Clubs Are Planned For British Women

London.—A plan for assisting British professional women is now being advanced. To those working out of their own country the problem of where to live on retirement is a real difficulty. Most of them have no homes, and in many cases have no particular wish to return to England, where their problem might be even more difficult of solution.

The inhabitants of Cyprus are expert at needlework, and also make honey and jams in considerable quantities. tI is proposed to co-operate with them in developing their work and selling their produce, thus affording social and mental stimulation for all concerned. These British professional women abroad are drawn from many professions, teachers, librarians, forth.
