She was alone again. She sat on, at the red oilclothed kitchen table, staring into space, her arms crossed, her eyes narrowed, her lips bitte. The lock hands moved, the lamplight wavered, in the kitchen. Then suddenly she stood up, and pushed her chair back into place. She took the alarm-clock, and busied her-self with the little keys on its back, before locking the yard door, darken-ing the kitchen, and going to her mother's kitchen bedroom.

Little Pat, freckled and thin and tousled of hair, was sprawled halfered, crosswise on the wide bed. Mary Kate straightened and covered him. The gas was turned down to a bead in here, and the one window that thing you wore Friday night and my looked out upon the blank side wall of the neighboring house was open. She went into the dining room, and opened Tom's forgotten window. Kneeling beside him, she put her arms about him, mother-fashion, and "They are yours, now, I present he half roused, in his first deep sleep, and murmured to her.

"Chris, we may have lots of fun!"

Street Names That Are Compliments

There is Love Lane, Maiden Lane, Carden Court, Green Arbour Court, etc., but in Italy Pisa has not only Love Street and Lily Sreet, but Beautiful Ladies' Lane and Lane of the Beautiful Towers. In Genoa, after issing through Goldsmith Street, and another that leads up from it, you came out by the post office from the Plazza delle Fontane Amorose, the Plazza delle Fontane Amorose, the Place of the Atorous Fountains.

ed on the outside with paintings of festive women. But here all the louses begin to be magnificent mansions, and you again recognize "Genov la Superba." From the Piazza delle Fontaine Amorose you turn into the Strada Nuova, which leads round through another sumptuous street into the Strada Balbi, fit, say Madame de Stael, for on each side of the way; Stael, for a congress of kings. The three streets are literally a succession of palaces on each side of the way; and these palaces are of costly architecture, and are adorned inside with the works of the Italian masters. Marble is lavished everywhere. It is like a street raised by Aladdin, to astonish his father-in-law, the Sultan. Yet there is one lamentable deficiency. Even these these streets are narrow. I do
