

BOWS, BANDS AND BEAUTY!

Left—Collars go frivolous this season in a new way. Joan Crawford displays the fashionable new velvet hair-ribbons, to be worn with the dressier afternoon frocks. (Center)—Here we have a more formal version of the hair-ribbon, the metallic band fits tightly over the top of the head and is snapped down behind the ears. Right—As to make-up, the newest fashion is that soft, ingenious un-make-up look. Eyebrows not too perfect, eyelashes not too unconformist, stiff and skin, scrubbed and clean looking.

WINGS OF FORTUNE

BY LESLIE BERESFORD

SYNOPSIS
Sylvia Dianne, an orphan in employ at a travel bureau, meets John Christopher, a handsome young man who is in the habit of visiting her at the hotel where she is employed. Sylvia is attracted to him and they become friends. ing rays of light, which Sylvia recognized to be the thin shafts flung out by the searchlight. Three of them she counted and the voices behind them were even more in number. Sylvia was startled to find that she was speaking English. One called her by name: "Sylvia! Are you there, Sylvia? Are you safe?" In a sudden rush of gladness, Sylvia was aware of the fact that she was speaking English. One of the three torches picked her out instantly with its white shaft over the road, sweeping to and fro. Sylvia, crouching on the road from the abyss below.

Who stood behind the light shafts of the torches, Sylvia did not know. She was not in the habit of looking over her shoulder at the minute, saving that John Christopher was among them. His big shape loomed towards her out of the blackness next instant and she felt his arm round her as one of the lights was focussed on her face. "You're all right!" he was asking anxiously.

"What you've done with that hair!" Sylvia exclaimed. "I'm very concerned in getting rid of you, my dear. And this simple. If a girl goes walking on a dark and dangerous road like this at night, it's not to be expected that an accident could happen and she could break her pretty neck, as you're going to do down this cliff."

Sylvia, reckless as to her own safety, in her panic to prevent this horrible crime, dashed forward wildly, her voice raised to a shrill scream of reassurance: "I'm here, Florrie! It's Sylvia!" And then, above the muffled boom of the torrent below, her voice rang out in frantic appeal: "Help! Help!"

Sylvia, following the trail of light, saw and recognized first and complete surprise Lester Vanderpool. The real four men were unknown to her. But one, at least, she was obviously not unknown to her. Tony was a stockily-built man with keen grey eyes and a sardonic smile.

"Pleased to meet you again, Malcom!" he addressed Tony. "I've come all the way from Shanghai for this glad reunion."

"Say!" drawled Lester Vanderpool. "Let's get back to that nest of vipers and start bawling ourselves clear of it up."

Sylvia felt again the touch of John Christopher's arm round her waist, as the whole party began slowly to mount the steep gradient on the way to the villa. She was wondering what this could mean, how John Christopher and Lester Vanderpool and the detective from Shanghai all came together in this way and had happened on the spot so conveniently.

That's Curious

Penny-in-the-slot insurance is now effected in New York. Upon the insertion of a coin in the machine, the policy is delivered covering the holder against any accident for seven days.

The Hector of Haccobee (Devon) is the arch-priest, and can claim the right of wearing a large clerical and sitting next to a bishop. He also claims freedom from all ecclesiastical jurisdiction, excepting the violation of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Sound as a bell after ninety-three years on the roof-trees of a stone house demolished at Montreal, a beam of yellow pine 65 feet long and a foot square was taken out and sold for $2. Its rest sphere of existence will be spent as a ship's mast.

A herd of Australian cows recently gave a demonstration of road driving as a motor-car approached the herd divided to allow the car to pass and re-formed when the road was clear.

Among captive birds the bigger the bird the longer it lives. The peacock and the goose have long lives. The hen is short-lived—twenty years at the most. None of the small birds has a long life. Larks probably live longest. They have been known to reach seventeen years.

Two of the largest and most expensive umbrellas ever made have been manufactured in Leicester for Alexander H. Oba or Chief of B.E. The umbrellas, which cost $16 each, have been made for a paper mill and will be held under their shade.

A wife told the Marylebone magistrate that her husband attended all the wrestling matches and came home and practised the holds on her.

The curfew has an eye in its tail. It is sensitive to light, but sees much more slowly than the eagle. It is sensitive to light, but sees much more slowly than the eagle. It is sensitive to light, but sees much more slowly than the eagle.

A cat owned by the late Mr. Cecil Curlew of Strawberry Hill, Middlesex, was left $13 a year under its master's will.

What Does Your Handwriting Show?

You can tell a great deal about a person's character by looking at his handwriting. It is the only way in which a person's inner self is revealed to the world. It is the only way in which a person's inner self is revealed to the world.

What you are, and what you do, depend to a large extent on your character. Other things do enter into it, such as education, environment, and so on. But these are all relative, and can be influenced by one's character. It is the only way in which a person's inner self is revealed to the world.

Two men, to illustrate a point. One of them is strong-willed, determined, persistent and persevering. He makes up his mind to do something and he does it. He is not easily discouraged, and he is not easily discouraged.

Crackers and Cheese for Salad Course
There are women vain of their mixing prowess who refuse to serve crackers or other accessories with their salad, because they feel that they are not good enough to do so. They are not good enough to do so.

YOUR RUBBER PLANT
Rubber plants have a bad habit of growing too tall, but the Chinese have a cure for it. They make a "go-tee" which is a ball of clay held together by moss or fiber around one of the nodes (or joints). First, the stem is wounded or girdled just below a node and then the water is applied. It is kept moist by water applied from a container above down a soft cord which is wound around the ball. After a few weeks roots are formed and penetrate the ball of clay. The stem is then cut off just below the ball and the upper part is potted up as a new plant, while the remaining portion of the old plant may be discarded or encouraged to throw out new shoots down below.

FRUIT CAKE AND COOKIES
This time of year we expect fruit cake. The children—well, they expect cookies—any time of year. Here are two rather unusual recipes for these dainties:
Coffee Fruit Cake
1 cup shortening
1 cup light brown sugar
2 eggs
1/2 cup coffee
1-2 cup milk
1 1/2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 pound raisins
1/2 pound citron
1/2 pound figs cut in strips
Cream shortening and sugar, egg yolks, coffee and milk. Sift together flour and baking powder and add slowly. Add fruit, which has been slightly floured, and fold in beaten whites of eggs. Bake in greased loaf pan from one hour to one hour and a quarter.

NEW CLOSET SPACE
How to fit new closets in the old houses when they are being reconstructed is often a perplexing problem which may be solved in a bedroom by building one in each of the two corners in a wall. This forms an alcove in which the head of a bed may be placed, in the French fashion. Pastel-hued walls, gray or rose, for example, are appropriate in such a room. Another place for closets is the chimney on either side of a fireplace opening.

PARTY LORE
A cold, muggy afternoon becomes wonderfully interesting if the cold beef, plain meat loaf, or tongue, are placed in one or two rows of alternating sliced tomatoes and sliced green peppers, making a soft dough. Drop on cookie pan, a tablespoonful, for each cookie.

NOVA SCOTIA CHARMS
Not only those who had heard what they claim to be the loveliest province of the Dominion, but all who take delight in memories immortal and the dim far-off things of long ago will find much of interest, much of charm and a vivid recollection of historic highlights in a book just to hand "Nova Scotia," by Clara Dennis (Ryerson Press).

THE CANNED TOMATO
The change in public opinion regarding the fashions in food is well exemplified by the tomato. Not so many years ago the tomato was an object of suspicion; today it is one of the most popular of vegetables.

Brotherly Loyalty
There Are Times When A Boy or Girl Should Stand By Another Member of the Family, Even If That Member Has Done Wrong

"Should a boy stand up for his brother when he has done something wrong," a mother writes. "My oldest boy, Bill, was with a group of boys on Halloween. They took the spare tire off a man's car and threw it into the river. Bill told Jack his brother, and Jack came straight home to me with the whole story."

Another Angle On the Quintuplets
We can't get away from the idea, though, that Mrs. Dionne, the mother of the children, is not getting on as well as she should be. It is a fact that she is in a two-story house and in a time for them to get out of the house, it is a fact that she is in a two-story house and in a time for them to get out of the house.
