Outstanding Military Competitions at Royal Winter Fair, Toronto

Six international army officers' teams, it is announced, will compete at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto next month. There will be teams from the Irish Free State, Hungary, Sweden, Germany and the United States, as well as a Canadian team. This record number for such a competition in any horse show on this continent has been secured by an exceptionally fortunate combination of events.

The teams, each consisting of four officers of their respective national armies, will compete for the much-prized International Officers' Team Challenge Trophy, a contribution to the Royal Winter Fair of the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario. The foreign teams are coming to Canada through invitations that were extended by the Canadian Government to the Governments of the countries mentioned, which were each case most cordially accepted. The Hon. R. R. Bennett and Hon. Mr. Ferguson, while in London, were closely associated with the final stages of the negotiations, which naturally passed through diplomatic channels to the various Governments while President Cochrane, of the Irish Free State personally interested himself in the arrangements of the Irish team. Similar official invitations have been extended to the European teams, as well as to a Canadian team, by the Government of the United States for their participation in the horse shows of New York and Boston.

The competitors from Europe and the United States are the very pick of daring military riders. They have in each case been selected on a competitive basis. All the officers will ride in the smart uniforms of their respective regiments adding still another bright feature to the colorful scene at the Royal Coliseum. With the officers will be four orderlies and groomers and each team will bring for the contest a minimum of eight horses in order to provide plenty of "spares" in what is certain to be one of the keenest equestrian competitions ever seen on this continent.

The foreign teams are the guests of the Royal this year through the courtesy cordially extended by O'Keefe's Beverages Limited to the Royal Winter Fair and will be the guests of the Royal Winter Fair Association during their stay in Canada.

International military jumping Royal Horse Show programme each evening during the Royal Fair, Nov. 19 - 21. Special interest, for national and other reasons, attaches to the visit of the team from the Irish Free State, which with the Canadian team will form the gage of the British Empire. The Swedish and Hungarian teams have excellent records for horsemanship in their own countries, and especially at the Olympics, London, but are practically unknown on this side of the Atlantic. The German representation is already well known, widely known in the riding world because of its popular reception at the Olympics last year and exhibits at Berlin and other places in the German Republic within the last two years. The American team, too, is of exceptionally high standing and no doubt will be as popular as ever at the Coliseum. In the case of the Canadian team there will be the additional zest of a "dark horse" or two. Illness and removals have made changes in the well known Canadian Cavalry jumping team since their last appearance at the Royal Coliseum, but their are some promising young riders in training at present who are expected to give a good account of themselves.

With the inclusion of the International Army Officers' Teams this year, the Royal Horse Show is regarded as being outstandingly attractive. The general programme of 124 classes is of first class quality and information derived from the numerous enquiries at the Winter Fair Office is that a record entry is certain before the closing date, October 20th.

Here and There

Successful Canadian exhibitors in the International Great and Big Show to be held at Chicago, November 25-December 6, will be awarded liberal bonuses in addition to the regular premiums offered in the prize list now being distributed. The provincial governments of Quebec, Ontario, Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, the Canadian Board of Trade and the Canadian Pacific Railway have also announced offers of special awards for Canadian exhibitors.

That city is attracted by music comes to be established by the action of two fine specimens of that animal which stroll out of the back when dancing begins at the Royal Springs Hotel every evening. Under the halfmoon windows they begin to shake their heads and prance, covert and open while the music lasts, not even stopping to catch the orchestra has ceased playing.

Canadian poultry are rapidly being recognized throughout the world as reaching unusually high standards and recently the S.E. Emperor of Canada, clearing from Vancouver to China, Japan and the Philippines, carried 99 head of registered white leghorns considered to be the best in the world by the poultry industry of the islands. The birds came from a poultry farm near Vancouver.

When a child complains of having pain in the legs or arms what usually happens is that the parents decide that the child has "growing pains" or rheumatism. There is no such condition as "growing pains"; children do not have pains just because they are growing.

OSTEOMYELITIS

Osteomyelitis is an acute infection of the bone. It is a disease which develops quickly and which is severe and each year takes a toll of lives, chiefly among children.

Loss of life or extensive injury results in these cases, because treatment is not secured without delay; for it is the delay of a day, or indeed of a few hours, in such acute conditions as this, which leads to serious or fatal results.

Failure to secure early treatment is due, in most cases, to the ignorance of parents or others responsible for the care of children regarding what happens when there is an acute bone infection.

When a child complains of having pain in the legs or arms what usually happens is that the parents decide that the child has "growing pains" or rheumatism. There is no such condition as "growing pains"; children do not have pains just because they are growing.

There is only one safe way to deal with pains in the extremities, and that is to have the child examined in order to find out definitely what is the cause of the pain.

Not so long ago, when a child had a pain in the stomach, he was given a dose of castor oil. Parents no longer do that because most of them know that a pain in the stomach may be a sign that there is beginning an acute abdominal condition, and that perhaps the worst thing they can do is to set the intestinal tract in motion when it should be at rest, with a dose of castor oil.

When a child has a pain in the stomach, a doctor is called. When a child has a pain in his extremities, a doctor should be called just as promptly. The condition may be quite as serious and require treatment quite as urgently.

There is generally a history of injury which may be only slight. This injury apparently lowers the resistance of the area affected and if there are any germs present in the body, they grasp their opportunity. The germs reach the area of lower resistance and there they multiply rapidly, causing, first of all, inflammation and the subsequent formation of pus and the destruction of tissue. If not properly and promptly treated the patient will be overwhelmed with the poisons produced.

The germ reaches the area in the blood stream. They may come from such a point as an infected blister on the head, a boil, a throat infection, or, in fact, any point where they have been lodged in the body.

The pain starts suddenly in most cases, and is usually severe; the most common location is near a joint of one of the long bones. The spot is tender and there is fever. It is now that the case should be treated. Later, we find redness, swelling and all the usual signs and symptoms of inflammation resulting from the activity of living germs.

The dangers of osteomyelitis will be overcome when parents are on the watch for it and when they realize the urgent need for considering pains in the extremities as conditions which demand attention.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 124 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

66 Hello Mother. We're having a wonderful voyage, left Southampton day before yesterday and arrive Quebec day after tomorrow. The young man whose phantom outline shows in the picture of one of the deluxe apartments of the new Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain will be able, when the 42,500 ton ship enters service between Quebec and Southampton next June, to talk to anyone in Europe or the Americas for the first time in Canada's maritime history.

Above, a recent photograph shows the new liner nearing completion on the Clyde, and the telephone installation that will be a feature of every first class bedroom or apartment. Direct connection through the ship's switchboard with any land telephone will make calling Vancouver or Chicago from mid-Atlantic just a matter of turning the receiver and asking for the number. The Canadian Pacific announces that the wireless telegraph will be so powerful that continuous touch will be maintained with both sides of the Atlantic.

The magnificent new Empress of Britain, 708 feet long, 97 1/2 feet wide and with a speed of 24 knots, will bring Cherboung, Southampton and Quebec more than a day closer.
