"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

"Lull" Was Ordered to Be "Stuffed" and Put in a Glass Case

Antonio Lull, the concert master of the Empress Catherine of Russia, a favorite at Court, and one famed throughout the world for his violin playing, was unmoved one day by the approach of the chief of police to execute a dreadful order which had come from the Empress herself. The severity of the order horrified him so that he could not speak, until Lull shrieked in his anguish to know the reason, to be sent to Siberia, to be discharged, imprisoned, or flogged?

The reality, said the chief of police, was much worse than these things—the command from the Empress was that Lull be "stuffed and put into a glass case!"

The violinist, terror-stricken by the horror of his fate, shrieked for mercy, and at last, after vain pleading with those about him, his cries came to the ears of the Empress.

"Great powers of Heaven! How horrid!" Catherine exclaimed as the great man was led trembling to her presence, and then she explained that her little spaniel, which she had named Lull, had died, and that it was her spaniel and not her concert master that she wished to have stuffed.

This brings to mind another Russian story of a name. When Gen.
Ignatieff was appointed Minister of the Interior, he asked Alexander III. to make Dumoff his assistant, and the Tsar, who had no love for Dumoff, burst out, "Which Dumoff? That stupid general?"

The Minister, afraid to displease his master, told a lie. He had meant, he said, "Dumoff the Governor of Ekaterinoslaff," and Dumoff the governor resigned in the stead of the general, and was the beginning of a great career.

An Industrious Beaver at Work.

Mr. A. D. Bartlett, son of a late superintendent of the London Zoo, or-logical Gardens, used to tell an interesting story of a captive Canadian beaver. A large willow-tree in the Gardens had blown down. A branch about twelve feet long and thirty inches in circumference was firmly fixed in the ground in the beaver's enclosure. Then the beaver was watched to see what he would do.
The beaver soon visited the spot, and walking round the limb commenced to bite off the bark and gnaw the wood about twelve inches from the ground. The rapidity of his progress was astonishing. He seemed to put his whole strength into his task, although he left off every few minutes to rest and look upward, as if to determine which way the tree would fall. About four o'clock, to the surprise of those who saw him, he left his work and came hastily towards the iron fence. The cause of this sudden movement was soon apparent.
He had heard in the distance the sound of the wheelbarrow bringing his supper. The keeper, not wishing to disappoint the beaver, although sorry to see his task interrupted, gave him his usual allowance of carrots and bread. The little fellow quickly ate it, and afterwards was seen swimming about the pool until about half-past five. Then he returned to his work, and in ten minutes the "tree" fell to the ground.

A Queer Recognition.

When Jane Welsh, who married Thomas Carlyle, was a girl, she was so full of life and energy as to be a match for the boys in running and leaping. One of the feats which made her famous in her native village was the ease with which she could surmount a wall seven feet high around the cemetery. Years afterwards, when she had become an old lady, she revisited the village, but walked the streets without being recognized by any of the companions of her youth.
A single action, however, betrayed her. She had made an arrangement with the sexton to be at the cemetery at early morn to unlock the gate. She was present earlier than the appointed time, and, after waiting some time, grew impatient, for she was eager to look on the graves of her revered parents. In her vexation at the long delay, she remembered the feat of her girlhood, and, though the suppleness of youth had gone, she managed to repeat the feat with tolerable ease. One of the old residents saw it, and soon after, meeting her, ventured to ask, "Is not this Jeannie Welsh?" "I thought it must be you, for there was never another girl in town who would get over the wall in that fashion."

Blunt Von Beelov.

For a certain intimate friend with whom he habitually stayed when he was in the land Hans von Beelov was ready to do anything on a day to accompany him to a large and formal disner-party—a kind of entertainment for which he had no taste. No sooner was the dinner at an end than the hostess asked Beelov to play. Beelov went to the piano without a word, but he only played a very short piece, frowning and scowling the while time. "What do you think of my piece?" asked the hostess. "Over the piano, madam," replied Beelov, still petite, "leaves something to be desired." "Indeed!" pursued the impudent lady. "And what ought I to have done to it?" "In the first place it wants new wires." "It shall have them." "Then the hammers need new leather." "They shall have it."
"And, after that, to the leather there must be new hammers." "Indeed!"
"Yes, madam, and I should next advise you to open the window and get two men to throw your piano into the street and make a bonfire of it!"

Nodded Approval.

"Do you think they approved of my sermon?" asked the newly-appointed vicar, hopeful that he had made a good impression.
"Yes, I think so," replied his wife;
"they were all nodding."

LONDON TO LONDON BY AIR

(1) Packages of air express, especially labelled, at the door of the cargo compartment in the express airplane.
(2) Inset: The single-motor Fairchild cabin-monoplane landed at the St. Hubert air-field, outside Montreal, after the flight from Rimouski.
(3) Canadian Pacific Express and customs officials at St. Hubert superintend the transfer from plane to plane.

Less than seven days after leaving the shipper in London, England, four packages of merchandise totalling forty two pounds in weight were recently delivered to the consignee in London, Ontario. This achievement was effected by the Canadian Pacific Express in the regular air express service maintained in connection with the trans-Atlantic liners entering and leaving the St. Lawrence.

In the forenoon on Saturday the packages left London and were placed aboard the "Empress of Australia" at London, Ontario, and they were transferred to the "Empress of Russia" at St. Lawrence River.

Not only is express to and from Europe greatly expedited by this arrangement, but domestic express shipments make constant use of the bi-weekly service between Ottawa and Montreal, Toronto and Montreal, and down the St. Lawrence to Rimouski, that thus serves two purposes. Express moving east or west between these points may be greatly speeded in delivery in this manner, and put considerably ahead of ordinary express matter, unaided by this auxiliary. Merchants have made use of the Canadian Pacific Express Air Service to ship articles of every description, from flowers to motion picture film.

Circle the Globe

2. The Fairchild cabin monoplane "City of New York" with her wings folded at Curtis Field, N.Y., prior to being loaded on a trans-Atlantic liner. 3. John H. Mears and Capt. C. E. Colyer, his pilot, with the dog mascot that Colyer carries the Pacific with their plane "The City of New York" aboard. She was used by Mears in 1913 when he made his first world record.

Twice now, John Henry Mears has circled the world in record time. On each occasion the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Russia" has enabled him to beat all former records. Twenty-three days before his plane "The City of New York" landed at Curtis field, L.I., Mears and his pilot, C. E. Colyer, flew 700 miles out to sea and landed aboard the ship that conveyed him to France. Arriving in Europe, he flew from Cherbourg to Yokohama and boarded the "Empress of Russia" at Kobe, where the white liner waited ready to dash across the Pacific continent in his plane and arrive at Battery Park, New York, 23 days, 15 hours, 21 minutes, and 3 seconds after he had left on his journey eastward. He sent the following telegram to Mr. H. B. Beaumont, of the Canadian Pacific Steamships at Montreal: "Colyer and I want to express our deep appreciation for the splendid cooperation we have received on our trip across the Pacific on the "Empress of Russia." Getting the ship in to Victoria Friday evening ahead of schedule saved us a day and we are deeply grate-ful."
