OUR TRIP TO TORONTO

that the laws of our fair province have been passed there. It was at most as if the destiny of the province had been decided there. As I looked around at the boys and girls, the startling thought occurred to me, that there was every possibility of some of them, in the years to come, occupying those same seats in all seriousness.

While there, Mr. Whitlock, the assistant director of Agricultural Representatives, spoke briefly. Mr. Carroll and Mr. Putnam also made a few remarks. The young lady who happened to be occupying the Premier's chair, also spoke of the work taken up in Home Economics classes. The Honorable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture and speaker of the afternoon, arrived at this time. He spoke very highly of the advantages of farm life to those who were fond of it. He also emphasized the necessity of education in farming nowadays. At the conclusion of Mr. Martin's enjoyable address, it was high time for us to be thinking about Sunnyside Station again. At five minutes to 5, we left Toronto, feeling that the day was all too short, yet that we had enjoyed it to the utmost.

When we arrived in Hamilton, we went to the Royal Connaught Hotel for a banquet. At the conclusion of it, Mr. McCullough made an address. From the Connaught, we went to Pantages Theatre for the end of a perfect day.

At 10:25 the train left for Jarvis again carrying a much more tired yet much wiser crowd.

THE FEBRUARY ROD AND GUN

Covering a wide field of outdoor activities, the February issue of "Rod and Gun and Canadian Silver Fox News," just published, is an exceptionally interesting number. Bonnycastle Dale, well known writer for the magazine, this month contributes an unusually interesting story on hunting brant on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts. An enlightening discussion of the Rainy Lake damming proposals is concluded by Arthur Hawkes.

Among other stories and regular departmental features are some splendid hunting and fishing articles as well as informative material on bird life, guns and ammunition, trapping and dogs. Samuel Alexander White's fine series of fiction on the old fur trading days in the North West is concluded with another thrilling complete story. Another interesting article is one by Robert James, descriptive of the island of Anticosti at the mouth of the St. Lawrence.

A Record Fish and Story

1 The peaceful Caine River where the fighting "hook-bill" lurk.
2 In action on the Caine River.
3 Proof of the "fish story."

W. E. Kidder of Kalamazoo, Michigan arrived in Montreal over Canadian Pacific Railway lines, recently with the best "fish" story of the year. It was a pretty good story, and we had to believe him, especially when he showed us a forty-pound salmon packed away in ice in the observation car.
Now, Mr. Kidder is a pretty good fisherman, but he says that the experience he had while fishing in Caine River, New Brunswick is a solitary unique, and that as far as he knows he was successful in hooking what is probably a record salmon with a trout rod and fly.
"This fish is unquestionably the largest hook-bill, I have ever seen," said Mr. Kidder, "and the same opinion was expressed by game wardens who viewed the fish in the live box. But the really great point was the terrific fight that this fish put up. This was so spectacular and so fast and furious, accompanied by rush after rush of 150 to 200 feet, that we had no time to take a picture of it. My canoe man and myself were busy every second of the time from twenty minutes past four until after dark. In fact up to the last few minutes of the fight I stood with one foot in the boat and the other on the bank, and I was constantly changing the line and the fly across the river. The fish was three-fourths of a mile long, measured in a great hollow, then turned around the corner of the bank it would probably show that the hook-bill was a small trout fly."
