

A cup of Salada Green tea invigorates and refreshes

"SALADA" GREEN TEA

'Fresh from the gardens'

APRIL ESCAPE

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

SYNOPSIS

In order that her brother, Martin, may be enabled to go to Germany and study medicine, Mary Kate O'Hara agrees to act as the wife of Christopher Steves at a home party given by her boss, Gordon Rountree. A Russian countess and her daughter have been chasing Steves with a view to marriage. When the countess meets Mary Kate she is discouraged. Mary Kate goes back to Steves' home and stays there for the night. A burglar breaks in; Steves shoots him; police take Mary Kate's name and home, only to find that she has fallen in love with Steves. She tells this to Countess who, when she is engaged to be married, says laughingly, "All week Mary Kate is in a feverish excitement she wants to see Steves again. At last he phones her and says he must see her—things are a bit dead."

CHAPTER XXXI

A light sweet spring rain was falling, next morning, but for Mary Kate the sun of no remembered April had ever shone so bright. The sun was behind the rain anyway, burning and sparkling through it, the acacia trees in people's gardens, and the lilacs at the front of the street. The lilacs at the front of the street were in new mackintoshes.

It was a pretty rain; not a deluge with a wind sweeping it about, and gutters running coffee, and umbrellas crashing against each other, but just a softening of the air, and a brightening of the grass, and a freshening of the flowers with thousands of trembling little pearls.

Mary Kate had a blue and green plaid raincoat, and a cap to match. She had given them to her for Christmas. So she did not even have to carry an umbrella, and reached the office with her face freshly washed and her copper wire hair curled all about her brow and ears, in a hundred little ringlets.

The office seemed attractive, somehow, as she hung up her things, and settled down for her morning work. The place was in sparkling order, the radiator clanking, telephones and typewriters in perfect array, brightness of oak wood and flashing ribbon all about on all sides. And the big windows that looked out over all the city were leaded with rain.

She stood at a window, looking it all; the hotels at the window, California Street hill, and the cable cars going and rattling, and the little creeper and beetles that were motor-cars, slipping and pinging each other, in the streets. The traffic in the street was a hopeless jumble, as usual. Ferryboats under a low gray sky, cut long gray wakes in a level gray bay. The smoke from a coffee roasting establishment rose white in the air, and sank again, and clung to the roofs of the buildings, presently in the great wide acacia-scented foyer of the hotel. Walking straight through the building to the dining room at the back, they were placed at a little table by a smiling waiter who could hardly breathe, and before eleven she felt fairly ill with expectation and suspense. Her hands were cold, her cheeks burning, and the best swallowing with a dry mouth. With her utmost effort she could not keep

What New York Is Wearing

BY ANNABELLE WORTHINGTON

Illustrated Dressmaking Lesson Finished With Every Pattern

3006

A jaunty dress for youth is this little bolero model. It is printed crepe silk in a matching tone of the pattern of the print.

Gems of Wisdom

Prejudice is opinion without judgment.

A little cloud can hide both sun and moon.

Weakness

You can restrain the bold, guide the impetuous, encourage the timid, but for the weak there is no help. You might as well undertake to stand a wet string up an end.

Your Riches

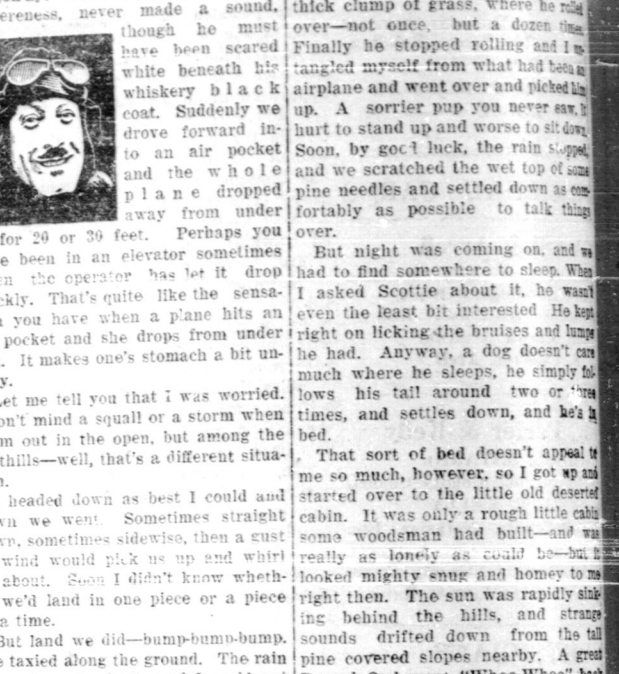

Count your riches as you may, Seek your fame wherever you will, Peace must mark the close of day, Or you'll be mummy soon. Friends must trust in all you do, Or no joy can come to you.

Should Know

Before you decide to make over your wardrobe, examine the fabric to assure yourself that it is worth it. It is a waste of time and effort making something which will not give you the most of its value.

The Adventures of Captain Jimmy and his Dog Scottie

WHAT CAME BEFORE? Captain Jimmy and his dog Scottie were out for a walk in the park. Jimmy was wearing a new suit and Scottie was wearing a new collar.

3007

A jaunty dress for youth is this little bolero model. It is printed crepe silk in a matching tone of the pattern of the print.

Borden's Chocolate Malted Milk

The health-giving, delicious drink for children and grown-ups. Pound and Half Pound tins at your grocers.

Especially good for CHILDREN

Children can eat all they want of Borden's Malted Milk. On Graham crackers, toasted in butter, or in a hot drink, it is a delicious treat for school lunches.

Women's Golfing Stars

Stara in women's golfing firmament at Palm Beach, Fla., where they are capturing in winter tournaments. Left to right, Virginia van Meter, M. S. L. Reinhardt, Helen Hicks and Diana Fishwick.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

Woman Reader

Florence Riddick Boys

Mother's Part

Schools have set for themselves an objective in the training of our young women. We mothers can help much by being aware of these seven points and laying the foundations for them in our treatment of the children at home.

Medley Gelatine

Cook a pint of cranberries in a cup and a half of water. Strain the juice and for jelly then cook it at six apples sliced and a half cup of raisins. While this sauce is still boiling hot, add a tablespoon of softened gelatine, as for any gelatine dish. When the dish is ready to thicken add a half cup of nut meats, and let it cool and form a mold. When the mold is firm, tip out on a dish, upside down; and garnish with whipped cream for serving.

Carrot Pudding

1 1/2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup currants, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup grated potatoes (raw), 1 cup fine chopped apples, 1 teaspoon Golden Syrup, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix all the ingredients in the order given, after adding the soda to the flour, and steam in an oiled mold for three hours.

Canadian Immigration

The number of immigrants to the calendar year 1929 amounted to 164,896, compared with 164,982 for the previous twelve months, according to a statement issued by the Department of Immigration. Immigration for the last six months of 1929 amounted to 35,011 compared with 35,833 in the same period in 1928. The greatest reduction came from August last. The effect of the regulations passed in August last restricting immigration has not yet been fully felt. It is estimated that more than 100,000 immigrants were allowed to come forward in 1929. The great majority of the immigrants who had gone to the United States to reside and who returned to Canada in 1929 declaring their intention of remaining permanently in this country numbered 21,695 compared with 20,479 in 1928. Most of the Canadian people will agree to the policy of curtailing immigration for the present and until the ranks of the unemployed are thinned down again to normal. But we all know that our vast, rich, unbroken regions keep calling for settlers, and we are sure that the immigration tide will turn ere long and break upon our shores with increasing strength.—"The New Outlook" (Toronto).

Fighting the White Man's Scourge

Health statistics compiled by the Nova Scotia government show that the efforts put forward by the province to lessen the scourge of tuberculosis are moving with encouraging results. The government has created a special tuberculosis department and generous funds are to be set aside for its maintenance. The adoption of strict enforcement measures, designed to curtail the spread of disease through infection, has resulted in the lowering of the general death rate from 100,000 of the population, from all causes, has also been lowered from 124 in 1921 to 99 last year. Last month cannot be compared with the same month of the previous year as it has not yet been devoted to any more profitable investment than that of protecting the health of the people.—"The Mirror" (St. John's).

Spring-Cleaning Days Draw Near

"Spruce Up Your Home and Help Unemployment" Says Doctor in American Journal

LEAVES of a new calendar open before us, and housewives seeking a good way to start, may well borrow a page from the business world and take inventory of needed renovations and repairs in the home. Give the house the repairs it needs now and give employment to those who need it.

How to Say 'Peppy'

This John Pepps (Samuel Pepps' father) was a tailor who lived in St. John's, Newfoundland, at Fleet Street, two hundred yards or so west of the City boundary at the old Fleet Ditch. The obscure London tradesman came of a substantial middle-class stock, with origins at Cottenham in Cambridgeshire. A fourteenth century Pepps was a protégé of an abbot of Crowland, or Crowland, who had migrated to Huntingdonshire from Scotland. Samuel's cousin Roger told him of a document recording a new-style house-holding of Elizabeth's name. No less than seventeen spellings of the name have been noted. By the Cottenham registers I find what appears to be Pepps, Peppas, and Pepps. It is clear in any case that there was no family uniformity in the matter, and the same thing no doubt applied to the pronunciation of the name. Samuel is it reasonably certain, called himself Pepps. Mr. Edward Hoars has recently discovered that in the books of his bank, where Samuel had an account, the name is spelt Peppas, and puts this in as evidence that the pronunciation was Pepps. A rhyme of 1875: Him I must praise, who opened hath my lips, Sent me from Narvy, to the Ark, by Pepps, suggests also that someone called him Pepps. But it is common enough even for acquaintances to be erratic about a difficult name, and the evidence for Samuel's own use is deficient. There are three sources of unbroken tradition, however, that of his sister Paulina, the Sandwith family, and Magdalen College, Cambridge, all are unequivocally for Pepps. The family has an agreeable taste in nomenclature. John's father was Thomas, who, having a brother called Thomas, was distinguished as Thomas the Black from Thomas the Red. John, further, had an uncle Talbot who became Rector of Cambridge in 1824, and a better still, an uncle Apollo—John Drinkwater, in "Pepps: His Life and Character."

Women's Golfing Stars

Stara in women's golfing firmament at Palm Beach, Fla., where they are capturing in winter tournaments. Left to right, Virginia van Meter, M. S. L. Reinhardt, Helen Hicks and Diana Fishwick.

How to Say 'Peppy'

This John Pepps (Samuel Pepps' father) was a tailor who lived in St. John's, Newfoundland, at Fleet Street, two hundred yards or so west of the City boundary at the old Fleet Ditch. The obscure London tradesman came of a substantial middle-class stock, with origins at Cottenham in Cambridgeshire. A fourteenth century Pepps was a protégé of an abbot of Crowland, or Crowland, who had migrated to Huntingdonshire from Scotland. Samuel's cousin Roger told him of a document recording a new-style house-holding of Elizabeth's name. No less than seventeen spellings of the name have been noted. By the Cottenham registers I find what appears to be Pepps, Peppas, and Pepps. It is clear in any case that there was no family uniformity in the matter, and the same thing no doubt applied to the pronunciation of the name. Samuel is it reasonably certain, called himself Pepps. Mr. Edward Hoars has recently discovered that in the books of his bank, where Samuel had an account, the name is spelt Peppas, and puts this in as evidence that the pronunciation was Pepps. A rhyme of 1875: Him I must praise, who opened hath my lips, Sent me from Narvy, to the Ark, by Pepps, suggests also that someone called him Pepps. But it is common enough even for acquaintances to be erratic about a difficult name, and the evidence for Samuel's own use is deficient. There are three sources of unbroken tradition, however, that of his sister Paulina, the Sandwith family, and Magdalen College, Cambridge, all are unequivocally for Pepps. The family has an agreeable taste in nomenclature. John's father was Thomas, who, having a brother called Thomas, was distinguished as Thomas the Black from Thomas the Red. John, further, had an uncle Talbot who became Rector of Cambridge in 1824, and a better still, an uncle Apollo—John Drinkwater, in "Pepps: His Life and Character."

How to Say 'Peppy'

This John Pepps (Samuel Pepps' father) was a tailor who lived in St. John's, Newfoundland, at Fleet Street, two hundred yards or so west of the City boundary at the old Fleet Ditch. The obscure London tradesman came of a substantial middle-class stock, with origins at Cottenham in Cambridgeshire. A fourteenth century Pepps was a protégé of an abbot of Crowland, or Crowland, who had migrated to Huntingdonshire from Scotland. Samuel's cousin Roger told him of a document recording a new-style house-holding of Elizabeth's name. No less than seventeen spellings of the name have been noted. By the Cottenham registers I find what appears to be Pepps, Peppas, and Pepps. It is clear in any case that there was no family uniformity in the matter, and the same thing no doubt applied to the pronunciation of the name. Samuel is it reasonably certain, called himself Pepps. Mr. Edward Hoars has recently discovered that in the books of his bank, where Samuel had an account, the name is spelt Peppas, and puts this in as evidence that the pronunciation was Pepps. A rhyme of 1875: Him I must praise, who opened hath my lips, Sent me from Narvy, to the Ark, by Pepps, suggests also that someone called him Pepps. But it is common enough even for acquaintances to be erratic about a difficult name, and the evidence for Samuel's own use is deficient. There are three sources of unbroken tradition, however, that of his sister Paulina, the Sandwith family, and Magdalen College, Cambridge, all are unequivocally for Pepps. The family has an agreeable taste in nomenclature. John's father was Thomas, who, having a brother called Thomas, was distinguished as Thomas the Black from Thomas the Red. John, further, had an uncle Talbot who became Rector of Cambridge in 1824, and a better still, an uncle Apollo—John Drinkwater, in "Pepps: His Life and Character."

How to Say 'Peppy'

This John Pepps (Samuel Pepps' father) was a tailor who lived in St. John's, Newfoundland, at Fleet Street, two hundred yards or so west of the City boundary at the old Fleet Ditch. The obscure London tradesman came of a substantial middle-class stock, with origins at Cottenham in Cambridgeshire. A fourteenth century Pepps was a protégé of an abbot of Crowland, or Crowland, who had migrated to Huntingdonshire from Scotland. Samuel's cousin Roger told him of a document recording a new-style house-holding of Elizabeth's name. No less than seventeen spellings of the name have been noted. By the Cottenham registers I find what appears to be Pepps, Peppas, and Pepps. It is clear in any case that there was no family uniformity in the matter, and the same thing no doubt applied to the pronunciation of the name. Samuel is it reasonably certain, called himself Pepps. Mr. Edward Hoars has recently discovered that in the books of his bank, where Samuel had an account, the name is spelt Peppas, and puts this in as evidence that the pronunciation was Pepps. A rhyme of 1875: Him I must praise, who opened hath my lips, Sent me from Narvy, to the Ark, by Pepps, suggests also that someone called him Pepps. But it is common enough even for acquaintances to be erratic about a difficult name, and the evidence for Samuel's own use is deficient. There are three sources of unbroken tradition, however, that of his sister Paulina, the Sandwith family, and Magdalen College, Cambridge, all are unequivocally for Pepps. The family has an agreeable taste in nomenclature. John's father was Thomas, who, having a brother called Thomas, was distinguished as Thomas the Black from Thomas the Red. John, further, had an uncle Talbot who became Rector of Cambridge in 1824, and a better still, an uncle Apollo—John Drinkwater, in "Pepps: His Life and Character."

How to Say 'Peppy'

This John Pepps (Samuel Pepps' father) was a tailor who lived in St. John's, Newfoundland, at Fleet Street, two hundred yards or so west of the City boundary at the old Fleet Ditch. The obscure London tradesman came of a substantial middle-class stock, with origins at Cottenham in Cambridgeshire. A fourteenth century Pepps was a protégé of an abbot of Crowland, or Crowland, who had migrated to Huntingdonshire from Scotland. Samuel's cousin Roger told him of a document recording a new-style house-holding of Elizabeth's name. No less than seventeen spellings of the name have been noted. By the Cottenham registers I find what appears to be Pepps, Peppas, and Pepps. It is clear in any case that there was no family uniformity in the matter, and the same thing no doubt applied to the pronunciation of the name. Samuel is it reasonably certain, called himself Pepps. Mr. Edward Hoars has recently discovered that in the books of his bank, where Samuel had an account, the name is spelt Peppas, and puts this in as evidence that the pronunciation was Pepps. A rhyme of 1875: Him I must praise, who opened hath my lips, Sent me from Narvy, to the Ark, by Pepps, suggests also that someone called him Pepps. But it is common enough even for acquaintances to be erratic about a difficult name, and the evidence for Samuel's own use is deficient. There are three sources of unbroken tradition, however, that of his sister Paulina, the Sandwith family, and Magdalen College, Cambridge, all are unequivocally for Pepps. The family has an agreeable taste in nomenclature. John's father was Thomas, who, having a brother called Thomas, was distinguished as Thomas the Black from Thomas the Red. John, further, had an uncle Talbot who became Rector of Cambridge in 1824, and a better still, an uncle Apollo—John Drinkwater, in "Pepps: His Life and Character."

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

World Outlook Will Bring Prosperity

International Economy Now Governs Lives of Nations' Claims Bankers' Head

Toronto.—Combining the predictions of other experts of world economies with his own observations and knowledge, Beauty Leman, B.S.Sc., C.E., President of the Canadian Bankers' Association and General Manager and Secretary of the Banque Canadienne Nationale, outlined to Canadian Club members recently the widening of industrial economy from national to international boundaries.

GILLETT'S Lye "Eats Dirt"

Full strength for Sink Drains Full strength for the toilet bowl In solution for general cleaning

GILLETT'S Lye "Eats Dirt"

ONE tablespoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in a gallon of cold water provides an ideal, safe solution that quickly cleans everything in the bathroom.

GILLETT'S Lye "Eats Dirt"

ONE tablespoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in a gallon of cold water provides an ideal, safe solution that quickly cleans everything in the bathroom.

GILLETT'S Lye "Eats Dirt"

ONE tablespoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in a gallon of cold water provides an ideal, safe solution that quickly cleans everything in the bathroom.

GILLETT'S Lye "Eats Dirt"

ONE tablespoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in a gallon of cold water provides an ideal, safe solution that quickly cleans everything in the bathroom.

GILLETT'S Lye "Eats Dirt"

ONE tablespoonful of Gillett's Lye dissolved in a gallon of cold water provides an ideal, safe solution that quickly cleans everything in the bathroom.