THE TENTH ARMISTICE DAY

Sunday the Nation mourns her soldier dead, honors her soldiers living, and with face resolutely to the future, rededication to the ideals of peace. In Sunday's observance there is no glorification of war. There is, indeed, little of the celebration of victory. There is much sober realization of the cost of it all and a grim determination that it shall not come to another generation through fault or omission of ours.

Yet, do we realize the full burden that we bear? It is not enough that we have the will for peace. It is not enough to refrain from any act that might invite war. We must do mightily for peace. Else all our hope and desire and longing are in vain. We profit us but little if we merely speak valiantly of peace, or shed a tear as the flag goes by. Let us have the fighting courage to face the issues of the day as they come before us, and do our bit toward guiding national destinies in the path of constructive service.

War or peace is determined by the course of governments. And the course of governments is determined by the long run by the expressed opinion of the people. A people eager for peace with honor will not unjustly be plunged into war. What can we the people do for peace? Think well of our neighbors. Give the stranger the benefit of the doubt even though he speak a different language, and call his God by another name. Be patient of misunderstanding. Be proud, but intolerant of swash-buckling conceit. Realize that a big nation must play a big part and play it nobly.

Sunday is Armistice Day. Let it be a day of plainer comprehension of the old vision, a day of rededication to the old ideals, a day of repentance in the old courage. Let it be a day on which we feel, with piety and devotion, not alone the Fatherhood of God, but the brotherhood of man.

PROSPEROUS YEAR AHEAD

Predictions that this year would witness a slowing down in business as compared with 1927 have already been confirmed, and November and December no doubt will put 1928 ahead of the preceding twelvemonth in business volume.

It will be recalled that about a year ago the perpetually down-in-the-mouth had forebodings that this was to be a bad year for the railroads, which, combined with a building slump and the arrival of the automobile industry at the saturation point, was to shut down many of the steel mills. Apparently, the only reason they didn't predict a panic was fear of creating one prematurely.

This time the business pessimists played the wrong horse. Railroad freight loadings have set records. It has been a year of bumper crops and in the main, favorable markets. Automobile manufacturers have established new records for earnings and production. Building operations have continued above normal throughout the country.

Signs are more favorable for a prosperous 1929 than they were a year ago for a prosperous 1928.

DEADLY

Carbon monoxide gas is deadly—doubly so because the victim receives no warning of its presence. A few revolutions of the motor will turn a small garage into a lethal gas death chamber. The gas is odorless and invisible. Chemists declare that less than three minutes is required to generate a lethal dose of the gas, even when the victim is strong, and that much less time is required to kill persons with less sound constitutions. There is one motorist who need feel no fear of this deadly gas. He or she is the driver who opens the garage doors and a car window before starting the motor in a garage. Carbon monoxide gas never strikes in open quarters.

It is a great temptation, these cold mornings, to tarry a few moments in the closed garage and warm up the motor and car before backing out into the frosty air. Just how often this temptation is not resisted can be told by the increasing number of deaths due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

The contempt in which many persons are wont to hold repeated warnings is demonstrated by these preventable deaths. For a little convenience or a moment's comfort they risk their lives. You ask why. Why does a hunter drag his gun through Love's blind, but that shouldn't make a girl kiss everybody.

You have to cultivate good habits. The bad ones grow wild.

The bottom rungs of the social ladder have been kicked out.

The best reflections come from thinking instead of looking into mirrors.

There are people who never lose an opportunity to enjoy being miserable.

The man with six children knows more about shoes than the man who makes shoes.

It's a great life if you don't believe in everything you see, hear, think or know.

The nicest thing about neighbor's children is they never turn out as badly as you expect.

One of the needs of the times is to impress on many persons the importance of slowing up at curves.

About the only dictating a man can get away with now is what he pays the stenographer to take.

WHY NOT THE ZEP?

We understand that Bert Fitzgerald and Harry Duxbury are negotiating with the C. N. R. to purchase "the li Grannie" so as to provide private ways and means to convey them to their work on Monday mornings.

ARMISTICE DAY

The secretary of state at Ottawa has forwarded the following message to the lieutenant-governor of Ontario, Hon. W. D. Ross:

"His Majesty has approved the arrangements for observance in this country of Armistice Day, November 11, on the same lines as in previous years. As the day falls on Sunday, the several ecclesiastical authorities have been asked to arrange that services shall begin at such hours as may be convenient in order to ensure that there shall be everywhere a pause in service at 11 a.m., when silence will be observed in every place of worship."

Over 12,000 farmers have joined the Ontario Grain Pool. All farmers in the neighborhood of Jarvis can have their grain sold by Pool as Mr. Blight is now buying for the Pool. The Pool is now paying 97c per bushel when wheat is delivered; second payment about February 1929; last payment about June. Parties wanting further information can have same from John Walker, Nanticoke P.O.; phone 3-46, Jarvis, or from Mr. Blight, miller.

HEALTH HABITS

A great deal has been written and said about health habits, and about the importance of starting the child on life's adventure with proper health habits. There is no doubt that it is just as easy to establish right habits as wrong ones. Habits are acts which we repeat, without thinking about them at the time we perform them. We do not eat from our knives because it is our habit to put only forks and spoons into our mouths. We do this without thinking because back in our childhood days our parents, by example and correction, established this as a habit with us.

Those who have established that most important habit of washing the hands before eating, practice this habit and do not feel comfortable if they sit down to eat without washing. The same is true as regards the cleaning of the teeth. The person who cleans his teeth regularly finds that his mouth feels dirty if he misses the regular cleaning.

These and other simple, regular habits can be established in the child by a consistent effort on the part of the parents. The effort will be repaid many times in the better health of the child, and by the happier and less troublesome existence for parent and child that will grow out of a life that is regular.

The child is not a small adult; he is not to be looked upon as such. His desire for play is natural and should be encouraged. We do not want to make him "a little man." Proper health habits do not interfere with his child life; they help to make him enjoy it more and to keep him well; also, to prepare him for the adult years which lie ahead of him.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered by letter. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.

JARVIS BRANCH OF THE BIBLE SOCIETY

Whom It May Concern:—The Holy Bible is the book of all books and it should be in the hands of every person under the canopy of God's heavens. Some day the Bible agents will call upon you for this year's donations, to give Bibles in their own tongue to the numerous foreigners that are coming to our great Canada. We should induce the people to read the word of God and live up to it. This means less crime and safety for our people. It behooves us not to turn them away without some help for the extension of God's Kingdom.

2. Take off all of the upper covering except the upper sheet and a blanket.

4. Move the patient over to one side, and then fold up the soiled draw sheet as close as possible to the patient.
5. Put the clean draw sheet (one half either rolled or folded) on the side of the bed from which the soiled draw sheet has been rolled, with the rolled or folded part of the clean sheet placed next to the patient and the loose part placed where the soiled sheet was removed.
6. Turn the patient gently on his back and roll him over on his other side and onto the smooth clean part of the draw sheet.
7. Take off the soiled draw sheet, smooth out the folded side of clean draw sheet, tuck under the mattress and pin. The under sheet can be removed the same way when necessary. Then finish making the bed by placing upper covering in position. Be sure the upper covers are not drawn too tightly over the patient's toes.

Great Soprano Grooms "Grand Young Man" of C. P. R.

There is Colonel George H. Ham of the C.P.R. This was one of the first questions asked by Marie, the most celebrated soprano of the time, when she visited Montreal on October 5th, 1928. She sang "The Grand Young Man" of the C.P.R. and the crowd was so big that she had to sing it in a small room. She sang it so well that she was asked to sing it again. She sang it so well that she was asked to sing it again. She sang it so well that she was asked to sing it again.

an interesting chat with the engine men who guided her train to "The" where she sang on October 10th. She gave the engine men some roses from the flowers received from appreciative members of her Montreal audience. In private life, Marie is the wife of Brown, a member of the C.P.R. and a very good singer. She is a very good singer and a very good singer.
