

FLOWNEN HAVE SUCCESSFUL YEAR—ANNUAL MEETING HELD

Very encouraging reports were received at the Annual Meeting of the Haldimand County Plowmen's Association which was held in the Court House, Cayuga on Tuesday evening, December 1st, 1931. The Association boasts of a membership of one hundred and it was brought out in the report of the Secretary-Treasurer that $211.00 was paid out in prize money with a total expenditure of $322.55.

The most important change effected at the meeting was a motion to rescind a previous motion keeping the match within six miles of Cayuga. It will now be possible for the directors to hold the match at any point they may decide on. A motion for reorganization was unanimously carried and the election of officers proceeded with giving the following officers:

The following is a report of the Secretary Treasurer, A. Gordon Skinner.

It is again my great pleasure to present to you the third annual report of the Haldimand County Plowmen's Association. While it scarcely seems any time, it was but one year ago tonight that the second annual meeting was held, on which occasion we congratulated ourselves upon the remarkable success of the organization. As was pointed out, however, the success of the 1931 match justifies that prediction. Interest in the work of the Association has been steadily on the increase as is evidenced by the large and enthusiastic crowd attending the match and the faithful attendance of the Officers and Directors at the various business meetings throughout the year.

The Association have been particularly fortunate in having such high prizes offered at this year's match. The holding of the match, Good combined with good horses and much for the success of the day. Both requirements were present at the 1931 match. Possibilities for success were made by Mr. Eubanks to defeat the "carving" out of the various details and I am sure the thanks of the Association are due him.

It is pleasant to note that there was a nice increase in the number of entries. This year the match went over the top with 46 entries, 33 in team classes and 15 in tractor classes and an increase of ten over 1930. We were pleased also to note that this year we had an entry in every class on the prize list. While it is true that some classes, notably those for boys, were not well filled, we look forward to having more of the Juniors taking part in the future.

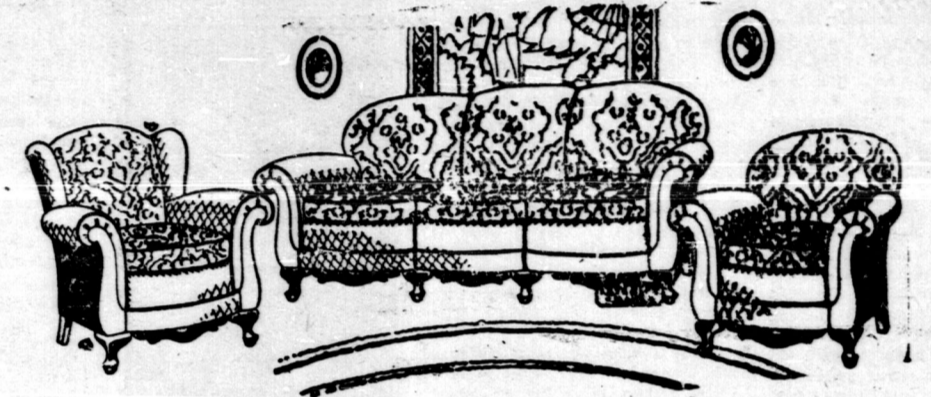

As we intimated at the time of the Annual Banquet, our match seems now to have arrived at the place where we need two judges to do the scoring. Even though the effort was made to have the plowing completed early in the afternoon, the Judge found it difficult to complete his work on time. I believe we would be justified in making a request for a second judge if there is a possibility of our having as large or larger a match next year. It is believed that the regulations regarding time of completing the lands worked out to good advantage and is worth another trial. The matter of time in plowing is one which might receive some consideration from the Association for another year. While I do not recall any battles where plowing races are held, it would seem such an event might be given a trial here. Plowing Associations and matches continue to come under severe criticism because of the great care with which the Plowmen do their work and the consequent great length of time.

It is gratifying, I am sure, to note the financial statement which shows a very healthy balance to the credit of the Association. This, I firmly believe to be one reason for the success of our Matches. No organization can be successful if it is hampered by lack of funds.

As an educational feature the Plowing Match again served its purpose. Numerous young men and old as well, followed the various classes very keenly, noting the methods followed by the various contestants. As an added educational feature and petition was also very successful with the courtesy of Professor Stuckley of the Ontario Agricultural College, we were able to stage a multiple hitch demonstration with Mr. M. W. Staples in charge. You will recall the large group of interested spectators that followed this demonstration.

May I say again that we were pleased to have our Indian friends present in even greater numbers. We extend to them our thanks and the Association as well as to the orchard-keepers and made light by the ever-ready assistance of all the Directors and Members.

We extend to them the hand of friendship and welcome and trust that they will continue to meet with us in the friendly competition. Mention should be made of the in a financial way by donating cash, goods or trophies. If it had not been for this generosity the Association would not have been able to have of- fered such an attractive prize list. We also beg to acknowledge the financial and moral support which we have received from the members of the County Council.

Permit me to take this opportunity of congratulating the Officers and members of the Association on the success of the 1931 Match and the Annual Banquet can again be pronounced an unqualified success. It was largely attended and due to the even greater things in 1932. I wish to personally thank you also for the many kindnesses shown me during this year in this case shall be the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

This is the same oath that is universal in British courts.

Health Service OF THE Canadian Medical Association

OFFENSIVE & DANGEROUS

The human saliva is always potentially dangerous and is much more to be feared than the body excretions which are so generally shunned because they are more offensive.

The reason for this is that disease germs leave the body in its secretions. Because most of the disease germs which afflict us are harboured in the nose, throat and lungs, it is the saliva which is most commonly the carrier of disease germs.

It is the transfer of germ-laden secretions of the nose and throat from one person to another, which accounts for the spread of a very large percentage of all disease germs. This transfer may be direct, as by means of the particles sprayed when coughs and sneezes go uncovered, or it may be indirect, as when common eating and drinking utensils are soiled by the saliva of the user. Again fingers which have come in contact with these secretions pass them on to food which is touched and later eaten, or the germs which are on one person's fingers may reach another individual by means of a handshake.

All who are interested in the prevention of disease and in their own protection are, of necessity, opposed to the habit of spitting, not merely because it is offensive but because it is dangerous. In fact, it is due to the fact that the saliva is so often contaminated, the germs of disease.

Spitting is largely a habit. One thing that surprises most people upon visiting a sanatorium is the fact that they hear so little coughing. This is because in sanatoria the patients are taught that most of their coughing is just a habit, and they very soon learn to control and suppress their coughs.

Not so long ago, every man spat when he smoked. This seemed to be part of the smoking, and the cuspidor was deemed to be a necessary piece of household furniture. No analysis, however, of the habit of spitting was just a habit, and the cuspidor in the home is rarely seen.

Our habits are influenced by public opinion. The fork is used for eating certain foods, and the spoon for others; the knife is never put to the mouth. Why? Because public opinion frowned on the individual who swallowed his knife when eating.

The dangerous habit of spitting will disappear when the spitter feels that the public opinion is against him, and he realizes that the habit of spitting shuts him out from the company of his fellow-men.

If the throat must be cleared, then a handkerchief should be used to remove the saliva in order that others may not be exposed to danger. The careless spitter is responsible for much of the spread of tuberculosis. He who spits carelessly endangers the lives of children. Surely no one would wish to do so if he realized what he was doing.
