LIFE'S UNEXPECTED ISSUES

When we are expecting certain events to happen in our life, we make preparations accordingly. But there are very few events that we are really prepared to meet. Life is full of surprises. — Full of Unexpected Issues.

The world in which we live, may be full of sunshine to-day, when held, without a moment's warning, chaos breaks loose, in our home, or the stock market breaks, or that which we love most dearly has passed beyond our reach. So often these unexpected issues strike home at us, with such tremendous force, that we are completely dazed. We lose the power, to control our mind. The shock is so great, that we find ourselves in a world of mystifying uncertainty, so that we do not know which way to turn. We are like a great ship lost at sea without a captain.

How very true are those words, "In the midst of Life we are in Death." Last week I received a message from Chicago, telling me of a terrible accident, which happened to two boys, wherein they were both killed. I lived as a neighbor to these boys for nearly five years, and they were care-free and full of pulsating life. They surely did not know that on July 1st, they would meet with such an accident. Yet, I recall hearing their anxious mother, telling them so often, to be careful when they were out on the streets or driving in a car. But their book of life is closed forever, and a great burden of sorrow has fallen on the shoulders of the mother. The anxious mother who was always on the alert to protect her children from danger, and from Life's unexpected issues, to-day is in a world of sorrowful despair. In such moments of travail and sorrow, there is but one hope and comfort—God. He alone can clear away the dark clouds of despair. In such hours we have need to learn the lesson of perfect submission. Our Garden of Gethsemane is a good place to face these unexpected issues—These bitter cups of sorrow from which we have to drink. Let us truly say with Him who faced the trying experience, of an expected issue, in the sacrifice of His own life. He asked that His cup of sorrow might pass, but "Not His will! But Thine be done."

We find a wonderful message of comfort in the words of the Psalmist, David. He was a man who passed through great trials and tribulations. A very conscientious man. He was beset on every side by his enemies. The temptation of the lustful issues of life were hard for him to resist. The travail of his soul was sad and pathetic. Yet, he brings to us a beautiful thought in these words, while he was in the depths of despair. He cried out to God with thanks,—"Thou hast enlarged my heart in the hour of distress." Great man of God. He realized that without God, he never could have lived through his lonely hours of tribulation and sorrow. God will always enlarge our hearts, so that the burden will not be too much for us.

The Great World War was surely a startling unexpected issue to all of us. It left in its wake, not only a few sorrowful hearts, but thousands upon thousands. Those that felt it the most was the anxious mothers. They gave to the Allies, the dearest treasures of their hearts. Their sons. Only the enlargement of their hearts, by God, made it possible for them to live through those dark lonely hours, when they waited day after day, hour after hour, for word from those they loved. If the message was one that told them, that their boys were alive and safe, what an ecstasy of joy filled their hearts. The worried expression would relax and a thankful prayer go up to God. I knew a mother in Western Canada, who gave all she had, six sons—Six living sacrifices—Yet she told me that she was thankful to God, that he had made it possible for her to live through it all and say "Thy will be done." She did not blame God for her loss, like many people do. He does not plan these terrible calamities—But He does warn us to be careful. The saying that God has called a loved one home, is beautiful, but do not forget that He would rather see us live our three score and ten years. The conditions un-

In which we live, the way we abuse our health, all goes to shorten our life; therefore we must pay the penalty of departing this life before our time has come to go.

In the sad case, mentioned above, the sorrowing mother should not condemn herself and think that God is angry with her. He is not an angry God like some believe, but a loving and kind Father, who desires that we may have life and enjoy it more abundantly.

God does protect His children. If we knew how often, through our every-day life, we were in actual danger from accidents, why we would be afraid to venture out into the days activities. By faith and trust we live every day, so unconsciously dependent upon God, yet we never think of giving Him thanks and credit for His great protective care.

All accidents are unexpected issues yet many people will tell you how they had a warning or at least something seem to tell them that there was danger about, but paid no heed. That something was the voice of God. There is only one safe and sure way to happiness, and that is to live right with God, then we have no condemnation on ourselves for what may happen.

Be of good courage, strong and brave, then we shall be heroic soldiers, able to fight a good fight and live a good life.

This editorial is written and dedicated to a very dear friend, Julia Cloonan, who mourns the loss of her two boys, Tom and Harold. They were killed in a motor car accident July 1st. This also carries a message to her surviving two children, Clifford and Margaret, and also a friend, Charles Buff.

MAIN STREET APPLE SAUCE

A little foolishness now and then is relished by the wisest men. This saying is proving true. The Editor has received over thirty favorable comments on the Main Street Apple Sauce, while there has just been one unfavorable.

Some wild and foolish driver, With bugle horn on his car, Speeds and races around the town, You can hear him near and far.

Why all this needless speeding, Should be displayed on his part; The out come—Someone killed, And he and his car will part.

Somebody with sticky fingers removed a pepper shaker from Miller's Lunch room—Why the pepper shaker in hot weather? Must have had poor eye sight. Salt is the stimulating essence for beer.

Oh! Ed! Have you got the Record? Asked one neighbor of the other; I would like to borrow it of you, Then mail it to my brother.

Oh! Ed! Let me look at the Record, I did not get mine last week, And if you really do not mind, Mrs. Jones would like to have a peek.

Oh! Ed! Lend me your Record, And I know you will not care If I cut out a news item, And mail it to sister Clara.

Good Morning! Neighbor Ed, I just ran across the street, To borrow your Jarvis Record, For its news; well it can't be beat.

I would subscribe for it myself, But it is really not worth while, When I have such a nice neighbor, With such a cheery smile.

Yes! Ed is some fine neighbor, And likes to keep the Record on file, But how can that be possible, When neighbors borrow all the while, The Scotch have got nothing on this.
