CANADA IN 1927

We are now well launched into the new year of 1928, and it is possible to examine the completed story of Canada's progress and development in the year now ended.

It is the universally expressed opinion that the year which witnessed the Dominion's diamond jubilee was one of the best years in Canada's history. It was a year unmarred by any great national disasters or epidemics; it was a year of fairly general prosperity; it was a year of national growth and of development along lines most apt for national unity and a better conception of Canada's future possibilities.

The Dominion is more highly regarded by our own people, and has attained to a higher place in the eyes of the whole world. The new status accorded the Dominion within the Empire has been productive of greater national pride and confidence which find expression in a still greater determination to build stronger and better in the years to come. Not least among the factors adding to Canada's international position was the election of the Dominion to a seat on the Council of the League of Nations and the appointment of a Canadian Minister at Washington, and an American Minister at Ottawa.

Western Canada can justly claim credit for many of the things which have resulted in the improved position of the country as a whole. During the past five years it is conservatively estimated that the farmers of western Canada have sold farm produce to a value of $2,000,000,000 at country points, and with the return of prosperity to the West, there has been a vast improvement in business everywhere. In a New Year's message Sir Henry Drayton declared that the gain of the year must be largely credited to agriculture and the extension of Canadian mining, and pulp and paper industries. Western people have long contended that successful and prosperous agriculture meant prosperity for all. The past year has demonstrated this.

One of the most noteworthy developments of the year has been the rapid increase of wealth produced from the mineral resources of the Dominion. Practically every province has experienced important developments in this respect, and no country in the world is now attracting quite so much interest, or inviting larger investments in this field of human activity. It is everywhere apparent that Canada is entering upon a new era in mining, and one which gives promise of adding enormously to the wealth of its people and providing employment for many thousands of workmen, not alone in mining itself but in the allied industries and business, including transportation, which active mining operations bring about.

The trade and commerce of Canada has continued at a high level, with the Dominion occupying a position in the front rank of nations, and with a per capita trade higher than any country except New Zealand.

In the world of finance Canada has been blessed with cheaper money for productive purposes than any country, except the United States. Taxation has been reduced, revenues have expanded and surpluses in government administration have taken the place of former deficits. Canada's ability to pay off over $50,000,000 of its national debt out of current income in 1927, is significant of the great change which has taken place in the last few years.

Western cities report a year of great building activity, a largely increased volume of bank clearings, growth in population, prompt payment of taxes, profitable operation of public utilities and good business in almost every branch of commercial activity. Towns and rural municipalities present the same favorable report, an ever increasing number of the latter

Choice of Dominion Capital To Be Celebrated

1. Entrance to Rideau Canal to Ottawa River before fire destroyed Parliament Buildings. 2. Old entrance to Rideau Canal—Parliament Hill, as it looked 100 years ago, as right—from painting by Clegg at time of opening of Canal, 1826.

In the late summer of 1826 Lieutenant-Colonel John By, of the Royal Engineers, selected the spot where the Rideau Canal should enter the Ottawa River, and in so doing settled the site of what afterwards became the capital of the Dominion of Canada. The centenary of this event is being marked this coming August by a celebration which is expected to be national in character. The Dominion Government has already intimated its intention, not only of taking part, but of signaling the occasion by extension of its works for the beautification of the capital. The celebration itself will include historical pageantry and will draw from the western plains a spectacular "Stampede" as illustrative of one of the historical phases of the development of that broad section of the Dominion.

In making his journey up the Ottawa, Colonel By was not planning for the capital of a Dominion but striving to strengthen the defences of one of the outworks of the British Empire. "During the war of 1812-15," says Hammett P. Hill, in a brief history of the construction of the Rideau Canal, "the British authorities experienced much difficulty in attempting the defence of the western part of the province. This was owing to the difficulties of transporting men and supplies from Montreal to Kingston, because of the rapids on the St. Lawrence River. They were also faced with the danger of a U. S. army blocking progress up the river by seizing some of the islands near Kingston. The cost of transport from Montreal to Kingston was also excessive, being fifty-four shillings per cwt.

This was the problem which Col. By came out to Canada to solve. He had spent nine years in this country after 1802, when he had been entrusted with the construction of the Martello towers at Quebec and the rebuilding of the Citadel, and he had also superintended the construction of the Cedars Canal near Montreal. The task of building the canal to connect the St. Lawrence and the Ottawa Rivers, 125 miles in length, through uninhabited country, was gigantic at that stage of the development of the country, and its successful completion stamps its builder as an engineer of high rank.

The coming of railways has superseded it and rendered it practically useless as a carrier of traffic; but it rendered valuable service in earlier days for the settlement of the Province of Ontario, both east and west. Three years after Bytown became Ottawa, it was chosen as the capital of the old Province of Canada.

The centenary celebration this summer will last two weeks, from August 15 to 28. The first week—August 15 to 21—will be devoted particularly to the centenary program, which will include an historical pageant illustrating outstanding periods and events in the history of the capital. During the same period the Edmonton Sampedo will give a daily program; while arrangements are also being made for holding the Rudder International Power Boat races for two days of that week. Plans are not fully completed for the celebration, but among other proposals under consideration are the erection of a monument to Colonel By. The Dominion Government is also preparing plans for the extension of the Driveway which is such an attractive feature of the city.

having highlighted their entire distinctive individuality and otherwise demonstrated their individuality and increased their assets.

Thus the old year closed with peace, contentment and prosperity prevailing throughout the Dominion, with a new confidence and courage manifesting itself throughout the Dominion, with activity general in the central western Provinces, and with optimism prevailing in the West, coupled with well organized efforts to steadily advance its agricultural interests and development and with entirely new opportunities on a large scale developing in the north. Canadians can and are facing the new year with pride and confidence.
