift ashes, pay bills, feed the children, nurse the sick, take care of the dog and the gold fish, wind up the clock, put out the cat, rock babies and listen patiently to very long fish stories." Mrs. B. F. Keller's points were also well sustained.

pleasant auspices and at the same time affording them an opportunity of gaining greater first hand knowledge of their country through personal contact has been arranged by the New Outlook, official organ of the United Church of Canada.

On June 25th, a "million dollar" special train will leave Toronto with a limited number of passengers from the eastern provinces aboard, and follow the confederation route. The "Confederation Special," as it will be called, will be operated on the all-expense plan which will enable practically all who have the time to travel to do so. It will touch all the principal cities and resorts in the west and operate for twenty days. The hospitality of the west—generally well known, so it is not surprising to learn that when the first announcement of the train was made, organizations and individuals in every city included in the itinerary offered to entertain the party and see that it was given every facility for sight seeing and enjoyment. The latest invitation is from the Prince of Wales's Ranch at High River to which the members of the special train party will motor from Calgary on July 1st.

their last tributes of respect to him who served them so well, so capably and so honorably. Few men can boast so wide and influential a circle of friends as "Jim" Ross, for to know him was but to admire his gentlemanly qualities and a deep-rooted admiration for his sincerity and consistency of purpose was held by everyone.

The pall-bearers were Hugh McQueen, Harry Barrett, Andrew Innes, Jim McQueen, Hubert Barrett and Bruce Smith.
