Passes Century Mark

Owosso—One hundred years old, yet in excellent health, active and possessed of a keen memory that recalls events of 80 and 90 years ago, clear and distinctly, that is Mrs. Anna Sternaman Groh of this city, who is quietly celebrating her birthday anniversary today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Brenton, with whom she lives. Mrs. Brenton is her granddaughter.

Mrs. Groh, who is better known to her many friends as Mrs. Sternaman, is often called the singing, whistling great, great grandmother, because of her propensity for singing and whistling. Reciting poetry that she learned more than 70 years ago, is also a favorite pastime of the aged woman, and she can recite entire chapters from the Bible.

While the passing of an entire century has naturally left its mark on Mrs. Sternaman, she does not look as old as she is. She gets about the house alone, eats heartily and drinks great quantities of coffee. She also sleeps a great deal, some times sleeping all day and all night. Once she is sound asleep it takes some time to awaken her, to the extent that her mental faculties function normally.

Although she left school at the age of ten, Mrs. Sternaman is well read and can carry on a conversation with educated persons, discussing history, travel, and biography.

Mrs. Sternaman has no special formula for long living. She says she has just lived a simple, well regulated life. Despite her advanced age, and unlike many old people, she has no criticism to make of the present generation and does not think that civilization is best because people live differently now than they did when she was young.

Mrs. Sternaman was born in Hamilton County, on Jan. 8, 1831, and grew up there. She was married to Abraham Sternaman in 1855 and 10 years later, came to Michigan, settling near Cheesaning, where they remained until 1888 when they moved to Owosso. The trip to Cheesaning in 1855 was made by ox cart over a corduroy road.

Nine children were born to them and Mrs. Sternaman has cultivated all but two of them. They are Mrs. Carrie Hodges of Flint and Arthur Sternaman of this city, both 66 years old. Mr. Sternaman died in 1903 and five years later Mrs. Sternaman was married to Solomon Groh, who died two years later.

Mr. and Mrs. James Harrison enjoyed themselves at each at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Snyder on Monday last.

NEW AGRICULTURAL POLICY FOR CANADA

An exclusive and authentic statement regarding Canada's new agricultural policy, as outlined by Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, during an interview accorded Richard Churchill, appears in MacLean's Magazine for March 1940. The new policy is comprised of the following twelve features—

1. A National Marketing Board.

2. Lower costs of production to be obtained by increased yield of wheat per acre.

3. Sowing of land to crops best suited to it.

4. Research work to discover fertilizer required for different soils.

5. Immediate survey of seed grain and of seed vegetables and fodder crops.

6. Creation of "bull clubs" composed of not less than three farmers, the Federal government to provide any two clubs with a first class bull free of charge.

7. Immediate improvement of the quality of swine; to government to buy every good sow which comes on the market, breed her to a first-class boar, and sell to any farmer at cost. The government will pay half the freight to destination.

8. Eradication of diseases among poultry. Intensive surveys of Canadian flocks to eliminate run-layers.

9. Research work on felds to reform farmers of best balanced ration available in each area.

10. Increased effort to eliminate parasites.

11. Transformation of experimental farms into local educational centres.

12. Co-operation with provincial governments in carrying out policies and bringing to farmers, discoveries of government scientists.

Commenting upon these features and Mr. Weir's policy in general, the article continues:

"Control of production has no place in the new agricultural policy. A marketing board of outstanding men will be created for the purpose of giving expert advice to this question."

The central pillar in the new policy is the elimination of waste. Weir believes Canadian agriculture, despite world conditions, might be reasonably profitable today if waste was eliminated. And yet he does not propose to drum upon the word 'waste' to deafen the farmers with the cry of the 'efficient' man, who will be the word 'elucidate' in the sense that the farmers are not intelligent. Canadian farmers he believes, are among the most intelligent in the world.

The new policy embraces soil, cereals, pasture and grasses, live stock, poultry, and feeds. Mr. Weir believes the soil of Canada is second to none in fertility but it is not being utilized to the greatest advantage. He will strain every effort to achieve an increased yield per acre confident that in doing so he will reduce the cost of production.

He believes this can be done by the proper preparation of the seed bed, by restricting wheat sowing to the land best suited to it, and by the use of fertilizer.

Laboratory facilities will be created to enable soil tests to be carried out speedily. These facilities will be provided, probably, at every government laboratory in the Dominion. Farmers will be invited to send samples for analysis. They will get a reply stating the crops for which their land is best suited, and the kind of fertilizer, most needed. And fertilizers will not be recommended unless readily available in the particular locality and of small cost.

Weir's policy calls for an immediate survey of seed grain. Ottawa has known for years that wheat seed of the West is of poor average quality. Thousands of farmers who believe they are growing Marquis wheat are not doing so. Canadian wheats, such as Marquis and Revolt, are hybrids—the result of new crosses. These wheats have a tendency to revert to original type, to lose their characteristics—early maturity, large yield—which make them desirable. The Dominion Government will carry out surveys of fields, will tell a farmer if he needs new seed grain.

Experimental farms, scattered across the Dominion, will become centres from which information will be broadcast. Each farm will concentrate upon the particular problem in its area, will seek the attention of farmers. Farm officials will become advisers in their districts. At most certainly Mr. Weir will create assembly halls at each experimental farm, and free lectures on local problems will be given each year. Farm officials will be the lecturers and the provinces will be asked to pay part of the expense of farmer who attend.

Walpole Man Arrested

Provincial police investigation into the death last week of Miss Elsie Hoover, 19 years of age, of South Cayuga township, resulted in the arrest of Howard Stewart, 31 years, R.R. No. 2, Jarvis, and Mrs. Mary Whitman, 613 James St., South Mt. Hamilton, on charges of manslaughter, on which they were remanded before Magistrate H. A. Burdick, in city police court, Hamilton.

The preliminary hearing of this case was set for Friday next and will be set at $20,000 each at the request of the crown. Larry Weir, in city police court, Hamilton.

An inquest into Miss Hoover's sudden death will be held in Cayuga county, on Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Coroner Dr. A. J. Bromley will preside.

BAKON LITTER COMPETITION

Rules and regulations for the 3rd annual Bakon Litter Competition have just been issued by the Live Stock Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Perhaps you have a good litter of bacon hogs and might be interested in entering same in this competition. Excellent prizes are offered in various districts and any bona fide farmer may make entry. The following are the principal regulations:

(1) Date of farrowing must be between February 14th and April 30th, all entry forms must be completed and forwarded to the Live Stock Branch, within seven days of date of farrowing.

There is no charge for an entry and it is desired to drop entries as early as possible. Complete information and application forms can be supplied from the Department of Agriculture at Cayuga.

Canadian pastures are included in the new policy. Given proper fertilization, sown to the kind of grass best suited to the soil, pastures increase their growth by 25% or more and are ready for grazing at least ten days earlier in the Spring.

In future, three or more farmers will be able to form a bull-club, and any two clubs, upon application to Ottawa, will receive a first-class bull, of a quality either AA or A, as far as there is an available supply. The bull will be loaned to the club, free of charge, upon condition the animal is properly stabled and fed. Every two years bulls will be exchanged between areas.

The best boars obtainable will be stationed at the various stockyards, and government officials will watch the run of swine going to market. The best sows will be selected and bred to the best boars. The sows will then be sold to the farmers at cost, and the Government, in addition, will pay one-half the freight to destination.

The Federal Department, in co-operation with the provinces, will carry on continuous inspections of poultry. This information will be given farmers free of charge. They will be able to kill his non-producers and keep the profitable hens.

Mr. Weir intends, as far as possible, to inform every farmer of the kind of livestock feeds which bring best results. Pation tables based on feeds raised in particular districts will be worked out and explained in simple language, and made available to the farmers.

Experimental farms, scattered across the Dominion, will become centres from which information will be broadcast. Each farm will concentrate upon the particular problem in its area, will seek the attention of farmers. Farm officials will become advisers in their districts. At most certainly Mr. Weir will create assembly halls at each experimental farm, and free lectures on local problems will be given each year. Farm officials will be the lecturers and the provinces will be asked to pay part of the expense of farmer who attend.

DON'T FOOL YOURSELF.

Do you play a boastful part? Don't fool yourself! Claim that you are very smart? Don't fool yourself! Think you really know it all? Don't fool yourself!

Do you speculate in stocks? Don't fool yourself! Be prepared for tragic shocks, Don't fool yourself! Little lambs are easily shorn, Innocents are daily born, Money gone and all forlorn—Don't fool yourself!

Long to be a millionaire? Don't fool yourself! Saddled with a load of care? Don't fool yourself! Money is not everything, Quiet things are best, they say, Better far to smile and sing—Don't fool yourself!

Do you covet worldly fame? Don't fool yourself! Wish to make a public name? Don't fool yourself! Quiet things are best, they say, Ostentation does not pay, Live the simple life to-day—Don't fool yourself!

GRENVILLE KLEISER.
