THE CIVILIZING FORCE

According to one conception, the love of money is the root of all evil; according to another, it is one of the great principles that move the world. It is not deniable that love of money leads to the commission of many crimes. On the other hand, what would be the material and moral state of the world were there no passion for wealth. We would have few of the comforts and conveniences that are now available to most of us if most of the people were indifferent to money; did not care greatly for it or for the things that are to be had in exchange for it.

All the great discoveries in science and every one of the great inventions that have been made might have been brought forth if nobody cared for money. But they would not have been needed to account. Knowledge is useful only when employed to the general advantage. If there were no love of money there would be no capital to exploit the products of science and invention, nor would there be incentive to engage in the manufacture and distribution of the great mass of devices that have become necessities to us. People would be born, struggling through a space of time to secure a bare living and die. They might or they might not be concerned about a future state. Whether or not they were, they would be kept busy as we are finding the things required. And they would be as ruthless about it as Twentieth century man is often alleged to be in the quest of money. Primitive civilization was more brutal than ours is. In the process of refinement through which he has passed during the successive centuries man as denounced as criminal believer that which could not be condemned in earlier times because it seemed to be necessary for individual preservation.

In the pursuit of money today there is a minimum of injustice. At any rate everybody gets a chance to secure a share of the general store of wealth, usually enough for his needs, and at the same time may enjoy the fruits of intelligence and industry. More, everybody who works for money nowadays makes a contribution to the common welfare. The love of wealth moves the world a great deal; it may be responsible for considerable evil. However, our progress has made it possible to supply most legitimate wants legitimately, hence there is less need to resort to various ways to secure money.

ON BEING A HOME-TOWN BOOSTER

This paper believes in Jarvis and Jarvis' future. It believes that Jarvis is destined to be a much better town than it is today. It believes that the great majority of people living in Jarvis have an abiding faith in the town's future and in the Jarvis of to-morrow. It is this faith that has made Jarvis and it is this same faith that is going to continue to make Jarvis a greater town.

No one need talk of "putting Jarvis on the map." For, all the world knows, Jarvis is already on the map; it has had a conspicuous place there for many years. And it is going to remain there—forever.

Jarvis is already a great place in which to live. If one were to look all around the world, none better could be found. When everything is considered, no one honestly can say that any other town is a better place than Jarvis. For that reason, if you have any money to invest, invest it in Jarvis. It is safer at home than it is any place else. Keep it out of the clutches of the oily-tongued stock salesman who comes from a distance and wants your money to invest in an enterprise, the merit of which you know nothing save what is told you by the man or men seeking to "separate you from four coin."

If you have any money to invest, think it over—and then invest in Jarvis. Every resident of Jarvis ought to be a booster for Jarvis and Jarvis enterprises. Owning Jarvis real estate will go a long way towards making all citizens a booster for the home town. Build or buy a home—and grow with Jarvis, and enjoy to the full all the benefits of being a Jarvis home owner.

Sometimes it looks as though Europe's troubles were temporary, and then again they seem to be chronic.

Be ye not deceived! The car that comes out with new designs has the same ones on the pedestrians.

Jack Mitchell—"Her niece is rather good looking, eh?"

George Webb—"Don't say 'knees is,' say 'knees are.'"

An experienced wife is one who can dream of other things while pretending to listen to her husband's description of his symptoms.

We read every day about the New York banks lending call money and later calling it. We could borrow it all-right, but what if they should call and we just couldn't hear them?

If there is compensation for every situation the stocking makers, nicked by the sockette fad, will have to console themselves that business is going to be good for the razor blade manufacturers.

The Kansas inventor who has an automobile brake that will stop a car going 60 miles an hour within twenty feet has something else to puzzle out. He has to invent a brake to stop the driver and the passengers who hastily will have passed through the windshield.

That bulletin of the department of agriculture which read "The cat crows third in importance" would not have been so far from the truth had the last two words been omitted. "Even the printer should have known the difference between cats and cats."

PERSONS, NOT THINGS, ARE DANGEROUS

From time to time, we may read in the press, or hear someone express surprise that a second case of some communicable disease has occurred in a private home, school or institution, in spite of the fact that disinfection and fumigation of the place had been carried out.

Such surprise is evidence of a faith in a procedure concerning which modern knowledge has taught us the mistake.

Communicable diseases are spread by discharges from the body, which carry disease germs, and this spread practically occurs in a direct manner. It is the fresh, moist droplets from the nose and mouth that are sprayed directly on others by careless coughers, sneezers and spitters which are the real danger. It is the saliva left on the common drinking-cup that is a menace to the next user. It is the warm, moist hands, soiled with body excretions, that carry disease germs to the mouth, either directly or by soiling food that is going into the mouth.

Disease germs die comparatively quickly outside the human body. The person carrying these disease germs must be discovered and isolated if the spread is to be stopped. In the schools and institutions, this means a medical and nursing service organized for this purpose.

Washing of furniture and fumigation of rooms is not the correct way to fight the communicable diseases. The correct way is to find the source (some human being) and then to isolate this person.

It is persons, not things, who are dangerous!

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered by letter. Questions as to diagnosis and treatment will not be answered.

Some of the grandest buildings in the world have been tombs. Take the Pyramids, the Castle of St. Angelo, the Tomb of Cecilia Metella, as well as many temples in the eastern countries.

Crypt is derived from the word krypto, meaning "I hide." The most celebrated tombs in the world are the mausoleums in Greece, Asia Minor and Rome. They are generally erected on the highways leading from the town, such as the "Street of Tombs" at Pompeii, and the "Via Appia" at Rome.

Several years ago the cemeteries were under churches, but today we have become real modern and we have begun to see things in a different light. Fifty years ago, yes, 100 years ago, cemeteries were never placed in this manner—away from the city or town.

The Ceremony

A tin box placed in the corner stone contained the following Canadian coins: a 25c piece, a 10c piece and one of the new; and two 1c pieces (one of the old vintage and one of the new); also the current issue of the Port Dover Maple Leaf and the Simcoe Reformer.

After the laying of the corner stone, Mr. Miller said: "On behalf of the Port Dover Cemetery Board and people of this town and district I pronounce this stone well and truly laid, on the level and on the square. May our love be on the square of Action and Truth."

Before pronouncing the blessing, the Rev. D. J. Cornish, L.Th., rector of St. Paul's church, Port Dover, and Christ church, Victoria, said: "This corner stone stands for kindness and reverence. We are all God's creatures. We have an idea of an ingrained reverence—the recognition of God's hand on us."

Largest Passenger Engine in British Empire

When the largest passenger locomotive in the British Empire emerged from Angus Shops under her own steam, close to eight thousand employees, most of whom had contributed something to her creation, stopped to cheer on, her throttle gently opened for the first time, she moved slowly forward. She is a triumph of Canadian design and engineering craftsmanship; a graceful mechanism nearly one hundred feet long, with a tractive effort of 60,000 pounds, equal to 3,685 horse power.

Although its weight, 424,000 pounds, is greater than that of any other passenger engine in Canada, the extensive use of Canadian nickel steel parts has reduced it to a minimum, and the high ratio of tractive power to weight is a notable feature of the new engine. Other features are a one-piece cast steel locomotive bed; a tender with a water bottom underframe; boiler pressure of 275 pounds, the highest of any locomotive in Canada; and a length of engine and tender of 97 feet 5 inches. There are eight pairs of wheels, a four-wheel leading truck, eight drivers, and a four-wheel trailing truck. The wheels have a diameter of 75 inches and the cast nickel steel cylinders are 25½ inches by 30 inches. The coal capacity is 12,000 tons, and water capacity 12,000 gallons. A mechanical stoker automatically lights the dust of the furnace.

The new design aimed at largely increased power, reduction of weight and elimination of parts. The result has shown that Canadian technical skill and workmanship is equal to the task of producing a fully equipped engine of the best type under its own power, and that the Canadian Pacific Angus shops, the second largest on the continent, are capable of vying successfully with recognized engine building plants anywhere in the world.
