TO LAY CORNER STONE OF MAUSOLEUM AT PT. DOVER

On Sunday, September 2nd, at 3:30 p.m., a ceremonial laying of the corner stone of the new Community Mausoleum, at Port Dover, will take place.

Some of our readers in this district who have purchased space will doubtless wish to attend, and as this is the first structure of its kind in the County of Norfolk, it will be of particular interest to all the public spirited citizens in this community. The entire building will be open so that all those interested in this modern method of sepulture may see it for themselves.

The Port Dover Community Mausoleum occupies the very finest site in the Province of Ontario and the builders are erecting a structure which in quality and finish is worthy of the situation and the purposes, for which it is being built.

The ceremony will be conducted under the direction of the Port Dover Cemetery Board and Messrs. A. C. Stewart & Co., Ltd., the builders.

Reeve George L. Miller, of Jarvis, will perform the ceremony of the laying of the corner stone. Short addresses will be given by Rev. D. MacInnes, B.Th., George L. Miller, Ex-Warden R. M. Taylor; Col. Townsend, Warden of Norfolk County; A. C. Stewart and others.

All citizens of the Village and district are cordially invited to attend this interesting and unique ceremony.

MILLER-HARRISON

On Monday, the 27th inst, at 7:30 a.m., Harold A. Miller and Grace E. Harrison, of this Village, were united in marriage at Port Dover by the Rev. D. J. Cornish, Rector of the Anglican Church.

After partaking of a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents in the Village, they continued on their honeymoon by auto through Northern Ontario. They expect to be at home in Port Dover after the middle of September.

"The Romance of the Long Point Country"

Among the nations of the world Canada is known as a young country and its rise to the status of a nation, taking its place beside the older civilizations of the world, has tended to put somewhat in the background the picturesque happenings of its past. During the early developmental period, daring French explorers, traders and missionaries penetrated into the heart of the Canadian wilderness. These were followed later by the United Empire Loyalists, that great body of brave men and women, seeking new homes after the trials and tribulations of the American Revolution, who were the backbone of British North America. The Province of Ontario received its full share of these hardy and patriotic pioneers.

To the north shore of Lake Erie and particularly that district west from and including Port Dover, and as far up as Turkey Point, goes the palm for being among the first districts visited by the early French explorers and missionaries. They were followed over a hundred years later by the United Empire Loyalists who settled around Port Ryerse. During

The site selected by Governor-General Simcoe on Turkey Point in 1785 for a city that never was born. This pyramid of Moraine boulders marks the spot where two Sulpician Fathers spent the winter of 1699.

The war of 1812-14 this district received some attention from the warring factions of that time and did not escape entirely unscathed.

This section of country is known far and wide as the Long Point country.

To the man on the street, the name Long Point conjures up a vision of a long neck of land some twenty-five or thirty miles in length, that juts out into Lake Erie, with its flashing lighthouse, visible for many miles on a clear night, or memories of wild duck dinners, as the district is a great shooting place in the duck season, or probably big catches of bass. However it will not be through the eyes of the sportsman that we will attempt to describe certain happenings in the Long Point country, but rather through those of the historian, however feeble they may be.

From Hamilton, there is an excellent concrete and tarvia provincial highway via Caledonia and Hagersville to Jarvis. From Jarvis to Port Dover the road is macadam, and it is hoped by the time this article appears, that this latter stretch of road will be under construction, as it was recently taken over by the government as another thread in the web of Ontario's highways. If this happens to be the case, turn right at Jarvis and follow the Southern highway to Rehton, then turn left and a good gravel road will lead you to Port Dover.

It was at this latter place that things began to happen away back in the year 1669, when this country was practically an unknown wilderness.

We of today can travel comfortably by automobile over this route from Lake Ontario to Lake Erie, in a couple of hours. The old pioneers of a hundred years ago could possibly do it with a horse, in a day. But the early explorers, who travelled this route, pushing their way through virgin forests, lugging canoes and supplies to that first highway to Lake Erie, the Grand River, probably took weeks to accomplish the journey.

Just such a trip was taken by two Sulpician priests who visited this part of our province in the fall and winter of 1669. They were Francois Dollier, of the diocese of Nantes, in Brittany, and De Galinee, of the diocese of Rennes, also in Brittany, who, travelling as missionaries up the Great Lakes, took possession of this part of the country, claiming it in the

HELD SOCIAL EVENING

On Tuesday, August 28th, the members of Silver Star Rebekah Lodge held a social evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lemmon Jones. The evening was spent in music and games, after which the members presented Sister Jones with a beautiful silver cheese and cracker dish and wishing her every success in her new home to which Mr. and Mrs. Jones both gave a very suitable reply. Refreshments were then served, after which the party dispersed.
