SANDUSK W. I.

The Sanduski branch of the W. I. held their annual meeting at the home of Miss Belle McDonald, with 18 in attendance and the President in the chair. The meeting was opened by singing the opening ode, followed by the repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison. The roll call was answered by all on "Labor Savers." The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. All members present paid their annual fee. The books were audited and found correct by Mrs. H. Pond and Mrs. H. Dougherty. Moved by Mrs. J. Peacock, seconded by Mrs. J. Bush, we buy a silver cup for the new baby in our district; carried Mrs. Frank Pond wrote a letter for the Institute to Mrs. John Pond, who is ill in St. Joseph's hospital. Moved by Mrs. F. Pond, seconded by Mrs. H. Pond, that Mrs. W. Werner, Mrs. C. Bush and Mrs. Cal. Bush act as a judging committee for the children's work of the Sanduski school—boys, building bird houses and girls darning socks—45c being allowed for prizes. Miss F. Nicol thanked the members for kindnesses received while ill.

Miss Belle McDonald gave a splendid report of the directors' meeting. Our grandmothers then took over the meeting. Mrs. J. R. Pond, "The Blacksmith's Story;" Mrs. J. Bush, "The Pioneers;" Mrs. J. Peacock, "My Early History;" Mrs. W. Werner, "We Are Growing Older Every Year." "Grandmother's Rules." This brought to a close a very interesting and enjoyable program. The hostess served a dainty lunch and a vote of thanks was tendered Miss McDonald and her mother for their kind hospitality.

My Early History

My field of observation in the early days was very limited. Practically everyone in rural Ontario being confined to the local school section.

Still a picture of conditions as they existed in that locality 50 years ago. My first days at school were passed in a frame building where the seats were long benches without backs and paralleling the walls. When going over the reading lessons the pupils faced the center of the building; when writing, they turned to the wall and wrote on long slanting desks nailed to the walls. The seats were all the same height from the floor. The ceiling of the building was plastered with ink spots due to corks flying upwards as ink in bottles frozen at night was turned into steam on the stove in the morning. Full care was taken that the child was not spoiled by sparing the rod, as rods were all too convenient. They grew in trees along the roadside and subjects for discipline were sent out to bring in their own implements of torture. There were no places of worship nearer my home than Jarvis and no way of going only by oxen or on foot, which was about seven miles. There was a minister by the name of Briggs who came to one of the homes once a year and held a christening of all the babies of every denomination.

There was very little variety in diet in those days. Milk was in very limited supply in winter and butter was packed in crocks in summer to serve until snow disappeared and grass came again. The chief supply of fresh fruit in summer was obtained from berries growing in fence corners and new clearings. One of the events of our home was going for apples in the fall and the scanty fruit supply was apples cored and dried on strings above the kitchen stove, and wild berries dried in the summer sun.

Clothing, while warm, was very plain. Hand looms made home-grown wool that had been carded and made into rooks and spun into yarn and made into clothing for all members of the family. The yarn was spun by hand on spinningwheels made for that purpose, and day after day was spent going backward and forward as the great wooden wheel hummed under my hand. I believe in that year I must have covered not short of the distance traversed by Lindbergh in his flight over the Atlantic.

It was hard for beasts as well as humans in the days of the pioneers. The straw stack at that time made a poor substitute for the well filled silos of the present day. It was a common practice for cows to be turned out in spring to browse on the tops of limbs of beech and basswood felled for the purpose. Some of the younger boys and girls, whether in town or country, may think their work hard today—they do not know what real work is. I have seen men swing the cradles from morning till night amid waving grain and in winter for some it was chop wood with snow nearly waist deep, while others hauled cordwood to the railway for locomotive fuel, and all this for a long day's toil not equal to the hourly wage of a skilled mechanic of today. In those days there were no gas or electricity, no beef rings, like there is in the present day.

CHAMPION OF SPELLING BEE

13-Year-Old Girl Wins Championship of the United States—Japanese Youth Is One of Last Boys to Succumb

WASHINGTON, May 22. — Thirteen-year-old Virginia Hogan, of Omaha, Neb., is the spelling champion of the United States.

She gained the honor by spelling "luxuriance" and all other tongue-twisting words that were put to her last night in the finals of the fifth annual national spelling bee.

After such words as "diaphanous," "onerous," "aggrandizement" and "apothecosis" had sent the twenty other contestants back to their sats, the dark-haired maid representing the Omaha World-Herald was still on her feet. For standing up so long under this barrage of orthography she was awarded the $1000 prize.

Virginia's last competitor was Virginia Strbac, entrant of the Milwaukee Journal, who succumbed to the trickeries of "luxuriance" by spelling it with an "e" instead of the "a." She was preceded to her seat by one of the four boys in the finals, Teru Hayashi, a Japanese youth, who represented the Atlantic City Press.
