Royal Fair Exhibitors are Optimistic

There is a fine tone of optimism regarding economic conditions in Canada and a most inspiring personal cheerfulness in the attitude of prospective exhibitors for the forthcoming Royal Winter Fair, according to a survey made at the Royal Offices this week. Already those who have their thumb on the pulse of the fair predict an unsurpassed entry from all the provinces. Judging by the letters received there seems to be growing up among horsemen, cattle, sheep and swine breeders, poultry fanciers, fruit, flower and seed growers, Government Officials and agriculturalists of every sort, an opinion that this year's Royal offers an opportunity for them to express publicly their faith in the underlying soundness of their varied industry. Some of the letters bristled with optimism and good spirit. Every effort is being made to turn these signs of cheerfulness into acts, and to reflect through the Royal Fair this tone of confidence in basic conditions in Canada.

Preparations are well forward in every department. The Royal Horse Show promises to be more than equal to the dashing and brilliant precedents. An especially rousing feature is assured this year by the presence of crack army teams from European countries, United States and Canada.

Exceptionally fine performances with breath taking incidents are being arranged for every evening.

The poultry and pet stock divisions are certain to be packed to the floor. Twenty one specialty poultry and pigeon clubs will hold their club meets during Royal Fair Week. An unusually interesting show of fruit is looked forward to, not only from Ontario, but from British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces. The seed competitions will be unique in having a class for registered commercial seed taken from actual samples sealed at the threshing by the Government Inspectors. The exhibits of dairy products, in which the Royal has always been foremost on this continent, will be no whit behind previous years.

The dog show held in co-operation with the National Kennel Club will bring in again over 600 dogs of the best type. The cat show held for the first time last year in conjunction with the Royal Canadian Cat Club is expected to double the entries next November.

Some outstandingly fine silver and black foxes are promised from Prince Edward Island, and Ontario, New Brunswick, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia will be represented. The total value represented in the fox pens on the upper floor of the West Annex is likely to be greater than in any previous year.

Entry lists in all departments will be open until October 30th, though it is significant of the enthusiasm that entries are being received earlier than usual at the Royal Winter Fair offices. All this is indicative, according to the management of the Fair, of a profound spirit of optimism throughout agriculture that is of special significance to other industries and enterprises in Canada at the present time.
