Voice of the Press THE WORLD AT LARGE

CANADA FASHION NOTE

Talking about spectacles, have you noticed how the ladies are coming out in spots?—Hamilton Spectator.

AND NOW—QUINTILLIPS

W. R. Thompson, Main Street, has a curiosity in a flower garden this spring, where an old-fashioned yellow tulip has craved to the front yard by producing five blooms on one stem. Both mother-plant and blooms are doing well—a fine family of "quintillips"—Petroia Advertising Topic.

WHEN THE LILACS BLOOM

The world may be going completely to the dogs, as some people affirm, but it is hard to believe it when lilacs are in bloom and strawberry shortcake season is in the offing.—London Advertiser.

GOOD DRIVERS

The majority of drivers go along year after year without mishap; they also their responsibility when they are not obsessed with the mania for speed with that dangerous complex which expresses itself in the taking of chances.

CHASING THE HITCHHIKERS

Hitchhiking still continues to clutter the highways, although those who engage in this cheap but hazardous way of travelling report that drivers are becoming increasingly hard-hearted and more difficult to obtain.

MYSTER VITICION

Predictions of literary prophets that the craze for mystery fiction was on the wane and would soon be ended does not seem to be working out.

A CAT AND A BIRD

It is possible for a cat and a mouse to be a delightful old companion, but let it out for an hour and it reverts to the life of its ancestors.

MORE EVIDENCE

The extent to which reckless driving is responsible for grade-crossing accidents is shown by data submitted by the Safety Section of the Association of American Railroads.

THE EMPIRE

THE OLD BOOKS AND SONGS. An anchor of sanity in a bewilderment of the world that is how we should regard the old songs and the old books that Britain has bequeathed to many a decade and still holds close in her heart.

RADIO FELLOWS

There is no end to inventions to make the listening to radio programs comfortable to the very last degree of fox.

UNCONGENIAL OCCUPATIONS

The most unhappy people on earth are those who are in uncongenial occupations, who get the wrong kind of education and jobs and get the wrong kind of money.

AIRPLANES AND RAYS

Recent reports from Italy of the rays sound rather fantastic to the ears of professional physicists.

FARM PROBLEM IN BRITAIN

The decline in the number of men employed upon the land has within the last fifty years been very great; at the same time the small farms have been diminishing in numbers.

Drawing For Farms

Five hundred families await their turns to draw lots for tracts in the Matanuska valley. Martin W. McCormick, first to draw, announces his luck to the crowd.

do everything he can to detect the boys. He uses receiving circuits and pairs of extreme sensitiveness. But if a person does not want to receive waves that might interfere with his engine or himself he does not need sensitive, but insensitive apparatus—that is, armor to protect himself.

STRIPPING THE FORESTS

There is and always has been too much ruthless stripping of the forests, particularly in the western part of this country.

Stories of Intelligent Dogs As Related By a Divinity Dean

From the San Francisco Arsonist, Sir Walter Scott once said he never heard a dog story he had the slightest difficulty in believing. And Sir Walter, like most old British Tories, had a knowledge of dogs that will be denied to every Bolshevik, for we are convinced that no dog ever liked a rabid Bolshevik, or ever will.

We shall not undertake to tell our readers anything that we know about dogs, though we know a good deal; but we propose to relate two stories that the Reverend Doctor Charles H. Everett, the dean of Harvard Divinity School 40 years ago, used to tell. Both of them may seem to most of our readers almost unbelievable, but those who know Dr. Everett are aware that he was not given to gassing, and that he was the sort of man who would give ready credence to "old wives' fables."

Fortunately, there is a simple and safe recipe which assists towards that much-desired aim of a healthy figure. The recipe is:—Every morning take one half-cup of Kruschen Salt in a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Finally one of them returned home on a visit, and the dog was so excited that he could not get into his presence. Later he was taken to the home of the other dog, and having reasoned that when the dog was taken suddenly and the other had said in the presence of the dog that she wished Dr. Everett could be reached. (This was solvable.)

Swedish Use of Color Impresses Scotsman

Love of color is a highly characteristic feature of Sweden, and a visit to the summer homes on the island of Stockholm or in the beautiful forest scenery of Dalecarlia is an education in its use.

The Figure Men Admire

Slim and Active through a Daily Dose of Kruschen Salts

It is often said that fat girls must take the "slimming" when it comes to choosing sweaters. That may be an exaggeration; but certain it is that most men, in this year of "grace" 1935, do prefer a slender, winsome girl. After all, can you blame them?

Fortunately, there is a simple and safe recipe which assists towards that much-desired aim of a healthy figure. The recipe is:—Every morning take one half-cup of Kruschen Salt in a glass of hot water before breakfast.
