But eighty days is a snall's pace in modern travel. The "Graf Zeppelin" circumnavigated the globe in twenty-one days and seven hours.

Verne foresaw the skyscraper age. He said advertisements would be projected on clouds. And they are! Skywriting is now fairly common, too. Twenty years after Verne forecast the use of selinium in the transmission of pictures, it came about. Some of Verne's ideas are still in the fiction age. For instance, he visualized travel between the earth and the moon, as well as around the moon, and descent to the abyssmal depth of the sea.
