 to gray when he was only 20.
 While secretary of the police department he attended night school at the Detroit College of Law and won his degree. Was admitted to the bar in 1912.
 Won't admit he is superstitious, but turns out so he won't walk under a ladder. Feels silly when he does so.
 Enjoys both the legitimate theatre and the talkies. Reads the current magazines and newspapers daily.
 Sir Walter Scott is his favorite author.
 Is easily awakened from his sleep.
 Averages about seven hours a night and doesn't feel right if he fails to get at least that amount of shut-eye hard on the birds. Last time out, hunted three days and shot only one partridge.
 Up until a year ago he smoked everything in sight. Then found it was interfering with his sleeping so he cut it out. Doesn't smoke at all now. Says it wasn't hard for him to stop.
 Believes the present prohibition law is very unsatisfactory and that there must be a change to remedy the present situation. But he is one man who hasn't any solution to offer to the problem.
 The nearest he ever
 ing a serious accident wounded. He was sent to carry water during the Cuba and some Spaniards ters sent a bullet through at his belt. He still thinks darned poor shots.
 Never had a nickname.
