Canadian Penal Institutions, by C. W. Topping, comes from Chicago University Press. The author is a Canadian, formerly keeper of the common jail in Kingston from 1917-1924, since which time he has made special study of all penal institutions in Canada for the purpose of this book. He crossed the continent eight times gathering material and saw at first hand every typical place of confinement. He searched all available records. His findings may be taken as accurate.

He finds that Kingston penitentiary, where he spent seven days as an investigator, has become one of the most advanced penitentiaries in America, excelled only by that at Prince Albert, which is more modern in design. He pays particular compliment to Superintendent of Penitentiaries, Gen. Hughes, brother of the late Sir Sam, who has made it his business to modernize penitentiary regimes, notably in the matter of industry whereby he claims that prisons can be made self-supporting. He found libraries in all the six Canadian penitentiaries; in Kingston a magazine list of 40 periodicals "that would do credit to any library or club," a catalogue of 157 pages; a total of 13,000 volumes about as many as in the library at Sing Sing.

The last he finds is only administered as a part of a sentence, or by particular permission of the minister of justice for discipline—never as a part of the penitentiary's own regime. Cells have been improved since the days when a son of Warden Lavell said to the writer that the difference between a room and a cell, was that there was no room in a cell. The old cells in Kingston used to be only 30 inches wide. The aim of these institutions, he says is, to reform the criminal through discipline, education and industry.

The author pays a special compliment to the reformatory at Ghelph, which is really a school of character with accent on open air work, and to the Boy's Training School at Bowmanville conducted by Dr. Benman.

Will the person who took my pig-erate, from the Jarvis Stock Yards, about the 20th of March, please return it where they got it and save further trouble.

Motor Driver Sleeps Three Suffer Injuries

New York Tourists in Simcoe Hospital After Car Turns Over

Simcoe, April 14.—Samuel Turner, 70, of Port Henry, N. Y., is in the Norfolk General Hospital recovering from injuries received about 5 o'clock this morning when he was thrown through the top of a car driven by Victor Chesney, 21, who police allege fell asleep at the wheel. The car subsequently left the road and landed in a deep ditch, injuring the three occupants.

Chesney, Samuel Turner and Bert Turner, aged 18, son of the former, were enroute from Port Henry to Jarvis. According to Provincial Constable Wm. C. Oliver of Simcoe, the old man is said to have stated that while approaching the Bendon turn, five miles east of here, he noticed the car pursuing a course towards the extreme left side of the road. He was sitting in the back seat alone at the time and shouted to Chesney, who woke with a start, but was unable to prevent the vehicle from going into the ditch.

As the car left the road it turned a complete somersault and the aged man was thrown through the top of the car some distance away, severely injured. His son and Chesney were badly shaken up and were found shortly after the accident by a truck driver who conveyed them to the home of Robert Nixon from where Provincial Constables Oliver and Shipley of Simcoe, and Dr. S. English were summoned. Samuel Turner was rushed to the hospital suffering from numerous cuts and possible concussion, but to-night he was pronounced out of danger by doctors attending him and will be able to leave the hospital in the course of the next few days. It is unlikely that any charge will be laid against Chesney.

A special meeting of the Council, of the Board of Trade, was called for Monday night for the expressed purpose of trying to do their bit in opposing the proposal of the Canadian National R. R. to cut off two trains daily through Jarvis, after the 27th of April.

After consulting with Mayor Peachy of Simcoe, Rev. Aldridge of Caledonia and the Business organization, of Hagersville, who all agreed to take up the matter in protest.

A resolution was drafted setting out the many reasons why the newly proposed schedule should not be put in effect, and which was presented at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce with the R. R. officials in Hamilton, on Wednesday.

A number of young people attended a shower to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davidson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Davidson, on Friday night last.

A great many beautiful and useful gifts were presented to the happy couple. The evening was spent mostly in games, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

After an enjoyable evening, the guests left wishing the bride and groom much happiness in the future.
